Radio to Mars
First Campaign Miracle
Beware Half Baked Ideas
Silly Big Fleet Idea

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

BRITAIN'S POST OFFICE will attempt to reach our neighbor, Mars, by radio next week. A psychic student, who believes he has had telepathic communication with a Martian lady, requests the government radio station to send his message, and it is accepted, at 36 cents a word and will be sent into space on an 18,500 metre wave length.

If the lady hears and answers, which she won't, that will be interesting. In any case the government will get $1.80 for the five-word message. This will be remembered when our young planet, only a few thousand million years old, establishes regular communication with neighbors in space.

Baltimore reports the first miracle of this campaign. Little James Joseph Burlage, seven years old, was run over by a truck and hospital doctors marvelled that he remained alive.

Before leaving home he had stuffed under his blouse a package containing twenty-five posters with Governor Smith's portrait on each.

The thick paper package acted as a shock absorber and saved the life of the little boy, who was very happy when kind doctors posted the twenty-five pictures all around the operating room. He who suggests that a much simpler miracle would have stopped the truck before it hit the boy, simply shows ignorance of miracles.

It's dangerous to give advanced ideas to those not ready. Russians have discovered that in China.

Chinese soldiers, in possession of Chenchow, decided to take Bolshevism, as they understood it, literally, gave orders to kill all that had money, destroy all deeds, mortgages and other written evidences of property ownership, and sentenced the rich to execution.

That was going some distance beyond Karl Marx, especially when they compelled children 12 to 16 years old to act as executioners, in some cases compelling them to kill their own parents.

That sort of thing is apt to cause reaction. And it is difficult to sort out property afterward.

Secretary Wilbur says we should have a navy equal to that of any other country.

Not unless we have a mercantile marine equal to any other. Except to convoy and defend commercial ships afloat, warships are out of date.

If we wanted to blockade foreign ports we might imagine a use for fighting ships. But even blockading will be done hereafter with airplanes and super submarines of long cruising range.

Congressmen, before wasting money on a big floating navy, might ask Secretary Wilbur these questions: "What did England's and Germany's great fighting ships contribute to the last war? Do you really believe that an enemy nation would send battleships to attack our coast cities and meet our submarines and aircraft?"

What this country needs is not a floating navy as big as that of any other nation, but air fleet and submarine fleets much greater than those of any other nation.

Get those and you may stop worrying about war.

The British put out great steel nets, in the channel, to protect their transports from submarines. But no country would undertake to control our submarines with steel nets in the Atlantic along 6000 miles of our shores.

Johns Hopkins, in 135 families, rich and poor, will investigate origins, causes, and frequency of colds.

What is foolishly described as "only a cold," is the most harmful of diseases, causing a loss of hundreds of millions a year in wages. And what is worse, it weakens the system, exposing it to attack from diseases that destroy life—pneumonia, diphtheria, heart disease, and a dozen others.

Never neglect a cold, for each one actually shortens your life. And remember the great Dr. Osler's statement that the best thing for a cold is "two days in bed."

China asks the right to try foreigners that offend against her citizens or laws, instead of letting them be tried in courts set up by their own nationality. That is reasonable.

But China's request should be

OVERFLOW RALLIES ARRANGED

Boston's Democracy is all set to tear the roof off to-night when Governor Alfred E. Smith will be the speaker here Wednesday.

The pressure for tickets for the Arena speech, which will be delivered at 8 o'clock, was so great that the Democratic State Committee gave up in despair, deciding no tickets would be issued and that "first come, first served" would govern distribution of the seats.

The rally promises to be greatest affair of its kind ever "pulled off" in the Hub.

The committee decided to throw the doors open to everyone. By this method any charges of favoritism will be unsupported and bitterness of feeling among disappointed Smith admirers will be eliminated.

Those who are not lucky enough to crowd into the Arena will be given the opportunity of hearing and seeing "The Happy Warrior" in overflow meetings at Symphony Hall and in Tremont Temple.

COMING TO HUB BY AUTO

The Smith special will stop either at Springfield or Worcester and the candidate will motor into Boston.

Richardson, Cole to Lead Forum

BEGINNING tomorrow and continuing daily for the remainder of the campaign, the Boston Evening American will publish articles by representative leaders of the two great parties depicting the progress of the Smith-Hoover contest for the Presidency.

These Boston Evening American articles will be written by party leaders.

The case for Herbert Hoover will be presented daily by John Richardson, Gov. Mr. Hoover's representative in Massachusetts.

The argument for Governor Smith will be made daily by the Democratic candidate for governor, Gen. Charles H. Cole.

As the campaign nears its end, political observers appear to be agreed that Massachusetts is one of the "doubtful" states. The only thing anyone appears to know for certainty about the Bay State poll that is to say, is that no one knows what the result will be.

MAY DECIDE ISSUE

It may well be that in the end the presidency will be decided by the 18 Massachusetts votes in the Electoral College. Some believe the race to be as close as that. In the two weeks which remain, the fighting will become more spirited than ever. Every vote will be the object of a struggle.

In view of this situation, it appears to The Boston Evening

THREE CHILDREN AND MAN ARE WOUNDED BY REVERE AUTO 'SNIPER'

Three children and a man were wounded in Revere today in the second mysterious shooting in three days in that city, possibly committed, police believe, by a criminally insane "shotgun sniper."

Today's victims were Mary 6, Concetta 8, and Salvatore 2, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Imbiasso of 35 Sargent st, and Sabastian Marzolla, 62, also of Sargent st.

In each instance a shotgun loaded with birdshot was used, Saturday's victim, Horace Romano, 28, of George st., Revere, having 100 of the pellets removed from his body.

Mrs. Imbiasso obtained the number of an automobile in which the man who shot her children and Marzolla escaped, and the police are investigating.

Physicians summoned to the Imbiasso home took six birdshot from

G.O.P. VICTORY CERTAIN, ASSERTS HOOVER IN N. Y.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN, International News Correspondent.

New York, Oct. 22—A Republican victory in November is assured beyond doubt, Herbert Hoover declared today in a conference with newspapermen which featured the opening of his personal effort to win New York State.

The Republican nominee declared overconfidence was the only danger to the chances of Republican success.

He said that reports reaching him from all sections of the country indicted Republican workers were active, zealous and confident of victory.

"I think there never has been greater unity in the Republican party in the last quarter century than there is now," said Hoover. "We have an able organization and there is more zeal throughout the country for the Republican cause than we have had in a number of years.

WON'T TALK OF OIL.

"There is not the slightest doubt about the outcome of the election if Republicans keep up their good work until November 6. The only danger lies in over-confidence."

Asked for the causes of Repub-

RAIDERS ARREST 782 IN JERSEY ROADHOUSES

Camden, N. J., Oct. 22—Seven hundred and eighty-two persons were arrested and put in jail by State troopers in a sensational raid upon seven roadhouses near here to enforce the Sunday closing laws.

Those arrested included matrons prominent in southern New Jersey society, leading business men, gangsters and gun molls and proprietors and employes of the roadhouses.

The raids, carefully planned, were executed by 50 state troopers and the entire county detective staff, who arrested everybody in the places visited.

BOY, 15, DROWNS BUT SAVES LITTLE SISTER

Warren Brennan, 15, of North Weymouth, sacrificed his life off Rose cliff in that town today to save that of his 7-year-old sister, Mildred, as both were thrown into the water when their boat capsized while they were fishing.

"Get to shore, Mildred, and save yourself, I have a cramp," were the last words which rang in the ears of the courageous little miss as she swam toward her brother, who was struggling in the water.

Unwillingly, Mildred struck out for shore, and there she was found almost unconscious by Albert Gradwin, a truck driver. Gradwin obtained from her the name and address of her parents and had almost reached her home when Mildred told him of the predicament of her brother. Leaving her in care of her mother, Gradwin rushed back to the scene of the accident, but the boy had disappeared.

Weymouth police dragged the vicinity for an hour and discovered his body in 10 feet of water.

Mildred said the boat capsized when Warren attempted to pull a fish aboard.

TO CHARGE SALEM BOY SLAYER WITH MURDER

Capt. Gideon Pelletier of the Salem police and State Detective William F. Murray will leave for Washington tonight to lodge a charge of murder against Carl Panzram, who has confessed to the slaying of 13-year-old Henry McMahon in Salem six years ago.

Panzram, at present in custody of the Washington authorities, has been identified through his photographs by three Salem women and a boy as the stranger they saw in company with the McMahon lad a few hours before his mutilated body was discovered in a berry field on the outskirts of the town.

In his confession Panzram described the murder of a boy between Boston and Gloucester in 1922 and coolly recited the struggle as he

$2000 IN RINGS STOLEN FROM RICH LYNN WOMAN

Mrs. Harry Heath of Lynnfield st., Lynn, wife of a wealthy shoe man, was robbed in her home of five rings valued at from $1500 to $2000, it was learned today.

They were described as being four diamond rings and one of bronze gold setting, with three sapphires and four diamonds, two being heirlooms and the remainder gifts. Strangely enough, according to Mrs. Heath, pearl necklaces and other jewelry, together with $100 in a purse laying on her dresser were not taken.

Mrs. Heath said she wore some of the rings to a dinner Thursday night, restoring them to the jewel box on her dresser when she retired. She discovered their loss the following night, and notified the police. She did not make public the theft

MANY MORE AUTOISTS FACE LOSS IN MUTUAL

Many more automobile owners than at first supposed may be affected if assessments against policyholders have to be made as a result of official action against the Car Owners' Mutual Insurance Company.

Owners who held policies in this company last year or who held them this year and canceled them are subject to assesments, if they are required, as well as present policyholders, according to insurance experts.

It was first thought that the 45,000 policyholders of the company in question would alone be affected if such an eventuality arose out of the action launched in the Supreme Court by the acting insurance commissioner, Arthur E. Lincoln.

It was also learned today that last April the company sent out "dividend warrants" with circulars stating that in time the 1927 policyholders would undoubtedly share in profits because the $172,000 reserve against unsettled claims would be more than sufficient to pay all claims.

Now State officials are being bombarded with queries regarding the policies, and new developments are

THUMB PRINT CLUE TO WELLESLEY ROBBERY

A perfect thumb print on the rifled cashbox of the Diehl Coal Company, Linden st., Wellesley, is expected to lead to the arrest of at least one member of a gang of five armed yeggs who got away with $300 there last night after locking the watchman and his wife in a washroom.

The thumb print found by Wellesley police was sent to the State House for comparison with the records of known criminals, and it will also be compared with prints found in the office of a coal company in Holliston after a robbery there last Friday night.

In the opinion of the authorities the Wellesley robbery is the work of a skilled gang that is specializing in week-end robberies of coal companies, the first of the series having been committed in precisely similar fashion at the Burton-Furber being eagerly awaited by the 45,000 policyholders of the Car Owners' Mutual Insurance Company, which Linnell alleges is insolvent.

SEEK AID IN NEW TANGLE

The insurance tangle is a wide open problem with proposed methods of solution presented from every side, and the situation is all the more confusing because of the natural infusion of politics at this time.

Additional and startling facts not relating to the companies so much as to the inaction of State authorities who had cognizance of the fact that some companies were skating on thin ice are expected to appear in evidence at the Supreme Court hearing.

BEFORE FULL BENCH.

The full bench of the court is to hear arguments by a representative of the attorney-general's office and counsel for the Car Owners' Company as to solvency or insolvency of that organization, and this hearing is to take place some time this week, probably tomorrow or Friday.

Former Commissioner Wesley E. Monk, still a storm center in spite of his resignation, has said that three other companies are on "the ragged edge." A fact-finding commission has been proposed by Representative Abraham R. Casson of Boston.

In the opinion of many observers Governor Fuller will demand all the facts from acting Commissioner Linnell and instruct Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner to launch action wherever the situation warrants, although the very cleaning up of the tangle must wreak hardship on thousands of car owners.

TO DECIDE NEW RATES

Another angle of the problem is the pending decision of the Supreme Court as to whether the companies can insist on promulgation of the 1929 rates that ex-Commissioner Monk decided upon but did not formally put into effect.

Monk charged point blank that politics played the leading role in the present put on him to refrain from promulgating higher rates for next year and this is one of the chief arguments of the companies in seeking to force the state to order the increase.

8 HARVARD PROFESSORS DECLARE FOR HOOVER

Following the announced intentions of eight professors at Harvard to vote for Herbert Hoover, other members of the faculty were expected to declare themselves one way or the other in the national campaign.

They are William Bennett Munro, professor of municipal government; Dean Le Baron Briggs, Warren A. Seavey, professor of law; Hayre Macnell, professor of law; Merton C. Campbell, professor of law; Merton C. V. Huntington, professor of mechanics; Chester L. Dawes, assistant professor of electrical engineering, and C. A. Abbott, Abbott and James Lawrence professors of electric engineering.

TO ASK DEATH FOR OBREGON SLAYER

Mexico City, Oct. 22.—The death penalty will be asked for Jose De Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, when he goes to trial next month, according to a formal notification which has been presented to judicial authorities. It is understood the trial may start Nov. 5, but no official date has been set. Lesser penalties will be asked for the dozen alleged accomplices of the assassin, only one of which will be tried with Toral.

Visits Boston

ON WAY HOME

Lady Edward Spencer Churchill, who attended the recent convention of the American Legion Auxiliary at San Antonio, Tex., arrives in Boston today for a two-day visit on her way back to England. Lady Churchill is the wife of the son of the Duke of Marlborough.

LADY CHURCHILL ON SIGHTSEEING TOUR OF HUB

Lady Edward Spencer-Churchill, whose hospitality and entertainment of the American women on the American Legion good-will tour of England last year made her a familiar figure to the nation's mothers, arrived in the Hub on a two-day visit of the city's historic shrines and landmarks.

She was accompanied by Mrs. William H. Schofield, Peterborough, N. H., chairman of the distinguished guests committee, and Mrs. Robert Walbridge, also of Peterborough, arriving early today from New York.

Although her plans for the two days are not definite, it was stated that the distinguished wife of the son of the Duke of Marlborough was to lunch with President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University today.

A sight-seeing tour of suburban Boston is also included in the arrangements.

Lady Churchill is on her way back to England from the National Convention of the American Legion Auxiliary, which she attended at San Antonio, Tex., and which was the primary provocation for her visit to this country.

She is prominently identified in England with veteran activities and last year, following the American Legion convention in Paris, she was active in showing American women what England is really like.

She is an aunt of Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the British Exchequer and distinguished novelist.

She was the guest of Mrs. Schofield while in Boston.

ing on the sidewalk, drew up abreast of the children.

They told the police that as they watched, the man pointed the shotgun in their direction. The children said they thought the man was aiming at birds over their heads, but when he fired they dropped to the ground screaming with pain.

Mrs. Imbasso raced to the street in time to see the man with the shotgun enter the parked automobile, which disappeared down the street.

On Saturday Romano walked into the office of Dr. Francis Licata and asked for treatment, stating a hunter had accidentally wounded him. Dr. Licata found 100 shots in the chest, abdomen and legs, but Romano refused to have an ambulance summoned, insisting on a taxicab to take him to a hospital. He went to East Boston Relief Hospital, but because of his condition was transferred to City Hospital.

Police do not believe that Romano's wounds were the result of an accident, and today's shootings strengthened their theory that a feud is involved.

granted, only on the assumption that penalties, on conviction would be reasonable from the western point of view. The old dowager empress condemned offenders to be sawed in two lengthwise.

That would be too severe for any European constitution.

An Italian, winner of a prize for the best play, is found in an Italian prison, serving his fourth term for theft.

Not abashed, the talented convict says he used to be in the insane asylum.

That may help those seeking to explain some recent productions on the New York stage, with blasphemy and indecency as their main attractions.

Sir Charles Markham, British soldier, kills big game when there are not enemies to shoot, and crossed the Sahara Desert in 16 days, traveling in an International Harvester truck.

The compliment to America's truck building industry is appreciated. But more important is the fact that such a trip means early extermination of big game. Sentimentalists will weep, especially game hunters that like the pleasure of killing things.

But killing big game, eliminating animals generally from the earth, will mean elimination of disease. Animal life is the breeding ground of diseases like anthrax, diphtheria on the fur of cats, rabies in dogs, the deadly sleeping sickness of Africa in the crocodile's blood.

If British sportsmen would kill the last crocodile sleeping sickness would soon vanish.

Most of the patrons were asked whether they had taken any liquor to the roadhouses and whether they had purchased any liquor there.

The raiders met with no resistance. They commandeered the telephones as soon as they entered each roadhouse, so that news of the raids could not reach other roadhouses.

The motorbuses that had been chartered by the raiding officers carried the merry-makers to the courthouse here and three justices of the peace awaited their arrival.

The defendants were herded into three rooms and for nearly four hours the justices held hearings and fixed bail.

Officers reported that liquor had been found in all places except one and that in these instances slot machines were confiscated.

The places raided and the proprietors held were Red Lantern, Aloysius Goan; Tollgate Inn, Frank McGinley; Rustic Inn, James Sparks; Golden Pheasant, Florence Myers; Club Everglade, Albert Rickert; Marland Inn, Harry Marple, and Club LJdo, Louis Mancine.

Prosecutor Wescot said today his future action would depend on the roadhouse proprietors. He promised to "make things uncomfortable" if they persisted in defying the closing law.

As a result of the recent political raids in Philadelphia, it was said here today, many gangsters moved to Camden, and roadhouses were patronized more liberally.

The raids resulted when the proprietors failed to observe the law requiring them to close Saturday night at midnight.

Brooding Over Loss of Beauty, Girl Leaps to Death

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—Brooding over the knowledge that her beauty had been marred for life, Miss Dorothy Moskowitz, 22, Brooklyn, is believed by police to have jumped to death from the third floor of her home. She was killed instantly.

Several months ago hot wax was spattered over her face in the shop where she was employed. Relatives told detectives she had talked of taking her life.

PLANE DEATHS PROBED

Three separate investigations were started into the two airplane accidents in Massachusetts which took two lives and sent two more to the hospital in serious condition.

In a plane crash at Gardner, the two occupants of the plane were instantly killed. In a similar accident at Haverhill, the two occupants of the plane were badly injured. In both cases the planes were American Eagles, and both were used to carry passengers on sight seeing jaunts.

The investigations are being conducted by the State Motor Vehicle Inspectors, Federal aviation inspectors and the local authorities.

At Gardner, Felix Brisbois, 26, pilot and owner of the plane and James Badinel, 30, a passenger, were instantly killed.

At Haverhill, George F. Mosher, 37, of 8 Acorn st., Haverhill, pilot of the plane, and Otto Mizaras, 41, his mechanic, were both badly injured when their plane went into a tail spin from an altitude of several hundred feet.

YEGGS GLUE IN THUMB PRINT

Coal Company, Everett, two weeks ago.

In the Holliston case the robbers were three in number and used a car bearing Rhode Island registration plates. This fact, police believe, will aid in the early roundup of the yeggs.

The gang gained entrance to the Diehl Company's office by the pretext of wanting to borrow a steel bar to help jack up their car for tire repairs. John Maguire, 56, the watchman, was suspicious but he opened the door a crack to see what they looked like and found the muzzle of a revolver confronting him.

They tried to make Maguire tell them where the safe was, but he refused. They locked him in the washroom and then discovered Maguire's wife in the back room just in time to keep her from slipping out a window to get help. She was locked in with her husband.

Finding the safe in a brick vault in the wall, they smashed it open and fled in a sedan. Maguire got out a window and after liberating his wife tried to telephone the police but found the wires cut. He ran to another building and sent in the alarm.

HIBBEN FIGHTS FOR STUDENT VOTERS

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 22 (AP)—Dr. John Grier Hibben and Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton University appeared today before the Mercer County Board of Elections to establish the right of students of the university to be registered in the town and to vote at the general election.

Conceding the franchise right of the students would hinge upon the interpretation given by the authorities to the actual place of residence of the students, Dr. Hibben said the students do not in any sense give up the ownership of their rooms when they go away for the summer.

No one, he said, is allowed in their quarters except janitors and other members of the cleaning force and ownership of the rooms resides in the students until their graduation.

One requirement of a lease, Dr. Hibben said, is that undergraduates retain their rooms throughout their entire college careers.

Incidentally, President Hibben explained he thought the trouble in Princeton was caused by the fact that in the first district graduate students who reside there have all been allowed to register. In the second district all undergraduates registered, with few exceptions, he said, have been refused, notwithstanding that the lease of the graduate students on their quarters are exactly the same as those of the Dr. Hibben said that throughout the country a great effort is being made to get out first voters and it ought to be encouraged.

All that he desired he said was to have the students treated as residents of Princeton. The borough regards them as such, he said, explaining that the university clubs pay borough taxes.

He also pointed out that all members of the faculty have been advised to register. They, he said, have even less claim than the undergraduates to permanent residence, as their contracts are only for one year. Some, he added, live independently under lease with the same terms as the student leases.

About 700 students are involved in the tangle.

$4,066,401 PAID POOL IN YEAR

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—The income of the Albany baseball pool for 1927 was $4,066,401, according to its income tax return offered in evidence today in federal court.

The return was produced by the government in the trial of William J. Pringle, alleged secretary and treasurer of the pool, who is on trial before Judge Thatcher and a jury charged with conspiring to use the mails in conducting a lottery.

The return showed the pool's expenses $3,346,401, to which were charged commissions to agents of $436,448, prizes of $2,810,552 and a printing bill of $124,000.

Pringle's own income for the same year was stated by him to have been $40,000. Frank W. Dunham, assistant cashier of an Albany bank, told of aiding Pringle to "pay off" each Monday in an Albany poolroom.

HE CAN BLAST STORMS WITH 'CONE GUN'

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

A tall, gray-haired, fascinating man, 35 years a professor and scientist, adjusted his capers and his eyeglasses, tilted back his chair and with an air of certainty and conviction, said simply:

"The hurricanes can be controlled. Their pep can be taken out. They can be tamed. The Florida regions can be saved and be made safe."

Prof. William S. Franklin, physicist of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for 11 years, author of 24 volumes of physics, chemistry and mathematics, in the main.

His conclusions are based on experiments and exhaustive studies of years.

IN COLLAPSE

Mrs. Milton S. Waldman, daughter of Benjamin Guggenheim who was drowned on the Titanic, lost her two babies when they plunged to their death from the roof of a New York hotel. The victims were Terrance, 4, and Benjamin, aged one year.

BECOMES BRIDE TODAY ATOP WHITE MTS.

Lincoln, N. H., Oct 12—With only the soughing wind and the crackle of fall-dyed leaves as the paean of gladness, Miss Beulah L. Moran of Roxbury, Mass., was to become the bride today at the peak of rocky Indian Head, of Olive F. Morris, woodsman, guide and animal trainer.

The wedding on the high range of one of the White Mountains was to be solemnized as the departing sun was tinting the sky in the west.

No rustle of glistening satin, nor shirr of expensive lace accompanied preparations of the bride-to-be. Instead, she hauled on—in true Diana fashion—a stout pair of woolen knickers, pulled up a pair of thick, wool sport stockings, wriggled her head through the aperture of a wool shirt—and was ready for the climb up the mountain to the marriage heights.

150 TO SEE WEDDING

Her intended husband was similarly clad. Hand in hand, they climbed the mountain peak, while their attendants, not so used to the rigorous woods and hills, were drawn up by teams of dogs attached to carts.

Approximately 150 persons were on hand at the start of the climb and they all intended to witness the ceremony but under the few fleecy, but low clouds.

Preceded by little Miss Helena Connery, flower girl, who rode on a three-dog sled owned by William Clark of Lincoln, the attendants at the unique wedding followed the principals to the top of the hill where they were to be married by the Rev. George W. Stevenson of Lancaster.

In the group of climbers were Mr. and Mrs. Lowell C. Hull of Brookline, Mass., best man and bridesmaid, friends, and a goodly share of Indian lland's population.

FEAST ON WILD GAME

"My love of the outdoors prompted me to choose knickers and high boots in preference to the beautiful things that seem to be the necessary setting for a modern bride," said Miss Moran before she left Indian Head Inn for the long trip to the top of the hill.

"And our wedding breakfast will be unique in that wild game, bear, venison, raccoon and partridge will be most prominent on the menu," she said.

The couple's honeymoon will be spent in the White Mountains, where Morris will teach his bride the trails that mark Franconia Notch. They plan to reside permanently in Lincoln.

"He wrote me he would slay me if I failed to meet him," says Gwen Taylor of the movies. She says she does not know his name, but she has her suspicions.

CASEY'S FAMED BAT GIVEN DE WOLF HOPPER

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—DeWolf Hopper, who has recited "Casey at the Bat" more than 15,000 times, today was the possessor of a bat described by the donors as one with which the mighty Casey once struck out.

It was presented at a testimonial dinner given by the Fellow Actors, Producers and Writers on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of his first appearance on the stage. At the dinner he failed to describe the gloom in Mudville.

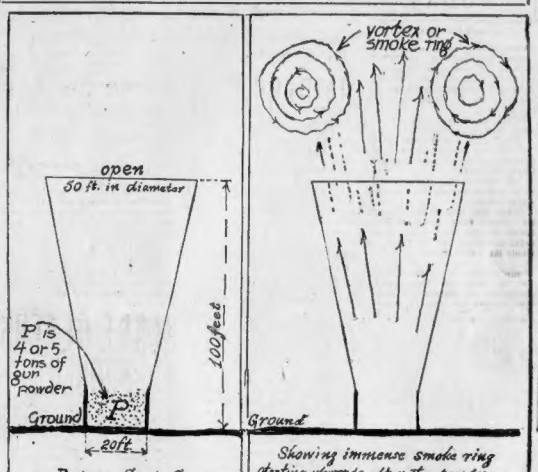

Among the letters of congratulation sent to the 70-year-old actor and read at the dinner was this from President Coolidge:

"It is a real pleasure to join with those who will be congratulating you upon the completion of a half century on the American stage. All praise to one who has upheld its traditions and contributed so richly to clean and wholesome entertainment. My best wishes for health and happiness in the future."

Mayor James J. Walker, honorary toastmaster, also praised Hopper as a man who always has been identified with plays.

In his response to the speeches Hopper said that his arguments in favor of a raise in his salary next year would be that any man who works 50 years for a dinner is entitled to some consideration.

LODGER DISCOVERS MAN A GAS VICTIM

Unconscious from gas poisoning, Salvatori Traino, 71, of 8 Gloucester pl., South End, was discovered in his rooms by another lodger in the building, who smelled the gas and investigated. Police were called and administered first aid while taking the man to the City Hospital, where his name is on the danger list.

Gas was escaping from an open wall bracket when Traino was found.

MAN NEAR DEATH AFTER ACCIDENT

One man is near death at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford, and two others were released from that hospital after treatment following an automobile accident on South Border rd., Medford.

The man reported dying is Edmund Venuti, 28, of 297 Main st., Medford. Venuti was operating one of the automobiles figuring in the crash and is suffering with a fractured skull and other injuries. The two men receiving treatment at the hospital were Louis A. Marabendelo of 288 Main st., Medford, and James R. Pullo of 7 Yale st., Medford. Both men were occupants of the machine driven by Venuti.

INVESTIGATE KILLING OF GUGGENHEIM BABY HEIRS

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—An inquiry into the death of two baby grandsons of the late Benjamin Guggenheim by falls from the roof of the Hotel Surrey Friday afternoon has been ordered by Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris.

While playing on the roof with their mother, Mrs. Milton S. Waldman, wife of an associate editor of the London Mercury and youngest daughter of the late copper magnate, the two boys, Terrence, four, and Benjamin, 14 months, fell 12 stories to the roof of an adjoining building.

COURT REFUSES TO ACT ON LIQUOR INCOME TAX

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to pass on the question whether the Federal government has the right to impose an income tax on money received from the illicit sale of liquor merely on the strength of a report from a revenue agent.

the Bahama islands. A large charge of gunpowder, five or more tons to a cone, exploded in the base of a cone would drive the air in the cone, 60,000 cubic feet of it, upward as a gigantic vortex or smoke ring carrying a very considerable upward impulse to an elevation of several thousand feet. This would start a rising column of warm, moist air in the lower strata of the atmosphere that would break up the impending storm.

"It would, of course, cost several millions of dollars, but it is worth the trial, if human life is to be saved and property damage be eliminated."

URGES TRIAL BY U. S.

The professor in a communication to the United States Weather Bureau at Washington urges that this method of practical weather control be given a fair trial.

When Dr. Franklin was a boy, he said, he lived in the Middle West and he was thoroughly familiar with the ruthless drivings of prairie and forest fires. This method of "back firing" by which prairie fires are controlled gave him the idea which is now the nucleus of a possible scientific miracle which might be beneficially applied to the southern areas.

"The local energy of a storm is derived from the local potential energy of a widespread unstable state," the professor further explained. "Just as the local energy of a line of standing dominos is derived from the local potential energy of the standing dominos when the whole line is made to collapse by touching the end domino.

"So with weather control. If by order a storm can be created which would dissipate any air when a hurricane would come along, there would be nothing to feed on when it did arrive and it would fritter away."

These giant steel cones, he said, could be handled by one man to a cone. Three or four days before a storm is anticipated the men could be notified to charge the cones and shoot off the powder, which would, in torpedo-fashion, fly skywards thousands of feet, dragging with it the warm air which would be replaced by the cool air.

By the time the storm arrived there would be no more warm air and the hurricane would peter out, he claims.

Before coming to Tech E. Franklin was for 18 years affiliated with Lehigh University. He is author of "Bill's School and Mine," an educational volume which was much talked about.

"Tiger Jack" Takes Count as Actor; to Quit Show

New York, Oct. 22—Jack Dempsey knocked out! His road-tour in the drama known as "The Big Fight" ends this week. It has been running since Aug. 30. Ringside seats the first night on Broadway were $11.

As an actor, Jack was somewhat less of a drawing card than as a fighter. Mrs. Dempsey left the cast recently because of illness. She is to return to the movies.

1 DEAD, 3 HURT IN EXPLOSION OF HEATER

Chicopee Falls, Oct. 22—One man was killed, three women were shaken up and bruised and windows in an entire block were broken when a water heater in a barbershop on the first floor at 1 Broadway exploded.

Edward Gubber, 33, of 2 Montague st., Worcester, who was asleep in a rooming house over the barbershop, was hurled from bed and instantly killed by the force of the explosion.

Mrs. Grace Gibbons, the landlady, her daughter, Dorothy, and Miss Mae Dunn, a visitor, were severely shaken up and bruised.

Following the explosion the barbershop owned by Maurice Martin, broken into flames and stubbornly resisted the efforts of the firemen for some time.

Plate glass windows in stores on the ground floor of the block were blown out and practically every other window in the structure was shattered by the explosion, which aroused the entire neighborhood.

Gubber, who had been working here for about a year, leaves a wife and four children in Worcester.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:

I've had such a busy, happy week—a-shopping—of course, because "that's my weakness now." I have so much gossip for you I'm afraid I can't get it all into this letter, but I know you'll be interested in knowing how and fit for a fashion page was the chattering group I met coming out of Mangel's, 449 Washington st. Each one boasting that she had found the very best in values—so I'll leave the decision to you my Anne. Virgilia's choice was a blue wool crepe, which she selected from an immense stock of tweeds, printed and plain jerseys, specially priced at $5; Rita's was a brown crepe, velvet trimmed, $9.95; and Ellen's a stunning jacket model in black rayon moire, $14.95. Mangel's enormous purchasing power makes it possible for them to offer these dresses at unusually low prices. They operate 99 stores—with the hundredth opening very soon.

"Varicose Veins

just ruin the contour of my legs," writes Elaine. "What shall I do?" Simply around we'll go to Dr. Saul at 110 Tremont St., Rm.

312, and purchase a pair of his truly wonderful pure silk elastic stockings. They are of the lightest weight, seamless, and flesh color (with a knitted heel full-fashioned and almost invisible, and only $6.75 each. All our friends are most pleased with them, and how they exclaim "What a difference!" Our out-of-town friends may order by mail. Dr. Saul's treatments for corns and callouses will aid you in maintaining foot health, and his new arch supppt shoes at $8.00 a pair will amaze you for style and comfort.

New Fashioned Pajamas

with old-fashioned comfort! For the modern young lady who scorns the old-fashioned flannel nightgown yet longs for its cozy warmth, there are some smartly tailored flannelette (cotton) pajamas, specially priced at $2.00, at R. H. Stearns Co., Tremont St. They come in stripes as well as plain colors — white, pink, blue and orchid, and are attractively trimmed with silk frogs. Instead of an uncomfortable elastic band around the waist, they tie securely at the side. The college miss will find them indispensable for chilly dormitories, and the girl who lives at home will delight in their comfy style and warmth for wintry nights.

Elite Patterns

No matter how many clothes the average woman has, there is always an occasion when she feels she "has nothing to wear."

Every woman can have an almost unlimited wardrobe with the help of Elite Patterns—exact copies of what the smart Parisienne is wearing. An easy-to-follow guide accompanies each pattern. The Elite Styles Fashion Book (sold at all news stands) brings you from 30 to 40 new styles each month, and also introduces fashion's vagaries in accessories, etc. Your name and address sent to the Elite Pattern Shop, Rm. 912, 453 Washington St., will place you on the list for monthly fashion sheets. Patterns will also be mailed upon request. Call Lib. 0271.

A Mighty Value Zeppelin

flashes through our skies of Fashion and reveals some startling price sensations in a two-day sale of dresses at the Hudson Wearing Apparel, 449 Washington St. This sale, for Monday and Tuesday only, includes all kinds of dresses and suits marked from their original high prices to $13.95! There are rayon-back chiffon velvets in black and Madelon blue; Canton satins with transparent velvet trimmings, and some with lace yokes; beautiful georgette crepes and striped sport frocks. One particularly swagger tailored ensemble is a dark green, wool tweed, three-piece suit, ¾ length coat with a detachable scarf. The blouse of tan jersey is trimmed with green tweed. An appropriate costume for Fall days, Anne, so I've had it sketched for you. Remember this sale is for Monday and Tuesday only—after that—back they go to their original prices. And now for the hats, Anne! It isn't necessary for me to urge you to look at them, because you have already heard about Hudson's astonishing values in genuine, hand made, hand blocked French Felts and Soleils at $3.50. They come in all the stunning Fall styles and colors, and the outstanding feature is that these chic, youthful styles come in all headsizes. If you didn't intend to buy a hat I know you will when you see these irresistible values.

"One Hour of Grooming"—

A Play of Mystery

The clock strikes 7. The curtain rises upon Milady gazing into her mirror. Her face is wan. Her eyes lack lustre. Suddenly her glance strays to her dressing table. She selects a jar and reads—"Elmo Cleansing Cream." Hopefully she opens the jar, and with a light, upward movement applies the Cream. The dust and grime of the day vanish! Next comes the Tissue Cream to erase wrinkles, preserve the skin's texture and prevent sagging muscles. Milady peers again into the mirror—this time expectantly. Her face now glows with freshness, but close scrutiny reveals a slightly oily condition. She deftly applies the Tonic Astringent, to close enlarged pores. It is quickly absorbed by the skin and a perfect powder foundation remains. And now the finishing stroke! A bit of Elmo Rouge, nearest approach to nature's coloring; a pat of Margo Face Powder which readily adheres, eliminating constant powdering. One last glance in the mirror, and lo! A radiant vision is reflected—rosebud lips, gently tinged with Elmo Permanent Indelible Lipstick. Eyes that sparkle—sapphires—fringed with lashes faintly suggesting Kohl-mo Mascara, which laughter tears will not wash off. The clock strikes 8. Milady emerges glorious and superbly groomed. The mystery is solved—Elmo Preparations, sold by Filene's (street floor). The prices for each article, according to size, range from 60c to $2.00.

After the Touchdown—

your winning score is a smart dance frock, because, of course, that is the most important feature of a gay celebration. If it is an informal dinner dance immediately after the game, the Spanish Galleries of Chandler & Co., Tremont St., have the ideal frock—a misty, swaying, chiffon, with long sleeves, swathed at the hip, and falling in swirling circular flares. These gowns have an all silk slip underneath with that alluring bodice top of flesh chiffon. They come in this season's smartest shades of Napoleon blue, Java brown, bright red and the ever fashionable black, and the price is only $15.00. If a formal party presents itself, you can easily afford a new evening gown, too, for a certain section of the Spanish Galleries has been transformed into a rosebud garden of lovely party gowns. Velvet and taffeta combinations in the popular period style; satin and tulle in the graceful transparent hemline; fluffy petal dresses; and the taffeta peplum gown—the very last breath from Paris stylists. These dance frocks come in all the gorgeous rainbow shades for evening wear, and are unbelievable values at $15.00.

Weep No More, Milady

over your shabby fur coat—not when Nature has given us beautifully furred animals and Scott's has given us the Unique Fur Club. Without this remarkable combination what would we do—we mortals who must watch our budgets so closely? Scott Furriers, Inc., New England's Largest Fur Establishment, located at 69 Summer St., has worked out a most convenient plan for purchasing their luxurious fur coats, and just 'twixt you and me, it isn't a bit embarrassing, because no references are required. You may turn in that shabby fur coat you worried so much about, and replace it with one of their 1500 distinctive models, and this "turn in" will be accepted as first payment, if you wish. If you are buying your first fur coat you will appreciate their expert advice in selecting skins, and you may make a payment when you choose your coat, and pay the balance when you take it out; or, if more convenient, you may arrange a 30, 60 or 90 day charge account; or, make small weekly or monthly payments while wearing the coat. There is no charge for alterations. It does seem that Scott's has left nothing undone to extend the fairest dealing to their customers, and now we find them remaining open until 9 p. m.—just for your convenience.

New Faces

for old by the marvelous treatment of Dr. John Post Medical "Absorption" Facials. A sure way to wake up the pores that stimulate circulation—brings up good red color to the surface skin that washes away fatigue poisons. Supporting muscle tissue is toned up. Pouchy fat tightened. Blackheads and wrinkles are removed and your skin promoted to perfect health. Call Mrs. Gardner, Manager Medical and Facial Departments, Hay. 1647, and make appointment for a $5.00 demonstration facial, including the Zeeronator, an iceless dry cold massage, for $2.00. Post Institute, 6 Beacon St., Room 910.

You May Guard

against Time by retaining the natural color of your hair, or by cleverly preventing your face from becoming wrinkled, but your hands will frankly reveal the true story of your age unless you protect them. J. Lesquendieu's Pate D'Amandes, a pure almond cream of exceptionally whitening qualities, sold exclusively by Meyer Jonasson Co. for $1.50, will restore the youthful, resilient texture to the skin of your hands, and will turn their sallowness into the faintly-tinged hue of youth. It also imparts a soft, white transparency to the nails. Your hands always are critically displayed. Don't let them betray your age!

Lucky Two!

2 for $15 and 2 for $25

That is what you'll find at Evelyn's Dress Shop, 8 Winter St., this week, because Miss Evelyn is offering two of her wonderful dress values for the price of one! For $15 you may select two dresses from her stock of satins, crepes, wool tweeds and satin and velvet combinations. For $25 you may have two of her beautiful velvets, velvet trimmed georgettes, satins, or crepes. All these dresses are in the latest popular styles and colors. There are also some luxurious transparent velvet gowns for only $22.50. Lucky you, if you visit Evelyn's this week!

Lotty's Sale of Hats

at $3, $4 and $5 is news enough to send you rushing up to visit her Hat Shoppe at 8 Winter St., Rm. 512. Imagine being able to find Soleil Velours, French Fur Felts, and velvets at such remarkably low prices! These hats come in all the latest Fall and Winter shades and styles, and there is also a special lot of matrons' hats and youthful hats in large head sizes. No charge is made for alterations. Moulded-to-the-head hats are priced at $6.50 and up, and there are some gorgeous reproductions of smart imported models. For your convenience, Lotty's Hat Shoppe is open every night until 6:30.

The Curly Girl

returns! No longer do we seek a sleek boyish bob, but deep, nestling waves. The Beauty Shop of Houghton & Dutton, realizing this, has extended a special price of $8.50 for their regular $10 Frederics Vita Tonic Permanent Waves. This process will not change the color nor injure the texture of the finest hair, and the price includes shampoo and setting wave. There is also a special discount of 25 per cent on all work (excepting permanents) done in the morning between 9 and 11. So wake up early, Anne, and avail yourself of this wonderful opportunity. There are also two expert barbers here who excel in the latest haircuts.

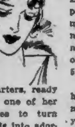

Superfluous Hair

is a problem and the electric needle, or electrolysis, has long been recognized by physicians as a safe and permanent method of removing superfluous hair forever. It is well to find a method which will not aggravate the growth. Electrolysis is accomplished without pain and without injury to the skin. The success of the operation depends upon the operator and patrons and physicians alike recognize James Brooks of 100 Boylston St. as a skilled operator who can remove all traces of hair successfully. Telephone Liberty 4466.

When Somebody Moves

there is always a reason, and when Miss Ella Whitney in the Dexter Building found that her beauty shop on the 11th floor was hardly adequate to take care of her fast-increasing number of customers she just packed up her things and moved downstairs to Room 703. This is where you'll find her now, in bright, roomy quarters, ready to give you another one of her rippling finger waves to turn your growing-bob ends into adorable ringlets. Miss Whitney also specializes in facials that impart a radiant clarity to the skin, shampooing and manicures.

The Tweed Appeal

has grasped Miss Modern, and holds her fast—even to the tips of her toes, and now we see her in brown tweed shoes for sports, business and dress-up. Adoria Tweed Shoes, priced at $10, are sold exclusively by Jordan Marsh Company (Fourth Floor) and represent a super standard of style-value. These smart tweeds add the keenest touch to your carefully assembled attire. They come in the fashionable oxford styles with a heel of the most desirable height, and are neatly trimmed with bronze kid. A new Adoria model is featured weekly, and always at the same popular price—$10.00.

The Proper Soap

will eliminate blackheads and close open pores. For this purpose J. Lesquendieu has prepared a soap called Savon La Reine des Cremes that is sanctioned by the leading dermatologists, who advise the use of a pure soap and tepid water twice a week. This soap, with its cold cream base, has a most soothing effect on tender skins. It is sold exclusively at Meyer Jonasson Co. for 50c a cake, $1.50 per box. For a perfect powder base, that will not bead, there is none like La Reine des Cremes—the cream from which the soap is made. This cream, price $1, is so delicate and feathery it quickly vanishes into the skin, forming a perfect powder foundation.

Straight from New York to Allyn's, 41 Winter St., Room 52, comes an unusual collection of mostly one-of-a-kind dresses in striking styles, consisting of transparent velvets, chiffons, flat crepes and other novelty materials, specially priced at $22.50! Among these distinguished models is a particularly versatile frock (pictured)—a gorgeous beet red chiffon afternoon dress, swathed velvet girdle, with a detachable jacket, which when removed transforms the dress into a stunning sleeveless dinner frock. There is also an extraordinary group of georgettes, satin crepes and velvets, formerly priced up to $24.50, reduced to $9.95. Here's the shop for an individual frock, Anne!

Who Shall Dare

to face the world with hair that is streaked and faded, or, worse still—hair that has been discolored by the improper use of dyes? Not you—nor anyone who takes pride in her personal appearance. So straightaway visit the shop of L. Max, who occupies the entire third floor at 184 Boylston St. L. Max for over 35 years has specialized in hair dyeing and for this purpose has erected Daylight Booths where your hair can be perfectly matched under the most exacting light. For permanents and finger waves, wide and natural, that follow the contour of the head, call L. Max, Capitol 5831 for appointment.

And now, my Anne, since I have shared with you some of my shopping treasures, I hope you are going to answer with a nice long visit this week with your

HONEYMOON CAR COUPLE HELD IN CAR THEFT

The law, which never recognizes romance, took grim cognizance of 20-year-old Marian Allen of Walton, N.Y., and her youthful sweetheart, Anthony Madeiros, in Municipal court today, and the couple were held in $2500 each for the grand jury.

The pair, arrested in New Hampshire in a "honeymoon" car which the police allege was stolen, clutched each other's hands tightly and winced when Judge Parmenter ordered them held. The girl is crippled by rheumatism and uses a crutch.

They had no lawyer and made no statement in their defense, with the result they were led away to Charles st. jail in lieu of bail.

SQUANTUM GAS TANKS GRANTED OVER PROTEST

By unanimous action, it was announced today from the office of Mayor Thomas F. McGrath, the Quincy City Council has voted to grant a gasoline storage permit to the Victory Terminal Company of Squantum.

There was considerable opposition to the project from Squantum and Atlantic residents when it was first announced, but after it was pointed out that the tanks would not be located near dwellings, the opposition was withdrawn.

The company plans to erect 12 tanks for storage of oil and gasoline.

PIANIST TO PLAY

Miss Helen Otis, radio pianist, who will play at the benefit concert in aid of the fund for the family of the late Senator John B. Cashman of East Boston.

PLAN BENEFIT IN E. BOSTON

Two East Boston committees, one of 100 men of the district and the other of 100 women and girls, are working for the benefit concert and entertainment for the family of the late Senator John B. Cashman. The event will be held at the Chelsea Armory on November 1.

Senator Cashman died recently, leaving a widow and three young children. His savings were exhausted during his illness.

A host of friends came to the aid of the family, and formed plans for the benefit.

Contributions to the relief fund may be sent to Alfred E. Wellington, treasurer of the Columbia Trust Company, Meridian st., East Boston.

Many talented performers have volunteered their services for the benefit, among them Miss Helen Otis, radio pianist; Jimmy Maloney and "Honeyboy" Finnegan, ring stars, and the Picardy Four, a well known Boston quartet.

LONDON 'FREE' TO PRIMATE

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—The city fathers at historic Guildhall honored the Archbishop of Canterbury today on the eve of his retirement by presenting him the freedom of the city of London.

The ceremony was performed with all the ancient usage before a brilliant gathering of guests including members of the Cabinet and heads of all religious denominations.

The city chamberlain, Sir Adrian Pollock, in making the presentation referred to the aged prelate's long and distinguished career during which he became the trusted friend and adviser of three sovereigns and the first primate in English history to resign his great office in favor of a younger man. This, he said, was an act of self-sacrifice entirely characteristic of the archbishop's life.

BISHOPS REPORT NEED OF MILITANT CAMPAIGN

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The final joint session of the house of bishops and deputies, the lawmaking bodies of the Protestant Episcopal Church in general convention here, was called today to discuss reports on the world conference on faith and order held at Lausanne, Switzerland, this year and plans for the evangelistic campaign in 1929.

The report of the joint commission which promoted the conference recommends that the work be continued. The need of a militant campaign for Christian living has been particularly emphasized by Bishops Charles P. Anderson of Chicago, Charles Fiske of Central New York and William G. McDowell of Alabama, who have prepared a report showing heavy losses of communicants.

NEW QUAKE DAMAGES BEDROOM OF MORROW

Mexico City, Oct. 22 (AP)—The earthquake battered bedroom of Dwight W. Morrow, American ambassador, is being repaired again. The walls and ceiling of his sleeping quarters in the embassy residence have been cracked three times this year by earthquakes. Mr. Morrow has never been in the bedroom at the time. After each jolt the repairs have been scarcely completed when another temblor has reopened the cracks or caused new ones. The damage has not been serious or dangerous, and other parts of the embassy residence and the office building have been cracked even less than this particular bedroom.

CONGRESS ST. RAID CAUSES FINES FOR TWO

Herbert McGlinchey of the North End was fined $100 and given a six months' suspended sentence and Harry Walker was fined $50 and given a two months' suspended sentence when both were convicted in municipal court today of keeping and exposing liquor. Joseph Lo-Main, who was arrested with the other two in a Congress st. office, was found not guilty and was discharged.

SURVEY SHOWS INCREASING PROSPERITY

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—The general prosperity of the nation received a convincing substantiation here today at the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers through a report on a survey which showed 93 per cent of 4000 manufacturers with an increase in business over last year. Nearly 20 per cent of those answering the questionnaire declared trade conditions are excellent and forecast continued expansion.

Every industry and product reported upon makes a better showing for the 12 months than the respective did a year ago. What was considered as a significant fact was that the building supply concerns do not show that the building trades have decreased activities.

A slight improvement in the textile industry, one which has been regarded as a weak spot, is shown. Eighty-eight per cent of the textile men report favorable conditions, compared with 83 per cent last year. Better expectations for winter trade are harbored by 94 per cent of the nation's industrialists.

A. P. Bush of the American rooling mill of Middletown, O., declared the stabilization of employment of both labor and capital was one of the paramount problems before the country today. Particularly the purchasing power of the working man should be made on a firm and steady basis, he said.

FINDS "$250" PEARL IN OYSTER STEW

R in October stands for oyster, but it ought to have something also to do with luck, according to William Luther Norton, stereotyper, employed on the Boston Evening American. Finishing up a 40-cent oyster stew in a downtown restaurant today, he found himself spooning up a big pearl.

Friends told Norton it was worth at least $250, so he decided he would ferret out an expert later and get a valuation by him.

SOMERVILLE'S VOTING LIST IS INVESTIGATED

Campaign issues in Massachusetts were temporarily forgotten today as a corps of investigators in Somerville scanned the municipal birth lists for evidence of wholesale registration frauds charged to Democrats by Francis Prescott, chairman of the Republican State committee.

Prescott, in a letter to the Boston election commissioners, asserted that hundreds of young men and women under 21 have been illegally enrolled on Hub voting lists by giving fictitious ages and demanded a checkup of all registrations recorded in the recent registration drive.

A similar situation is said by Republicans to exist in Somerville and Republican leaders are prepared to demand a probe into the registration records of every city and large town in the Commonwealth.

Ex-Mayor James M. Curley took a fling at Prescott's allegations in the following statement:

"Those charges are an insult to every intelligent voter in the State. Everyone knows that registration committees, by law, are required to be composed of representatives of both political parties.

"The Republicans are 'on the run' and they, by these allegations, are offering advance apologies for the defeat of the ticket in Massachusetts in November."

SEIZURE OF 2 RUM SHIPS UPHELD BY HIGH COURT

Washington, Oct. 22 (INS)—New challenges by foreign ship owners were rejected by the Supreme Court today in denying review of a lower court decision sustaining seizure of the French schooner Mistinguette and the British schooner Rosie M. B. in Long Island Sound.

Owners contended the Mistinguette was observed within the three-mile limit by coast guards, but was not captured until four and one half miles off shore. She was seized for failure to produce a manifest. The Rosie M. B. was boarded 11 miles off shore.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drug creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies in coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

INTERPRETING THE SPIRIT OF AMERICA

RESTLESS, unsatisfied, unafraid, America has marched swiftly and triumphantly through the years in unceasing pursuit of its national ideals. Considering, not whether a thing can be done, but whether it should be done, then doing it—that has been, and is, the Spirit of America.

Every institution, every newspaper, that hopes to interpret this spirit must be, in its policies, as progressive and as fearless as the public it hopes to serve.

In their militant and courageous editorial championing of the public interest, Hearst Newspapers have given the world a new journalism, because a new journalism was needed—one that recognizes the necessity for newspapers published in the special interest of no class or creed—no party or person—but for the whole people, always.

Hearst Newspapers, beginning with the first, in 1887, have held firmly to this conviction. Today, forty-one years later, in eighteen key cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, twenty-eight Hearst Newspapers, entering over five million homes and read by more than 20,000,000 people, still place the public welfare above all else—still hold an unbounded faith in their country's future.

Close to the heart of America, understanding and sympathizing with its desires and hopes, Hearst Newspapers strive to reflect accurately the spirit of its people. As evidence of their success in doing this, more than one-fifth of the entire newspaper reading public of America today, as a matter of personal preference, believe in, and look to, Hearst Newspapers for information, inspiration, and leadership.

It is a mighty responsibility for any institution to carry. It is an honored work, this, to interpret the will and promote the welfare of a great people moving on to a great destiny.

WOULD ERADICATE CANCER BY SCIENTIFIC MATING

Chicago, Oct. 22 (Universal)—A world of mice reigns in an old house at the edge of the University of Chicago campus. And in that house a little woman with gray hair, grayed in years of unremittent service to one of the greatest services of mankind—the fight against cancer—conducts her experiments.

She is Dr. Maud Slye, associated professor of pathology at the university. For more than 19 years she has been devoting her efforts to the study of cancer in mice, which startlingly resembles in fundamental details the dread disease as it afflicts human beings.

This quiet, solitary woman fighter in a great cause has already established a world-wide reputation. Her findings have shown that susceptibility to cancer is hereditary.

She has in fact established the important theory that scientific mating of human beings will prove a vital factor in eliminating the cause of the disease from the race. She believes that this theory, applied the world over, would eradicate cancer in two generations.

The old house in which she is conducting her experiments is unique. It is bare of furniture, save for a rough wooden table or two. What formerly had been a sumptuously furnished living room, dining room, kitchen and bedroom are today filled to capacity with cages full of mice on which Dr. Slye has been experimenting.

133 DIED IN ONE FAMILY

On a table in one of the rooms a mouse was running frantically about in the confines of a cage, adding its squeaks to the weird din that constantly fills the house.

"Here's a little fellow," said Dr. Slye, reaching into the cage and hauling the wee creature out, "whose family history I know almost by heart. See that lump under his neck? That's a thyroid cancer. He's the 28th generation of the family labelled JD-306,268. We number our mice families in order to follow their respective histories from generation to generation.

CAREFUL MATING

"This creature's ancestors were also stricken with thyroid cancer. Eleven of the 133 membe of this particular family died of it. This mouse's own grandmother had it but his parents escaped it, just as it happens among human beings. Cancer, you know, will skip a generation and then recur, just that way.

"After studying 28 generations of this mouse's family I found that the first thyroid malignancy occurred in the fourth generation. I must watch this little creature closely all the time, for at any moment the tumor may shut off his breath and end his life."

The remarkable little woman then pointed to another cage. "There's a mother with eight healthy children," she said. "The mother, as you see, is taking a siesta. Both she and her little mice are free of the disease. I've kept track of her family tree, which includes 200 mice, and none of them had cancer."

It is interesting to learn that from an original ancestry of twenty mice, Dr. Slye has raised more than 80,000 of the little animals, some of them with family trees which she recorded for more than 100 generations. While the life of a mouse ordinarily is about three or four months, some have lived as long as two and even three years in the laboratory, thanks to the care given them by the famous scientist.

By means of careful mating, she has been able to eradicate cancer from mouse families in which the disease was formerly prevalent. Also, she has successfully bred the disease into other families.

"A male and a female mouse wholly resistent to cancer will have children completely free of it also," she said. "And if a mouse that is susceptible to cancer is mated with one that is not, the children also will be exempt. But because of the parent that was susceptible to the disease, the children that are themselves exempt are capable of transmitting it to their offspring if they are mated with cancer-susceptible mice. This shows conclusively that the same method of mating applied to the human race would yield desired results."

The laboratory is ruled with an iron hand by the soft-spoken scientist. With her assistants, she maintains a regime of cleanliness and order, so that nothing will interfere with the results of the experiments. The laboratory is kept evenly at a temperature of 74. The cages are sterilized every week.

Food is given to the creatures once a day, together with sterilized drinking water. Each mouse is given a small cube of bread soaked in doubly Pasteurized milk. And to balance the diet each case is equipped with a bowl containing a mixture of hay and birdseed.

Every mouse that dies is subjected to a rigorous autopsy, and the cause of death determined to the last degree.

CHEESE GINGERBREAD IS GOOD THESE DAYS, SAYS MARTHA LEE

CHEESE IMPROVES MANY A DISH—GINGERBREAD FOR INSTANCE

Beverage Is Help

WHAT brain does for the world beverages do for the body. All food authorities tell us that two quarts of liquid a day are a health essential, but too few of us seem to take this with the seriousness it deserves. Perhaps, because two quarts of liquid—eight glasses—seems such a tremendous amount, especially if you think of it as just plain water.

A pleasant way to make sure of this daily intake of two quarts of water, is the happy habit of ginger ale—cleansing, refreshing, pure and healthful—the summer and winter beverage.

Ginger ale is not only good to drink but good for you, since it is an excellent stimulator of the very necessary gastric juices. Not only is it a delicious drink, but it can be used to excellent advantage in combinations with fruit juices such as oranges, lemon and grapefruit.

I prefer a mild ginger ale of the pale variety—the kind there's always a supply of in the Martha Lee Kitchen. I know that this brand does not contain strong condiments that tend to irritate the system.

I know that it comes from a plant recognized for its cleanliness, where human contact is entirely eliminated and where the ginger flavor comes from the real ginger root and not from pepsin.

This ginger ale is healtful for every member of the family, not forgetting the kiddies.

My doctor friend tells me that the children who don't like milk he is finding half milk and half ginger ale is a delightful way of getting sufficient milk into their little system.

Recipe for Savory Crab on Toast

Mix 2 tbsps. of butter with 2 tbsps. flour. Stir to a cream. Add 1 pint of rich milk or light cream or evaporated milk diluted 1-3 with water. Season with salt, pepper, paprika and a dash of grated onion. To this mixture add 2 hard-boil'd eggs thoroughly chopped and 3 green peppers cut lengthwise into very narrow strips.

Stir in 1 can of Japaneses crab meat, and 1 wine glass of tomato ketchup. Beat this in a heavy saucepan and when it bubbles add ½-c. of mild grated cheese. Serve hot on buttered toast points.

Onions and Potatoes Combine Well Thusly

Boil one pound potatoes and one pound onions until tender. Drain and mash smooth. Season with salt, pepper and 4 tbsps. butter. Beat in two well beaten eggs. Arrange in glass baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs. Bake till brown. Serve for luncheon or supper with grated cheese and sliced fresh tomatoes.

Rule for Using of Soda With Molasses

The general rule for using soda with molasses is a half teaspoon of soda to each cup of molasses. With a certain molasses we know only one half this amount of soda is needed because this molasses has not fermented and no sulphur compound has been added to bleach or preserve it.

Natural Sugars Are Very Beneficial

Sugar is a most effective energy food, easily digested and active in assisting the assimilation of other food substances. Natural sugars are especially beneficial. That's why molasses, honey and maple sugar should be a part of every complete diet.

Molasses in Rules

ONE of the most frequent questions that comes to me in the Martha Lee Kitchen is "Where can I buy molasses that will give me the kind of gingerbread my mother used to make?" and we are pleased to display our blue and white can which may be found at almost any grocers.

This molasses that we prefer is the pure juice of West Indies sugar cane, fully ripened no sugar is removed and the molasses contains only the original cane juice, so that it is considerably sweeter than ordinary molasses and therefore more economical to use.

This molasses contains no sulphur-dioxide, preservative or other foreign substance. It never has a burned bitter taste, but it's delicious natural flavor and rich gold in color gives food a pleasing flavor and appetizing appearance. Because it is rich in natural vegetable and mineral properties, fruit sugar and vitamins B., this molasses is an especially helpful food for all. Sugar we know is a valuable energy food, but all sugar when taken into the stomach are converted into fruit sugars before digested.

As a large part of the sugar in this molasses is already fruit sugar form, it is a very easily assimilated food, and its pleasing sweet flavor can be enjoyed without over-loading the system with sugar. Here are some favorite molasses recipes that I hope you will try:

Cheese Gingerbread—1 cup molasses, 1-3 cup minced cheese, ½ cup water, 2 cups flour or barley flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon ginger.

Heat the molasses and cheese in a double boiler. When the cheese is melted, remove from the fire. Add the other ingredients. Bake 15 minutes in muffin tins.

Peanut Gingerbread—1 egg, ½ cup shortening, ½ cup brown sugar, ¾ cup molasses, 2 cups flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. each ginger baking powder, ¼ tsp. each ginger sweet milk, 1 cup ground peanuts.

Beat egg well with shortening, brown sugar and molasses and spices, add milk and flour (baking powder and salt sifted into the flour) and peanuts last. Sprinkle top with peanuts. Bake 20 minutes in hot oven. If this is liked more zippy, add another ¼ tsp. ginger.

Nut Bread—2 cups graham flour, 1 cup bread flour, 1 level tsp. salt, 1 level tsp. soda, 1 cup milk, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup chopped walnut meats.

Mix dry ingredients, add molasses, milk, nuts. Bake in moderate oven 45 minutes.

Ice Cream Cake

"WHAT shall I serve to surprise the girls at the next meeting of our bridge club?" writes a September bride, and I hastened to suggest one of those new and delicious ice cream cakes.

These come in two sizes—for 10 or 15 servings. They look like a glorified birthday cake, but are really a combination of rich, ice cream flavors.

Over the solid cake of varied ice cream is arranged a whipped cream trimming and flowers or other designs in delicate colors. This ice cream comes to you in a container in which it may be kept hard for several hours.

When ready to serve, simply slice it as you would ordinary cake and serve on a cake dish with macaroons and spoon. Makes a delicious Thanksgiving dessert, too.

Individual Sausage Rolls Made Thusly

Take one cup each of cold roast veal, corn beef, or one cup each of boned chicken and ox tongue. Either of these combinations is delicious. Put the meat through the food chopper. Then add one teaspoon powdered sweet herbs, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon paprika and one cup chopped green olives.

Make a pie crust or a baking powder dough. Cut the pastry into circles and on each put three tablespoons of the meat mixture. Roll the pastry and pinch the ends firmly together, moistening them if necessary. Bake one-half hour in hot oven.

Parsley Butter Sandwiches Good

Cream ¼ c. minced parsley with 1 c. of butter. Spread the butter on slices of white bread. Put the slices together and cut in stripe.

Lesson by a Chef

IT has become quite the thing in circles epicure to gather frequently at an immaculate Italian restaurant down on Hanover st., particularly on those nights when ravioli is the specialty.

Such antipastos, minestrone, scallopines, ravioli, spaghetti with an endless variety of mouth-watering sauces, topped off with inimitable black coffee.

Probably many of you have already guessed that I am speaking of the Como Restaurant at 240 Hanover st.—the one I've spoken of several times in the Martha Lee Cooking School.

And now you are going to be able to sample this distinctively delicious cookery, for Mr. Daniel DeCain, manager of Como Restaurant, has kindly persuaded Chef Luigi Giassetti to take charge of the cookery lesson in the Martha Lee Kitchen next Wednesday at 2 p. m.

Of course, I wish that you all could visit this "different" dining place—and, by the way, it is exceptionally well ordered and entirely suitable for ladies with or without escort.

I would like you to go through the kitchen, fitted with every up-to-date appliance. But next best will be to come to the Martha Lee Kitchen next Wednesday to learn the secret of real Italian cookery. Where is the American housewife who can produce spaghetti of true Italian flavor?

As the farmer said of the giraffe, "there ain't no sich animal"—that I have ever seen. But there will be after next Wednesday, for Chef Giasetti is going to teach us a quickly prepared Italian sauce that will glorify the perfectly cooked spaghetti.

Then, too, he will prepare Scaloppine al Burro "Piccante," Spiedine di Mozzarella alla Romana and Chicken Lobster alla Cacciatore.

It certainly should not be necessary to repeat this invitation to come to this lesson, for I am sure you will all recognize it is a real opportunity and be on hand early for a front seat next Wednesday.

Swedish Peanut Wafers Are Worth Trying

Cream one-half cup butter and one-half cup peanut butter, add one-half cup sugar and cream again. Add one well beaten egg and one and one-third cups flour sifted with a few grains of salt. Add one-fourth teaspoon lemon extract, chill and roll out very thin. Cut in small rounds, press a peanut in the center of each and bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, for 8 to 10 minutes.

Will Add to Menu

THIRTY-THREE thousand five hundred and sixty-four women compose the original Martha Lee Women's Club and I believe that practically all of them are familiar with a favorite cracker which we serve so frequently in the Martha Lee Kitchen at 5 Winthrop sq.

This is a delicious whole wheat cracker, delicately buttered and salted and equally good for young and old, would-be-thins or would-be-plumps, since whole wheat is conditioning food.

There is really no meal in the day at which this cracker cannot be appropriately served. In reducing diets it is used with the morning cup of clear coffee. For luncheon it is indispensable with soups and salad. For the afternoon tea it is indescribably delicious with sandwich spread.

With the after-dinner cheese and coffee it is ideal and for the bed-time snacks it gives insurance of dreamless sleep. Personally I often substitute it for my breakfast toast, repeat it with my luncheon salad and dinner soup and again with milk at bed time; and never tire of them.

A. & P. HAS 69TH ANNIVERSARY

Colorful decoration of Greater Boston A. & P. stores informs their thousands of customers this week that the country-wide grocery organization is celebrating the 69th anniversary of its founding.

In the fall of 1859 George Huntington Hartford opened his first branch on Vesey st., New York, the seed of a chain store idea which has rooted itself deeply into the hearts of the American public.

As has been its annual custom for years, the A. & P. Tea Co. fittingly marks this milestone in its history.

To commemorate the inception of the company, gala sales are held and the public is cordially invited to participate in the birthday party.

Low prices on popular nationally advertised merchandise will prevail and local food products, priced at a saving week in and week out throughout the rest of the year, will be offered at considerably greater savings.

The company announces that all during this week the anniversary sale will continue and promises to make it the greatest of its kind heretofore held.

Canada is now under development by the A. & P. chain and stores are being opened at close intervals in Quebec and Ontario.

There, as in the United States, the organization is meeting with a generous patronage.

HENRY G. CROSBYS ARRIVE NEXT MONTH FOR VISIT—BETTY ALDEN

Much Traveled Couple, as a Rule, Shun Popular Resorts, Seeking Picturesque and Out-of-the-Way Spots

BOSTON, IT APPEARS, STILL OCCUPIES A CHERISHED place in the world-wide itinerary followed by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grew Crosby. They are coming here at some more or less indefinite date in November and plan a more or less indefinite stay, after the fanfare of trumpets sounded by certain of Boston's opulent and socially dictatorial ones has died away. In the past few years not so very frequently, nor yet for so very long, have these two so interesting personalities tarried in Boston's Belgravia. Nor, for that matter, in any known Belgravia between Boston and Vladivostok! Social amenities and the game's tinsel sparkle have not been one quarter so diverting to the Crosbys as old frontiers to cross and odd and little sung hinterlands to find.

FLEETING SOCIAL TRIUMPHS IN LONDON, BIARRITZ, Rome or Alexandria held them only temporarily. Since the S. V. R. Crosbys' son espoused the stunning Mrs. Mary Jacob Peabody they've made a zigzag trail across two hemispheres, and set up temporary establishments in many climes. To the more stay-at-home, everyday, commuting sort of person there's infinite glamor about such places as Reykjavik, in Iceland, and Sakia in Persia. And glamor to a Paris apartment as way station between thousands of miles flights. These and other spots which have been home to the Crosbys while Mrs. Crosby indulged a gift for writing and so added to many faceted personality the sparkle of artistic merit.

ROVING THE WORLD IS NOT, OF COURSE, A FAMILY PASTIME confined solely to the younger Crosbys. The seniors, Stephen Van Rensselaer Crosby and Mrs. Crosby (born Grew) have a Boston address in that exclusive Beacon st. stretch, where many windowed mansions lift tall fronts to the Garden's waving tree tops. And they go abroad and up and down with all the amazing nonchalance and frequency possible only to the coupon cutting ones. Before she became Mrs. Crosby, the former Miss Jacob was Mrs. "Dicky" Peabody and so daughter-in-law to the J. C. R. Peabodys. The Crosby-Peabody alliance in 1923 animated tea table chatter tremendously in Boston's best drawing rooms.

IN FARAWAY PAU ALBERT FELIX SCHMITT, GIFTED WITH the brush when beautiful or interesting lineaments are to be transferred to eternal canvas, girds himself for new artistic triumphs. Portraitist to beau monde, its fair women and distinguished men, Mr. Schmitt finds vastly inspiring such a subject as the Marquis de la Real-Defensa, son to the Comte and Comtesse de Guendulian and high favorite in the King of Spain's close circle. A few months hence the sittings commence, when these Spanish near royalties have concluded a stay at one or another of their several "castles in Spain" and are back again in Pau's salubrious atmosphere.

MR. AND MRS. SCHMITT, ERSTWHILE CANTABRIGIANS, living abroad indefinitely and now at Pau, contemplate the exciting possibilities of a forthcoming visit in Spain with the Comte and Comtesse de Guendulian. Royal favor is sure to be theirs, since the Comtesse is cousin to the Infanta Isabel and so closely connected with the genial and popular King of the Asturias himself. And a visit to Spain also means the rare and delightful prospect of seeing first hand, and at immense leisure, the countless treasures of tapestries, paintings and furnishings scattered through the castles that are the family heritage of the Comte and Comtesse.

HERE IN A DEMOCRACY WITH A PRESIDENT ABOUT TO be balloted for it may not be so important as interesting to note the Almanach de Gotha mentions the Comte's first wife as the Duchesse de Saragossa, through whom he inherited some of the furniture and art treasures from Malmaison, country home of the ill starred Josephine and her Emperor. Who knows? Perhaps a Schmitt portrait may become part of these princely treasures, to be a tomorrow's heirloom. Surely such is fame sufficient for any artist. Mr. and Mrs. Schmitt are enjoying to the fullest the present day diversions of this mundane sphere—recently they have been to Luchon, tucked away in a pocket of the snow-capped Pyrenees, not too far from Pau.

A JAMAICA PLAIN HILLTOP IS NOT A SARANAC, BUT FOR Miss Martina Brandegee, daughter of the Edward L. Brandegees of Faulkner Farm, it makes a very good substitute during the present autumn and early winter. Miss Brandegee has come down from New York's much-vaunted highland climate and will be for a time at least at her parents' magnificent estate where Brookline and Jamaica Plain merge in a countrylike vista quite surprising, remembering that Boston's busy center is a scant 10 miles away. Miss Brandegee was slated to come out three or so seasons ago, but that pleasurable excitement has been deferred until such time as she is fully brought back to health in Saranac's bracing air.

MARIO BRAGGIOTTI OF BOSTON, PARIS AND LONDON IS A gifted young man. The dispenser of talents and graces was inordinately generous to him, so his present success in London's social and artistic circles surprises his friends not at all. Mr. Braggiotti has particularly the gift of musical authorship. Already he has written an operetta that delighted international society at Biarritz and set him on a pedestal with the London set, which ever hails youthful genius exhuberantly. The operatic effusion is likely to be heard about wherever fashion and wealth mingle. Should he and his sisters combine forces, his music and their dancing, artistic results would be the pleasantest imaginable.

THE IMMEDIATE DAYS from the "in aid of" angle lend significance of life's more serious thing, to all the jollity hinging on an "Army-Harvard" week-end. The neophyte warriors from up the Hudson have taken a well ordered departure to their garrison fastness and the week moves serenely on in its assured beneficent way. Gracious ladies lending their time and their presence to pet causes sign checks, serve or receive with a pleasantness marvelous to behold, since such demands are almost unceasing. Mrs. Morgan Butler and Mrs. E. E. Clive are asked to sit behind the gleaming silver tea things tomorrow afternoon, at No. 1 Marlborough st., home of the Charlotte Cushman Club.

MRS B. H. BRISTOW DRAPER, Mrs. Elliot Wadsworth, Mrs. Charles H. Innes, Mrs. James E. Noyes and Mrs. Malcolm French will be in the receiving line, at intervals, when friends and well wishers of the club drop in at its first reception of the autumn. Very splendidly housed in its Marlborough st. domicile is the Charlotte Cushman Club, present day memorial to a yesterday's stage star and good angel. Delightfully appointed and arranged, the club is a fruition of unceasing effort committee and sponsors may well be proud of.

EVEN WITH A ROUND hundred or more of buds on this year's debutante list, matrons with a "list" of ushers or waitresses to complete, scurry about corraling some of last year's set! So it is with the group that will more or less efficiently, but always cheerfully, do a good turn at ushering when Lowell Thomas speaks on Nov. 8 at Symphony Hall for Norfolk House Centre. "This way, please," will be the ready phrase murmured by Miss Polly Beale, Miss Rose Bryant, Miss Katherine Adams, Miss Susan Moller, Miss Laura Robbins, Miss Josephine Sturgis, Miss Edith Eustis, Miss Mary Eustis, Miss Martha Wigglesworth, Miss Winifred Thorndike and Miss Gretel Zinsser, who between them represent this year's and last year's sets about equally. Miss Sarah G. Bradley directs.

Mrs. Gulesian Gives World New Melody

"Does money mean happiness?" "No!" answers Mrs. M. H. Gulesian, composer, pianist and playwright. "Money isn't everything; faith breeds contentment, out of contentment comes spirituality; and these three are the basis of creative power."

The gods of music and drama talk to but few of us mortals, and then, oh so very rarely and Grace Gulesian is their mouthpiece, one of their favorites. She gives the world a new melody to dance to or sing, and this to her spells happiness.

More than 14,000 copies have already been sold of the song, "The House by the Side of the Road," of which Mrs. Gulesian composed the music. Lightly she has bound on the sandals of success and climbed to peaks to which most of us never dare to aspire. She has written plays, the score for several musical comedies, "It's a Swoon 2000," "Follow the Crowd," Nancy Brewster "Ballet of Bacchus and Nubi," "The Sea Hath Its Pearls," and "The Tom Cat." In less than a week people will be humming or strumming her new "Set 3," which consists of "The Parrot," "Brittany Love Song," and one with the intriguing title of "One Golden April Morning."

Mrs. Gulesian has given freely of her time and services to help along the good work of the various clubs to which she belongs, the National League of American Penwomen, the Professional Women's Club, the Quota, the D. A. R., the Chrysalis, the Johanna Aspinwall Chapter, etc.

Mistress of one of the show places on Commonwealth ave., and one of the shining lights of the music world, she has a way of taking at you through those changeable blue eyes of hers, a friendly, personal, like-you sort of look that makes you feel at home instantly, whether you have known her an hour or a lifetime.

BRITAIN DENIES 'SECRET' PACT WITH FRANCE

London, Oct. 22 (INS)—An official "White Paper," containing a comprehensive outline of the disarmament negotiations leading to the signing of the Franco-British naval accord, will be issued by the foreign office at 5:30 p. m. tonight.

The White Paper, it was said, will contain extracts from the minutes of the meeting of the preparatory disarmament commission in Geneva, and will reveal the conditions of the impasse which that commission reached on both naval and military disarmament, owing to the divergence of views held by the British and French governments.

The paper also will reveal, it was said, that the preparatory disarmament commission was fully cognizant of the discussions going on between London and Paris, leading to the conclusion of the accord.

The paper will make clear from internal evidence and correspondence that there is no foundation for the allegation that England and France aimed at secret agreement.

Furthermore, the paper will point out that Great Britain and France receded from their former positions only because they desired to find a basis upon which the work of the disarmament commission could be resumed.

They hope that the new basis would prove strong enough to satisfy the other nations interested in the progress of disarmament and that it would lead to definite results.

WHITE HOUSE DINNER, NOV. 8

Washington, Oct. 22—President and Mrs. Coolidge are going to get the social calendar cleaned up in a jiffy, this year and are, thereby, going to establish a precedent for starting the Washington social season at an unusually early date and ending it equally as early.

Two days after election, on Nov. 5, a full month before the usual time, the first of the season's social functions will be held at the White House with a dinner to the Cabinet members. The last function of the season will be on Jan. 24 when the annual Army and Navy reception will be held at the White House.

Ordinarily, the social season begins about the middle of December and continues until Lent but the Coolidges know they are going to move from the White House on March 4 and they want ample time to pack up and get ready to leave. Hence the unusual social calendar.

The official schedule follows:

Nov. 5, 8 p. m., Cabinet dinner; Nov. 15, 9 p. m., diplomatic reception; Nov. 22, 8 p. m., diplomatic dinner; Dec. 6, 8 p. m., judicial reception; Dec. 12, 9 p. m., Supreme Court dinner; Jan. 1, 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., New Year's reception; Jan. 10, 9 p. m., Congressional reception; Jan. 17, 1 p. m., Speaker's dinner; Jan. 24, 9 p. m., Army and Navy reception.

CONCORD AUTO VICTIM MAY BE FROM HUB

A man, believed to be a member of the Lithuanian Club of South Boston, or to have friends who are members, was struck and killed by an automobile in Powder Mill rd., Concord, early today. He died soon after removal to Emerson Hospital.

His body was removed to Dee's undertaking establishment by order of Medical Examiner Dr. Henry Wolcott. The only addresses found upon his person were those of the South Boston Lithuanian Club and "P. Oretsis" at a South Boston address. Inquiry at the latter address showed there was no one there of that name.

Charles W. Murphy, 37, of Hositen, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and driving so as to endanger the public. He was released on bail and will be arraigned in Concord court tomorrow.

PARALYZED SON SLAIN; SOVIET FREES FATHER

Moscow, Oct. 22 (INS)—A father who murdered his four-year-old invalid son by feeding him arsenic in a sandwich has been technically acquitted by the Moscow district court after a trial of three days.

It was the second time within a month that Soviet courts, deviating from the letter of the law, sanctioned parental extermination of infants destined for a life of misery.

Alex Trofimov, a factory worker, walked into a police station and casually remarked:

"Arrest me, I have poisoned my son."

After his arrest Trofimov confessed that, while his wife was at work in a factory, he mixed arsenic and spread it upon a piece of bread for his little son, Sergei. The boy, he said, was suffering from an incurable paralysis of the brain.

ZEPPELIN CREW IS ACCLAIMED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 22 (INS)—Cheering throngs lined Chicago's sidewalks today to welcome Dr. Hugo Eckener and his dauntless crew of the Graf Zeppelin. In the assemblage were more than 450,000 citizens of Teutonic origin, who greeted the heroes as their own.

Dr. Hugo Eckener and his crew will spend the day in official visitations and sightseeing.

At noon they were to leave the Union League Club and ride to the City Hall for an official welcome to Chicago by Mayor William Hale Thompson and his Cabinet.

From there the party will journey to the Bismarck Hotel, where they will be luncheon guests of several German American societies. Later the party will make a private automobile tour of the city and an inspection of Chicago airports.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the visitors will attend a banquet at the Stevens Hotel, where Dr. Eckener will discuss plans for aerial development, including the building by the American company of two great ships for the United States navy at the cost of $5,000,000.

Paul Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire Company and the Goodyear Zeppelin Company, a subsidiary of the German company that built the giant airship, will also be a banquet guest.

At 9 p. m. Dr. Eckener and his air conquerors will leave Chicago for Lakehurst on the Gotham Limited.

WALES' AIDE SUFFERS COLLAPSE IN AFRICA

Nairobi, Kenya, British East Africa, Oct. 22 (AP)—Brig.-Gen. G. F. Trotter, aide to the Prince of Wales, is recovering from a heart attack and collapse which he suffered in the midst of the present African tour, but is returning to England at the earliest opportunity.

The Prince, who was most anxious about the general's condition, stayed all night at his bedside and only agreed to continue the trip after being assured of his aide's welfare. The Prince is now reported to be in the heart of the elephant country.

"HARD-BOILED VIRGINS" AUTHOR DIES IN N. Y.

New York, Oct. 22—Frances Newman, author of "The Hard-Boiled Virgin," died here today. Her death brought to an end one of the most interesting careers among younger American writers. Ill for four years since publication of her first short story, "Rachel and Her Children," and its selection by the O. Henry Memorial Committee as the best American story of its length in 1924, she rose to the position of one of the most widely discussed contemporary novelists.

50,000 CROATS TO FIGHT OFF RULE OF BELGRADE

Vienna, Oct. 22 (INS)—The week-end rally of 50,000 peasants at Fisek, Croatia, in support of the movement for autonomy caused a profound impression, according to advices from Agram (Zagreb) today. Leaders of the Peasant-Democratic party declared the fight would go on to end Belgrade's rule over Croatia and to carry out the program of the late Stefan Raditch for a vast union of the Slavs of Jugoslavia and Bulgaria.

ONE BOAT CAPTURED IN NIAGARA RUM BLOCKADE

Buffalo, Oct. 22 (AP)—A blockade against rum-runners maintained for the last week on the Niagara river netted one capture over the week-end. A customs patrol boat seized a motorboat loaded with ale and whiskey and arrested its crew of two men, who described themselves as Harry and Robert Stirling, no address. The blockade was strengthened by addition of ten boats.

MONEY MAKER NOT ALWAYS OF HIGH INTELLIGENCE

New Haven, Oct. 22—Leon F. Whitney, secretary of the American Eugenic Society, is inclined to the belief that the ability to accumulate money is not necessarily associated with high intelligence.

A survey of an unnamed Eastern seaboard city revealed to him that many subnormal children have fathers of good money-making ability.

BURNED AS PUNISHMENT

HER MOTHER FACES COURT TOMORROW
Irene Ashworth, eight, is showing her hands which were burned, it is alleged, by her mother, Mrs. Rose Ashworth of Bellville ave., New Bedford, to break off the child's "stealing habit." The parent, who is said to have admitted the burning, is anxious for her court hearing tomorrow.

GIRL'S MOTHER DEFENDS SELF

New Bedford, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Rose Ashworth, 27-year-old divorcee, today defended her action in holding the hands of her eight-year-old daughter, Irene, over the open flames of a gas stove because the child stole from playmates and took food from the pantries of neighbors.

"She had to be punished and I only held her hands over the flames to singe the skin a little so she would remember it. I didn't think I would burn her as bad as I did," the mother declared. "Anyhow, it's a pretty fix if a mother cannot correct her own child."

The mother will have additional opportunity to express her views on punishment tomorrow when she will be arraigned in court on the charge of cruelty and inhumanely mistreating the child, the charges having been brought by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

As an unwilling witness against her mother, little Irene, her blistered hands in bandages, will also appear in court.

Mrs. Ashworth, three years ago, secured a divorce from her husband on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. She went to live in a small flat with her two children.

Last week Irene was absent from school several days. When she returned to school both her hands were in bandages. To the questioning of her teacher she finally told her mother had burned her hands over the gas stove.

"Mama thought I was stealing things, but I wasn't. I just took them in fun," the little girl explained.

The case appeared so inhuman that Miss Carrie Footman, principal of the school, reported the matter to the authorities. An investigation resulted, but it was with extreme difficulty that the child would tell of her mother's action. Then followed the mother's arrest and her subsequent endeavor to vindicate her own action.

Post to Hold Bazaar

Following an afternoon of bridge the annual bazar of Herbert S. Wolf post, V. F. W., will be conducted tonight in the organization's new quarters, 20 Charlotte st., Dorchester. Proceeds of the affair will be used as a relief fund. The committee in charge looks forward to a big gathering and has arranged a fitting program.

U. S. SHUTS OFF SINCLAIR OIL

Washington, Oct. 22 (INS)—The Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company's government royalty oil supply in the Salt Creek field was cut off today under orders of the Interior Department.

The Sinclair contract, negotiated by former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and renewed by his successor, Hubert Work, now chairman of the Republican national committee, was held invalid by Atty.-Gen. Sargent.

CUDAHY HEIRS LOSE $222,000 TAX APPEAL

Washington, Oct. 22.(INS)—Twelve heirs of the estate of the late Patrick Cudahy of Milwaukee today lost an appeal to the Supreme Court for review of a Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision sustaining an inheritance tax on gifts made by Cudahy to heirs within six years of death. The tax amounted to $222,237.

WOUNDS WIFE, KILLS SON AND COMMITS SUICIDE

Detroit, Oct. 22 (INS)—Thomas Speeding, 47, today shot and killed his 15-year-old son, Russell, wounded his wife, Leona, 45, and then killed himself. Speeding is believed to have been mentally unbalanced by ill health. After shooting his wife and son, he went to the basement of his home and put a bullet through his head.

U. S. EXPERTS IN WORLD DOUBLE TAX PARLEY

Geneva, Oct. 22 (AP)—An international conference met today in an effort to deliver an effective blow at double taxation by which a person domiciled abroad must pay taxes both in his home country and in his place of residence.

The conference is composed of governmental delegates, the United States being represented by Prof. T. S. Adams of Yale University, Ellsworth C. Alvord of the Treasury Department and Mitchell B. Carroll of the Department of Commerce.

For years taxation experts, on invitation from the League of Nations, have been devising means for meeting finally the complicated problem of double taxation. With the assistance of American economists they framed four model conventions, two on double taxation, and two on tax evasion.

The first of the conventions on double taxation has to do with direct, real or personal taxes and the second is concerned with death duties which under the existing system two or more countries often seek to collect.

VAST SUMS AFFECTED.

Such vast sums of money are affected that governments have been careful to tell the League in advance that their presence at the conference cannot officially engage their future policy.

No hope is held of agreeing upon a general multilateral treaty, because tax systems differ in practically all countries.

The controlling principle of the main model convention before the conference is that people living abroad will pay taxes to the country whence comes their revenue.

HOW IT WORKS OUT

Mr. Mitchell, who is chief of the tax section of the Department of Commerce, explained the draft convention in this way: Levies on incomes are classified as "personal" and "impersonal." The impersonal taxes are to be levied in respect of a particular source of income in the country where the source is located. The personal taxes are to be levied on the individual's total income by the country where he resides.

Double taxation is prevented through allowing the state of origin to subject the item of income derived by a non-resident to only its impersonal tax, exempting such income from its personal tax. The State of residence of the recipient of the income is to exempt the foreign income from its impersonal tax but to subject such income to its personal tax.

Urge Fund of Millions for Women's Colleges

A joint endowment of many millions to increase the professorial salaries at Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Radcliffe and Wellesley is urged by Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College so that women students "may be taught by scholars of as high quality as those that instruct their brothers."

In a report to President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, Dean Gildersleeve today described a scheme which has been worked out by the four Massachusetts institutions, together with Barnard, Bryn Mawr and Vassar, by which they plan to distribute among themselves any gifts they may receive.

"The problem of financing a college for women will probably appear to be more difficult than that of financing a college for men," Dean Gildersleeve declares in her report, "because our graduates can contribute but little to our support.

"Women do not control, and perhaps never will control, much of the money of the world.

"The mere fact that we can cooperate, instead of engaging in ruinous competition, has already surprised and favorably impressed the community, and has attracted considerable attention to the whole problem of higher education of women."

FLOG AND BURN VICTIM IN OIL

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 22 (AP)—Ernest H. Sykes, 35, lay in a hospital today, his body a series of severe burns and his eyesight gone—victim of an attack of two unidentified assailants who waylaid him yesterday, dashed a bucket of gasoline over him and applied a match.

Sykes said he was on his way home when set upon by his assailants who held up his auto in the road. The assailants leaped into the car, Sykes declared, forced him to get out and then poured the gasoline on him and set his clothing on fire.

His condition is regarded as critical.

HARTMAN WILL BE ONLY CAMERAMAN ON ZEPP TRIP

When the giant dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, starts on her tour of the country next Thursday, Robert Hartman, the intrepid cameraman of the Hearst newsreels, M-G-M News and International Newsreel, will be aboard.

Just as Hartman was the only cameraman who made the trip on the Zeppelin across the Atlantic, so Hartman will be the only cameraman aboard on this trip. He will make motion and still pictures of all the towns and cities over which the Zeppelin passes and at which it stops, and these pictures will appear exclusively in the Hearst newsreels —M-G-M News and International Newsreel.

LEAVES FORTUNE MADE IN ONIONS; OMIT TEARS

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—There is money in shoes, ships, sealing wax and onion peeling. Much of the world of people who pick onions seems to have trod a path to the door of the late Peter Tyler of southeast London. His business was purchase of raw onions and the sale of them, peeled. He could neither read nor write, but died at the age of 70, leaving an estate of some $33,000. At first he and his wife did the peeling. Later he hired scores of people to do it.

MOVE AGAINST SEELEY SEWER CASE VERDICT

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—Motion to set aside the verdict was made late today by attorneys for Frederick H. Seeley, engineer, convicted with former Borough President Maurice E. Connolly in the Queens sewer scandal.

Justice Tompkins did not impose sentence on Seeley when he sentenced Connolly to a year in jail following a joint trial.

SIX KILLED IN AUTOS BY RAILROAD TRAINS

Chicago, Oct. 22 (INS)—More than six persons are dead here today as a result of week-end grade crossing accidents. An entire family of three was wiped out when a fast freight train struck a small sedan near Chicago. Two young men and a girl were killed as they were returning from a dance when their car was struck by a passenger train.

Fatal Plane Crash Leads to 'Rush' of 'Diamond Hunters'

Franklin, Pa., Oct. 22 (AP)—A postal inspector today was collecting diamonds which disappeared in a "rush" on the burned remains of the air mail plane in which a National Air Transport pilot fell to his death near Polk, Pa. The diamonds were part of the plane's mail cargo.

The plane, piloted by William C. Hopson, crashed and burned some time Thursday night. Souvenir hunters found a few diamonds in the wreckage and the rush was on. One man found four gems. When word reached postoffice authorities an inspector was sent here to recover the diamonds.

RUSSIA FIRM ON OIL STAND

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP)—Reiteration of Russia's determination not to change its attitude regarding the claims of former owners of Russian oil properties is contained in a statement made public today by the Soviet news agency Tass.

The statement concerns negotiations carried on in September between the Anglo-American oil group and the Russian oil syndicate, as well as the latter's branch, Russian Oil Products in England.

Tass says it is reliably informed that what broke up the negotiations which had as their object alleviation of acute competition on the English market was a demand presented by some of the negotiators that the oil syndicate pay 5 per cent discount on oil sales to be used as compensation of the former Russian oil owners.

BANKER SHOT DEAD BY FARMER IN HUNTING ROW

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Charles C. Cappellino, 67, a banker, is dead today and his confessed slayer, Edward Gascon, Jr., 41-year-old Henrietta farmer, is held in the Monroe County jail on a charge of murder. Gascon, according to authorities, shot the banker with the latter's shotgun after an argument about Cappellino's hunting license.

"I only wanted to tear off part of his shoulder and teach him a lesson," Gascon told deputy sheriffs after admitting the killing. The shooting occurred on a farm adjoining Gascon's, after the banker was ordered from Gascon's place.

ACOSTA'S WIFE ASKS FOR $6000 ALIMONY

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 22 (INS)—Mrs. Helen B. Acosta, through her attorney, Mordecai S. Jacobsen, today filed application for $6000 a year alimony and $1000 counsel fees pending trial of her suit for separation against Bert Acosta, member of the Byrd transatlantic flight.

The application was filed with Supreme Court Justice Charles J. Druhahn, who reserved decision. Jacobsen told the court Acosta had telephoned him asking for a postponement, but he did not wish to agree to it.

LINDY IS FLYING TO MEXICO ON 'BEAR HUNT'

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying his fast Curtiss Falcon plane, today was combining business with pleasure. On his way to hunt bear in Mexico he was surveying landing fields.

Before his takeoff from Curtiss Field yesterday he said he would make a survey of landing fields for the Transcontinental Air Transit Company, whose technical committee he heads. Advices from Mexico City told of plans for him to go on a bear hunting trip this week with Col. Alexander J. MacNab.

Lindbergh stopped at Columbus, O., for the night. He left there today for Fort Dodge, Kans. Four Mexican military aviators plan to fly to the border from Mexico City Wednesday to meet their distinguished visitor at last moment and escort him to the Lababia ranch of Hal Mangum, where the bear hunt is to be held.

The private airplane of the Mexican Secretary of War will be placed at Lindbergh's disposal, if he should desire to fly it instead of his own Falcon.

Lindbergh wore a heavy flying suit instead of his customary business clothes and also had a parachute strapped on. He carried a box of food. His Falcon plane is equipped with flares and landing lights for possible descents at unlighted air fields or emergency landings.

BREWERY OWNER LOSES APPEAL IN BRIBERY

Washington, Oct. 22 (INS)—Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, Pa., wealthy brewery owner, today lost an appeal to the Supreme Court for review of his conviction on a charge of bribing prohibition department employes. Shields was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and fined $900.

The bribes were offered and accepted by Della M. Hayes, now Della M. Evans, stenographer, in the prohibition unit in Washington, the government alleged.

Two Ways to Avoid Sour Stomach

PAMPERING the stomach as you grow older is one way to keep out of trouble. But it's far more pleasant to eat what you choose, and let Pape's Diapepsin keep the stomach free from excess acid. Plenty of people past "three-score-and-ten" keep stomachs young because they know this one secret.

Because it is so pleasant and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions rely on "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and dietary corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a large case. Druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapepsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. You may have felt that nothing can help your particular difficulty, but so have others to whom this remedy proved a pleasant surprise. This experiment with diapepsin may do as much for you.

"That's what makes teeth dull and cloudy"

—a dingy film that ordinary brushing will not remove successfully. A new way to remove it.

THE greatest destroyer of lovely sparkling teeth, dental science knows as film. The source of most serious tooth and gum disorders is likewise film.

You can feel film with your tongue—a slippery, sticky coating. It clings to teeth and gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs stains from food and smoking. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, plus tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

To remove film, dentists prescribe the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

In a few days teeth grow whiter and begin to sparkle. They continue to improve for months. Start today. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

LIGGETT SEES VICTORY SURE FOR HOOVER

Entire confidence that Herbert Hoover will win the presidential election over Governor Al Smith on November 6 was expressed today by Louis K. Liggett, Republican National Committeeman from Massachusetts, at the first of a series of daily conferences with newspapermen at the Parker House.

"Governor Smith is talking like a desperate man," Liggett said. "And if the ballyhooing attending his coming here on Wednesday has the same effect as in the Northwest, his visit will hurt rather than help him."

FIGHT TO END HERE.

Mr. Liggett said he had private advices to the effect that if Smith had made two more speeches in the Northwest it would have been hard work to find more than a handful of Democratic votes.

"There is no question of his defeat throughout the country, although the situation is a little bit different here with its many cross-currents. In Massachusetts we will fight it out to the end."

Liggett disputed the claim of the Democrats of carrying Boston by 100,000. He said the Republican organization has gained a great deal more in the registration than it is given credit for. He praised the work of the G. O. P. workers in the State and city organizations, which, he said, have been ably assisted by an army of volunteers.

"COULD USE MORE MONEY."

He said he was much amused to hear the Democrats charging the Republicans with having lots of money to spend on the campaign.

"I can use a great deal more and still keep within the budget, which is not an unreasonable one," he remarked.

"Not a dollar has come into Massachusetts from outside the State," he said.

"We raise all our money here and divide it so as to take care of the city and town committees, thus doing away with two pots," he continued. "This is not a complaint against the national committee, as they have given us everything we have asked for."

Among the surprises that may be looked for in the election, the speaker said, will be the size of the country vote and the tremendous number of ballots cast by the women. Beyond saying that the reasons "are obvious," Mr. Liggett would not comment on the issues that are pulling out the women voters and the inhabitants of the rural districts.

RACKEMANN FOR HOOVER.

Felix Rackemann, Boston attorney and brother of President Charles S. Rackemann of the Constitutional Liberty League, today issued a formal statement supporting the candidacy of Hoover for President.

The Constitutional Liberty League is actively working for the adoption of the public policy question to instruct 37 of the State's 40 Senators to vote for the repeal of the 18th amendment. This question appears on the November ballots.

Mr. Rackemann describes Governor Smith as a man of marked political ability. But Hoover, he says, is better qualified by experience to deal with national and international problems. If the question was the choosing of a state executive, he added, Smith might claim a fuller qualification.

DYE INDUSTRY OF U. S. MAKES 94 P. C. USED HERE

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Marked progress was made by the dye and organic chemical industry in this country in 1927, according to a report of the tariff commission.

With a production of over 95,000,000 pounds the industry has grown to such proportions as to meet 94 per cent of our own requirements, the report said, with an exportable surplus of over 26,000,000 pounds. This country in 1913 produced only 13 per cent of the dyes it consumed.

HUB SINGERS IN ATWATER-KENT TITLE TESTS

Miss Charlotte Levine, contralto, of Jamaica Plain, and Hudson F. Carmondy Roxbury basso, won the Massachusetts championship in State finals of the second national radio audition, sponsored by the Atwater Kent Foundation. This announcement was made today by Mrs. Mary G. Reed of Boston, State chairman.

The contest was sung in Boston October 14 over Station WEEI and winners werec hosen by joint vote of radio listeners and a board of judges.

Miss Levine, who was introduced to the radio audience as "No. 2," sang "Ombra Mai Fu" from "Xerxes" and young Carmody, whose identity also was concealed behind the numeral "7" while he sang "Hear Ye Winds" from "Scipio," were among 16 singers representing all part of the old Bay State.

BOTH WELL-TRAINED.

Miss Levine is 23 years old and employed as a bookkeeper. She has had three seasons of training in the South End music school. Carmody has had two years' instruction under Boston teachers and has sung in the choir of the Church of the Advent.

These young singers as Massachusetts State champions are entitled, as guests of the Foundation, to sing over WEAF, in New York, November 10 and 17, when contestants representing New England and northeastern states will compete in semi-finals for a chance to represent this part on the country in national finals to be sung in New York, December 16.

TO BROADCAST FINALS.

Ten finalists—five boys and five girls—representing the five districts into which the United States as a whole is divided, will compete in the national finals when cash prizes aggregating $17,500, music conservatory scholarships and special decorations will be awarded.

National finals will be broadcast over a country-wide network of stations by the National Broadcasting Company and the voices of the contestants will be judged exclusively by a board of judges.

BLAME DRINK IN CRASH OF PLINY JEWELL PLANE

Atlantic City, Oct. 22—A passenger who had "had a few drinks" is blamed for the plane crash in which one man was killed and seven injured, including Pliny Jewell, Boston banker.

George Edward King, pilot of the Junkers plane which crashed here Friday, declares that, from all indications, the accident was caused by interference with the controls by one of the passengers.

After stating that he did not "know positively," that W. Octave Chanute, prominent Denver financier, who was killed in the accident, interfered with the controls, King was asked the following question:

"From all indications and from your own observation and knowledge, do you say that Mr. Chanute by interfering with the controls caused this accident?"

King answered, "Yes."

The statement was made to police.

Chanute, who died several hours after the accident, was sitting in the seat beside King when the plane wavered and fell into a meadow just as it was ready to return to the landing field. The nose of the craft ploughed into the deep mud along the bank of a stream, probably saving all occupants of the plane from death or more serious injury. Five of the passengers were delegates to the Investment Bankers of America Association's convention here.

"I do not know what Mr. Chanute's condition was," said King in the signed statement which he dictated to a member of the local police force in the presence of Robert J. Furnello of the police accident bureau. "But he seemed to be normal.

"He had a few drinks, but he was perfectly silent. Mr. Jewell (Pliny Jewell of Boston, also seriously hurt in the crash) seemed to have had as much to drink as Mr. Chanute, but the rest seemed to be all right. No one was operating the plane but myself. No one could interfere with the controls from the cabin. He would have to be in the cockpit as there is a wall between the cabin and the cockpit."

Another part of the statement said: "How the controls became jammed, no one seems to know. It looks as though someone had interfered with the controls. They were not permanently jammed, but temporarily, as if someone had tampered with them."

"At this time," asked Furnello, "do you place the blame of the accident on any individual person in the plane?"

King answered: "Well, I hate to blame the man, but no one but Mr. Chanute could have interfered."

ZEPP TO START WEST ON LONG TOUR WEDNESDAY

Chicago, Oct. 22 (INS)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, will leave Chicago tonight at 9 p. m. for Lakehurst, N. J., and will pilot his giant dirigible from the Naval air station there to Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., arriving Thursday night, he announced here today.

The big ship will be moored at Scott Field over night and will start on a tour of Illinois, arriving at Chicago Friday night. It is now planned to leave Lakehurst Wednesday night.

MUSSOLINI GIVES BOOK ROYALTIES TO CHARITY

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP)—Premier Mussolini has donated 100,000 lire ($5,230), which he announced were his royalties from his writings for American papers and magazines, to charitable works of the Fascist party. The money will be used particularly for vacation colonies of children at the seashore or in the mountains next summer.

MAINE NAVAL AIR PILOT GETS TROPHY

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—James E. Dyer of Rumford, Me., naval air pilot, who has a record of 1251 hours in the air for the fiscal year, 1927-28, has been awarded the Herbert Schiff memorial trophy for safe flying.

The pilot, who is on duty at the naval air station at San Diego, today was ordered by the Navy Department to fly across the continent to receive the award from President Coolidge at the White House, December 1.

MINE UNION PICKET SHOT TO DEATH IN W. SCRANTON

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 22 (AP)—A man believed to be a mine union picket was shot and killed today near the Diamond mine of the Glen Alden Coal Company in West Scranton where a strike has been in progress for several days.

Police found the man lying on the ground with a bullet over his heart. He died on the way to the hospital. Police said they found "our ..." ... in the dead man's pocket and believe that he had stopped some miners going to work and was shot.

Even 'Eyes of the Boss' Run by Machinery Now

London, Oct. 22 (INS)—A machine for recording the amount of work done by an employe in the absence of the "boss" is one of the most interesting exhibits at the International exhibition of Inventions at Westminster.

The machine can be connected between the office of the employer and any machine without the man at the machine knowing about it. When the employer arrives he can see at a glance whether the machine has been running in its proper time or whether the work man has had unoccupied moments; also, it shows how many articles were turned out.

BUSINESS IS BOOMING, SAYS SEC. WHITING

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Secretary Whiting believes business volume is proceeding at a high record rate in spite of some under production in textiles—in which Mr. Whiting expects to see some abatement shortly—and a slight drop in coal production.

He cited the figures as to automobile output, building contracts, check payments by banks, steel ... and railroad car loading as indicating the prosperous state of trade.

Oust Communists at British Navy Docks

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—Asserting that reports had reached the government of Communist agitation at naval dockyards, the Daily Sketch said today that all Communists now employed at the Woolwich arsenal and naval dockyards would be dismissed unless they renounced their allegiance to Communist doctrines.

The decision was said to be due to the open revolutionary aims of the Communist party.

Percy Glading, a workman at the Woolwich arsenal, has been dismissed after he rejected the alternative of abandoning Communism. Glading is a member of the Amalgamated Engineers' Union and union officials interviewed Lord Stanhope, civil lord of the admiralty, concerning his case.

The newspaper said Lord Stanhope held that the question was neither political nor one concerning trade unions, but was a matter of national safety. He added in effect that it was impossible for a man to be a loyal member of the Communist party and, at the same time a loyal servant of the government.

Having received this reply, the engineers' union referred the case of Glading to the Trades Union Council. A member of the council was quoted by the paper as saying the situation was very delicate and embarrassing. It has been the policy of trade unions to oppose Communist doctrines, but not to exclude Communists from membership.

AMERICAN ANNOUNCES OPENING OF A HOOVER-SMITH FORUM

ISSUES TO BE DEBATED BY EXPERTS

American that its readers are entitled to such help as they may receive from a daily discussion of the campaign, its predominant issues and the personalities of the presidential candidates by men in a position to speak with authority.

His distinguished success as manager of the Hoover pre-convention campaign in Massachusetts—a campaign which resulted in giving the Secretary of Commerce the Bay State's votes on the first ballot at Kansas City—as well as his present position as chairman of the (Hoover) volunteer campaign committee, make John Richardson the ideal spokesman for the Republican nominee for President.

A member of the law firm of Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins, Mr. Richardson is ... He is ... because of his ... for Mr. Hoover, his belief in Mr. Hoover and his conviction that the Californian is the man of the hour.

In like manner, General Cole appears to be a ... as well as a well-equipped spokesman for "Al" Smith.

As Boston's fire commissioner in the "old" days, as head of the National Guard, and through his splendid record in the World War, Gen. Charles H. Cole has won high place in the esteem of his fellow citizens. Gen. Cole will write of Governor Smith as one who knows him intimately and admires him beyond any other man in American public life.

Congratulating ourselves upon our success in inducing Mr. Richardson and Gen. Cole to contribute to these columns, we must also felicitate our readers upon the rare treat which is in store for them.

The Smith-Hoover debate will begin here, tomorrow.

For Governor Smith—Charles H. Cole.

For Herbert Hoover—John Richardson.

CURTIS IN NEW YORK DRIVE

En route with Senator Curtis to Utica, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—A double-headed Republican attack for New York's 45 electoral votes today brought Senator Curtis, the party's Vice-President nominee into the up-state sector while Herbert Hoover was in New York city.

Senator Curtis speaks tonight at Utica and Wednesday he speaks at Rochester. This is his second sally into upper New York. He appeared in August at the state fair in Syracuse.

The Senator has objected to going into the official home city of the Democratic presidential nominee, saying it is against his way of campaigning but it is planned for him to have luncheon at Albany at noon tomorrow with party leaders.

Opening the final two weeks' drive of the campaign, the 68-year-old nominee came into New York State today facing a steady grind from now until election day, but he pronounced himself "fit" and "ready for it."

THEY DEBATE CAMPAIGN

FOR REPUBLICANS Atty. John Richardson, "Herbert Hoover's best friend in Massachusetts," who will lead the Republican side in the Boston Evening American Forum on the campaign.

FOR DEMOCRATS Gen. Charles H. Cole, Democratic candidate for governor and "the original Smith man," who will lead the Democratic side of the forum in the Boston Evening American.

Plan to Make Smith's Hub Rally Greatest

Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic State Committee is expected to have all the details arranged late today, after conferring in New York with the agent of the presidential candidate.

But in any event speeches will be made in both Springfield and Worcester, where great crowds will greet their idol. Along the automobile route the Democrats are planning to greet the candidate in every one of the smaller cities and towns, enmasse.

While in Boston the Governor will stop at the Ritz Carleton, under tentative plans. After his Arena speech, which will be broadcasted throughout the nation, the Governor will spend the night in Boston.

The next day he will journey to Providence either by automobile or train. Providence was not on the original schedule of the candidate, but Democratic chieftains have assured the national standard bearer that his presence there will go a long way in helping to put Little Rhody in the block for the Democrats.

BROWN DERBY FETE TONIGHT

While Gen. Charles H. Cole, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, continued his attacks upon his opponent, Lieut.-Gov. Frank G. Allen, as an ally of the power interests in the State, other party leaders today concentrated their attention on the "Brown Derby Frolic" to be held at the Copley Plaza tonight to assist the Democratic campaign fund.

"My opponent's attempt to keep from the public the fact that he is lined up with the power companies will prove unsuccessful," Gen. Cole asserted in a statement made in answer to the speech delivered in Worcester on Saturday night by the lieutenant governor.

"In his Worcester speech," Cole continued, "he accused me of misquoting him, yet he repeats what I quoted from his speech made in Plymouth.

That utterance I made, and now repeat, shows that he was on the side of the power companies."

At the Copley-Plaza frolic guests will have the opportunity of wearing an autographed brown derby already worn by Governor Smith.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the guest of the evening, and Mrs. Elizabeth Joyce Broderick will act as chairman.

The committee is composed of Melville Breath, Joseph Conway, Edmund L. Dolan, Frank J. Donahue, R. Jerome Dunne, Dr. Thomas Gibbons, John C. Haverty, Leo M. Leary, Malcolm J. Logan, Dr. Keao Maire, John J. Brady, B. Matthew Sedgewick, Herbert C. Prest and Barrett Williams.

Members of both sexes, privileged to cast their first vote in the current campaign, will be guests tomorrow night of the League of First Voters' Assembly at its meeting in Lyceum Hall, Washington st., Brookline.

Among those who will address the audience are Theodore Morrison, associate editor of the Atlantic Monthly, Mrs. Dorothy Whipple Frye, Richard S. Teeling, president of the Charlestown Trust Company; Mrs. Helen Watson, Charles P. Murphy and Isadore Poler of Charleston, S. C.

Charge Hoover Is An Advocate of the 'Open Shop'

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Alfred E. Smith for President Union Labor League has issued a statement charging Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, with being an advocate of the "open shop."

The statement declares: "Mr. Hoover testified before the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, according to the record and likewise the New York Times of May 13, 1920, that "mutual feeling of responsibility between employer and employe must be restored by some system of shop organization. The principle of individual freedom requires the open shop.'"

The Union Labor League's spokesman is John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

HOOVER OPENS DRIVE ON N. Y. IN PERSON

lican enthusiasm, Hoover cited stability, prosperity and confidence in the Republican party as the issues enlisting support for his party.

The nominee shied away from two questions, one touching on the oil scandal and the other on the proposal for a national department of education.

"Do you feel like Dr. Work that the country is tired of hearing about oil?" a newspaper man asked.

"I do not care to answer that question," Hoover replied.

He then added that as he intended to discuss campaign issues in his speech tonight he did not care to enter such discussion with newspapermen.

"How do you like the campaign?" he was asked.

"Fine," Hoover retorted. "I like any sort of intense activity. It keeps one mentally stimulated."

"How do you feel after this grind?"

"I never felt in a better physical condition in my life," said Hoover, ending the interview.

The Republican nominee opened the last fortnight of his campaign for the presidency by leaving his comfortable headquarters in Washington to invade New York city, already conceded to his Democratic rival, Governor Smith. However, Hoover used the metropolis as a background for his real objective—the capture of the state and a victory throughout the whole industrial East.

BAY STATE HOPES

He was particularly cheerful over reports reaching him of shifting tides in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which indicate Republican victories in both States. His managers already look upon New Jersey as Republican territory, and Hoover's visit here was planned to help insure a victory in the Empire State.

Hoover faced one of the busiest days of his campaign here, with a program crowded from morning to night with conferences. His visit will be climaxed by delivery of a prepared address at Madison Square Garden tonight. Hoover took great pains in preparing his speech, but at the last moment eliminated several important sections because of its great length.

In its final form it will take about an hour to deliver, and will revolve chiefly around the subject of the relationship between government and business.

By discussing this subject in Smith territory, Hoover's managers believe he will carry the battle right to his Democratic rival. The Republican managers expressed confidence that Hoover will gain votes whenever business men compare the records of the two parties in their attitudes toward the regulation of business.

WARM WELCOME

The nominee, even though in the "enemy stronghold," received a warm welcome on his arrival last night. About 5000 persons jammed the Pennsylvania station and the streets outside to get a glimpse of the candidate as he was whisked, under police escort, to headquarters in the Waldorf-Astoria. Hoover smiled and waved greetings to the crowds, which extended in lesser numbers, all the way to his hotel.

The nominee arose early this morning in order to keep his first appointment—a breakfast conference. Over his eggs and coffee, Hoover discussed the Eastern situation with a host of Republican leaders from all points on the Atlantic seaboard. Among his guests were Charles D. Hilles, National Committeeman H. Edmund MacHold, state chairman; Dr. Hubert Work, national chairman, Senator George D. Moses and Daniel E. Pomeroy, National vice-chairman, William H. Hill, Hoover manager; James Francis Burke, his personal adviser; former Ambassador James R. Sheffield, Alfred E. Marling, Herbert N. Strauss, Representative John Q. Tilson, Jeremiah Milbank, Samuel Koenig, County Chairman Gen. James G. Harboard and Henry A. Cushing.

WOMEN INFLUENCE

The Hoover strategists were convinced he will carry New York State, and they told the nominee why they were so optimistic. First, they said, the normal Smith plurality in New York city would be reduced by a tremendous increase in the voting of women, most of whom will be for Hoover. Second, they added, Hoover will get a larger up-state plurality than has been won by Republican candidates in the past for the same reason. They also told him he would reduce Smith's vote everywhere by gaining among business men.

Among groups that are scheduled to pay respects to him will be editors of foreign language newspapers, leaders of a dozen groups of alien-born citizens, the Theatrical League, the Republican service league and editors of New York daily papers.

ROOT PRESIDES AT HOOVER'S N. Y. RALLY

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, will preside over the Hoover meeting at Madison Square Garden tonight. He will first present Vice-President Dawes, who will make his initial speech of the campaign. Hoover will start speaking about 8:30 o'clock and the whole program will be carried to the country on an extensive radio hookup.

New York State Republican leaders in charge of arrangements for the Garden rally said there had been 70,000 applications for the 18,000 available seats. They announced that in order to accommodate an overflow meeting loud speakers had been set up outside of the building.

The mid-day luncheon, at which National Committeeman Hilles is to be the host, will be similar to those arranged at Newark and Boston, the only other Eastern cities in which the nominee has appeared. Invitations had been issued to several hundred county and State leaders, as well as to campaign workers in the various boroughs of Greater New York city.

The afternoon program was to bring a number of delegations from independent organizations working in behalf of the Republican national ticket. The largest of these was expected to be from the Hoover-Curtis theatrical league and the Republican service league.

With the conclusion of the afternoon session, Hoover planned to rest and dine privately in his hotel suite before setting out for what his friends said would be his major effort in the campaign in Eastern territory. Mrs. Hoover, who, with her son, Allan Hoover, accompanied the nominee from Washington, was to breakfast with the women's auxiliary of the engineers' national committee and also to attend the mid-day luncheon to State and county leaders.

HAIL ROBINSON IN NEBRASKA

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 22 (AP)—Nebraska Democrats, working strenuously to put their State in the Smith-Robinson column, made the visit to Lincoln of Senator Joe T. Robinson today the vehicle for one of the biggest rallies of the campaign.

On hand to welcome the vice-presidential nominee of their party were former Senator G. M. Hitchcock, himself a candidate at Houston for the presidential nomination, and Charles W. Bryan, brother of the commoner, who is seeking the governorship of the State.

Senator Robinson was prepared to send the host of party workers who had come to hear him speak tonight in the 20,000 seat University of Nebraska Auditorium back to their labors with addition campaign arguments.

CONFIDENCE OF SMITH AMAZES FRIENDS

International News Correspondent

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22—Back home for a short breathing spell, Governor Smith rested today for what he has described as "the battle of the eastern seaboard" the opening gun in which will be fired in Boston on Wednesday.

Governor Smith will leave Albany tomorrow night, not to return to it again until he knows whether he is to be next president of the United States, or just another defeated candidate.

From Boston he will return to New York on Thursday and from that familiar base engage in a fast-flying tour of the great eastern centers that are so vital to his success.

Besides Massachusetts and New York they are Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland, seven states in which even the Republicans admit his candidacy has strong appeal this year.

Should he win them all two weeks hence, and should the solid south and border states stand firm in their normal and traditional democracy, Governor Smith will win the presidency, even though he carries not a single western state. But by the same token without some western states any great defection in the east or south would be fatal.

FINAL BATTLE GROUND

The seven eastern states selected as the battle ground for the climax of the 1928 campaign have a total of 135 electoral votes. The "Solid South," those ten southern states never carried by any Republican candidate for the presidency, have 114.

The four border states of Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma have 53. These three groups combine to make a total of 302 or 36 more than the 266 electoral votes necessary to victory.

There are no Republicans and comparatively few Democrats who believe Governor Smith has much prospect of winning Pennsylvania's 38 votes, whatever may be his chances in the other eastern states.

Governor Smith himself, however, is one of the doubters. He is going to speak in Philadelphia next Saturday night. Democratic candidates for the presidency do not usually speak in Pennsylvania, considering it a waste of time. But Al Smith does not so consider it—he believes he is going to win it.

His campaign managers have put a good deal of money and organization into the state. Their hopes are predicted on Pennsylvania's acknowledged wetness and the enormous industrial vote of the state.

RADIATES CONFIDENCE

Probably no Democratic presidential candidate has ever been so confident of victory two weeks before election as Governor Smith is at the end of his campaign in the west. He fairly radiates confidence in his observations at the daily press conferences.

He said today he had never had any doubts about the south and the border states that are normally Democratic despite all the "bear stories" sent northward.

These stories of Democratic disaffection from the south emanate from "noisy minorities" he said.

"They are loud, but not numerically strong," was his summary.

Governor Smith's air of calm confidence has amazed even those of his intimates and advisers who are themselves confident.

A good part of this confidence was engendered upon the trip just ended, upon which the Democratic nominee dipped not only into the territory where Democratic disaffection is supposed to be greatest, but also into territory traditionally Republican like Illinois and Indiana.

Governor Smith's only personal caller after his arrival home was Thomas J. Spellacy, National Committeeman from Connecticut, who came to urge him to make a speech in the Nutmeg State. Governor Smith told him the speech schedule beyond Boston and Philadelphia is still in process of adjustment.

G. O. P. LEAD IN KENTUCKY IS 2883 VOTES

Chicago, Oct. 22—Kentucky swings into the home stretch in the bitterly-fought presidential battle with Hoover still in the lead in the Hearst poll, with 10,449 to 7616 for Governor Smith.

Hoover's percentage of the total vote is approximately 58. The Literary Digest's figures, with 23,137 for Hoover and 15,620 for Smith, give Hoover a percentage of the total vote of 60.

The Hearst poll figures today cover 83 counties in the State. They show Hoover running strong in the larger cities, which is an exception to the general poll figures throughout the East and in other large cities in the West.

It is the rural districts of Kentucky, particularly in the western half of the State, that the Republican standard-bearer appears to be rolling up a considerable lead.

MARGIN LARGER

Christian County (Hopkinsville) shows Hoover getting about 65.4 per cent of the total vote. In the Owensboro district (Davies County), Hoover's percentage of the total is 60.

In Louisville it is a tight race but Jefferson County, surveyed in the poll figures as a whole, shows a slight lead for Hoover, and as the canvass is extended into the rural district, this margin increases.

Covington and Frankfort districts show about the same margin of lead for the G. O. P. ticket in the early canvass.

An interesting sidelight on the Republican margin in Crittenden, Livingston, Caldwell and Lyon counties, is the acclaim accorded Hoover's tariff speech.

It is not generally known by the people elsewhere, that one of the basic industries of this section, fluorspar mining, depends for its existence upon a reasonably high tariff.

WANT TARIFF

Although the 1922 tariff law imposed a duty of $5.60 per long ton on fluorspar imports, the protection was not sufficient to equalize the cost of production in the United States and abroad.

About $5,000,000 is invested in the industry in this section.

The present rate of importation into the country is about 120,000 short tons, which is used in the manufacture of steel. Because of the importations, the Kentucky production last year was only about $1,000,000.

What Doctors Say About the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clear up the condition with some laxative made with CASCARA, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.

But if you don't KNOW the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice:

The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous conditioner mankind has yet found. It stimulates the bowel's muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With cascara, you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days. With less and less need of any aid, as time goes on.

So, the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy Cascaret. Delightful to taste, sweet and acceptable to any stomach, and just as efficient as the powerful purges that fairly paralyze the peristaltic walls of one's intestines. The only habit you'll get from Cascarets is the one of going weeks and months without ANY help of the kind. And when you do invoke their aid again, the same small dose suffices. Any doctor knows the truth about cascara; and any druggist has the candy Cascarets.

FRIEND' OF DUCHESS' IN COURT AS '2-GUN' MAN

An Amazing Story of a Dancer

An Interlude of Joy

As Roala and her military escort reached the ancient house in which the girl had been dwelling since the early part of her illness she suddenly turned to face the soldier with the jauntily tilted cap.

"Do I know thee?" she asked with suddenly awakened interest.

There was something, ineffably familiar in the strong clasp of the hand upon her arm.

"Not very much," was the reply and then she stared, trying to pierce the darkness. Even the voice stirred memories. Yet, the maiden had never, in all the years of her dancing spoken with a soldier of the British King.

"Quite a narrow escape," added the military man, in his same gruff voice, yet speaking the Hindustani with a curious twist of accent which seemed oddly similar to a manner she had known before. "Even worse than a tiger . . . yet a bullet saved you this time as well."

The girl shrank back, and suddenly a primitive instinct of feminity prompted her to turn away her face. The smile on her lips must not be seen. There were two reasons; one was purely her own defensiveness—the other the realization that the man whom she most wished to see had seen her in the place where she least wished to have him see her.

"Sahib!" she breathed timidly, shamed beyond further words.

"The disguise deceived you at first," he answered, and then took off the cap. "How hard it was to maintain it, I cannot tell you. But it was fortunate that I came as I did."

The girl remained silent.

"I learned that you had come to this town, through a runner from Mahji's village. I had been searching every road after that night. Why did you leave?"

He was so gentle, so unassuming, that she could not maintain her defensive nor yet the timidity which, as a humble dancer, she knew to be her duty before this grand gentleman. Curiously enough the sight of the great hunter in the uniform of a common soldier could not, even now, alter one whit that earlier memory of him, as he bowed "good-night."

"I didn't know," was the simple response. "Even now I am not sure It was the command of my father. That is all."

"Let us walk along the street a bit further," he answered. "I have left my work again, at a most important time, because I want to find out if he is surely your father."

The girl thrilled. Here, indeed, was the echo of a thought which she had barely dared to admit to herself.

"Are you sure this musician is your father?" was the next imperious demand, in the soft language which the tall hunter still spoke with a curious accent. "At least, he did not remain in that vile place to protect you tonight."

She shuddered. The memory of the evening, and of its torments; the thought of the great Sahib having seen her dancing as she was . . Even now the mantle about her had been placed around her shoulders by his hands, just as he had covered her on the night when he had saved her life.

Roala, naive as she was in her attitude toward native dress, yet knew that white men respected their women so much that they did not permit them to appear in public scantily clad as she had been.

She shrank away from his touch, much as it thrilled her.

"And he led you to that place tonight," continued Meredith. "He is a scoundrel. How fortunate that I arrived as I did, with Sergt. MacPherson and his men. When a Hindu priest told us of the dancing there and that the old man and woman had taken you there I knew that something dreadful would happen. That is why I asked the British officer to allow me to change clothes for the evening and to give the same change to my superintendent. We came just before it was too late."

The girl drew into herself even more fearfully.

"Why should he hunt me up?" she wondered. "I heard my father and mother speaking of his buying me. Perhaps he has come to take me as he would some trophy of the field."

The thought terrified her, then sickened her. She had dreamed of him, hungered for the sight of this white Sahib's face.

In one sense it has been as the great "noble" far above her humble position. In another the simple soul thirst of an overwhelming adoration—a simple maiden forgetting all else but the surge of desire for the only man who had ever appealed to her as more than merely another being is the great swarm which made up the India which she knew.

"I had to obey my father," was her final response. "What else could I do?"

"Many things, I should think," answered Meredith. "And yet, you have been bound in bondage. It is for that which I sought you out. If you continue in this relation much longer it may be worse than tonight."

His voice trembled as he spoke.

A master of men, one who had commanded hundreds, even thousands, in the course of his varied life, he still felt ill at ease, emotional and clumsy in this long dreamed of moment when he was speaking to her, his hand upon her arm.

"I cannot speak to you tonight,"

LOVE' SLAYER'S WIDOW DENIES WRONG DOING

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 22—The jealous rage which led Maurice J. Smith, 37 of North Smithfield, to murder his brother-in-law, Francis H. Robbins, 41, and then kill himself was utterly unreasonable and without basis in fact, according to Mrs. Smith, unwitting cause of the double tragedy, and third party in an unusual family triangle.

It was because he believed that his brother-in-law, Robbins, was courting his estranged wife, that Smith lay in wait for Robbins, shot him in the head, and then a short time later blew the top of his own head off with a shotgun.

"Why, I hadn't the slightest use in the world for Robbins," Mrs. Smith told reporters today. "He called on me at my parents' home in Blackstone, Mass., but the visits were only friendly ones.

"I never for a moment thought of him in any way save that of a brother-in-law. The idea of loving him never entered my head and I can't understand how this awful thing has happened."

She said her husband was madly jealous of her.

Robbins and Smith had once been great pals. They served on the police force together and this friendship was further cemented when Robbins married Smith's sister. Mrs. Robbins died just a year ago, and it was shortly after her death that Robbins began paying attentions to Mrs. Smith, authorities declared today.

Five months ago Smith and his wife separated, she going with the two Smith children to the home of her parents in Blackstone, Mass. Her brother-in-law frequently visited her there.

The estranged husband became infuriated at his brother-in-law and erstwhile pal. Once he visited his wife's apartment and found Robbins there. Smith became incensed and threw Robbins into the street. A number of persons frequently heard Smith threaten Robbins' life, they stated.

Robbins was employed as special official at the Miami ballroom Smithfield. He had finished his duties. He drove to his home in the early morning hours. In the shadow of the Robbins home Smith lurked with a repeating shotgun held in readiness.

After putting up the car Robbins started across the lawn. There were two shots fired. Neighbors running from their homes found Robbins lying on the grass, a gaping wound in his head.

The police immediately suspected

WHOOPEE!

FLAMING YOUTH, you don't care where you finish—as long as you can live! An older generation watches you with mingled admiration—and wonder. You dance away the night hours in a jazz frenzy and greet the dawn with a laugh. You're mad, but you're interesting. You're reckless, but you're fascinating. Tell us, Flaming Youth, when the wail of the saxophone is stilled, and the cry of "whoopee!" has faded away, don't you honestly yearn for the kiss that is real, for the love that is fine and clean and forever!

HERE truly is a picture that thrills with its magnificence. A romance of children of the rich, gorgeous in its scenes of luxury, a panorama of passion in silks, a love symphony of young hearts. The music starts! Come join the party!

HARVARD SHOWS MUCH IMPROVEMENT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
SPEED ACCURACY INTEREST — NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — MONDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1928

WORKING THE OLD ARMY GAME TO GOOD EFFECT IN STADIUM

FOOLED HARVARD WARRIORS
Army used a sweeping play toward the end of the line all afternoon, with plenty of interferers going ahead. This time the interference went as usual, but Cagle, brilliant Army back, cut in sharply between guard and tackle and made a sensational gain. He completely fooled the Harvard defense. Note Pickard, Harper, Barrett and French, in diagram, who had swung toward the end and were caught flatfooted by Cagle when he cut in. Cagle got past Guarnaccia, but was downed by Tommy Gilligan.

CRIMSON TEAM WAS GOOD IN DEFEAT

By JOE CASHMAN

HARVARD was out-played, out-smarted, out-lucked and beaten by the Army but it was not disgraced because it was never out-gamed.

Suffering enough bad breaks to discourage the gamest team ever assembled, it was fighting just as hard when all chance of victory had disappeared as at the start.

Therefore, there can be nothing but praise for its showing despite its mistakes and defeat.

And gameness is not the Crimson's only claim to praise. For with all its glaring weaknesses, it made that highly-touted Cadet aggregation look very bad at times by the fury of both its attack and defense, an had luck once favored the Horween eleven, it might have held the enemy to a t.e.

Since the team never figured to be able to beat such a strong and experienced third-game opponent as the Army, its showing, to our way of thinking, was mighty good.

Especially is this true of the line. Green for the most part and inexperienced as compared with the Army forward wall, the Harvard line held its own against the enemy all afternoon except for a short spell in the second quarter.

It stopped Murrell, one of the greatest line smashers in the country, and Cagle, a wizard on end runs and tackle sweeps, far more often than either of these brilliant Cadets broke through, and the other hostile ball-carriers never had a chance against it.

IT forced the Army to take to the air to win, and that's something any line may be proud of, for the West Pointers are so rarely stopped on the ground that they pay little attention to passing and are, in reality, admitting a lot when they start to toss the pigskin.

At times, naturally, some of the forwards looked bad. Almost any lineman, no matter how great, would, if called upon to stop Cagle and Murrell for an afternoon.

There should be no criticism about the work of the Harvard frontier unless it be those passes which terminated in fumbles for which Ticknor may or may not be open to censure. It put up a wonderful battle and Coach Duke Dunne, Crimson line coach, deserves a lot of credit for what he has accomplished.

If we remember rightly, we observed a week ago today that the Harvard line would take care of itself and that the result of the Army game would hinge upon the work of the Crimson backfield.

Saturday's contest showed that to be the case. The game was decided by the Cambridge backs.

Those fumbled passes from center put a decided crimp in Harvard's chances but they figured only indirectly in the Army's scores.

Harvard Backs Fail to Break Up Army Air Attack

IT was the failure of the Harvard backs to break up the enemy's passing attack and to be able to put on one of their own, combined with some questionable judgment on the part of the quarterbacks, which prevented the team holding the opposition even and causing one of the biggest grid upsets of the season.

This is a fact, not merely a criticism. If it were only a criticism, it would not be mentioned because everything considered, those Harvard ball carriers did a very fine job.

Capt. Art French, being a marked man, took a terrible hammering all afternoon and looked to be as great as any back on the field.

Time after time, he made fine gains when it looked as though he would certainly be stopped before reaching the line of scrimmage, and he often advanced yards with two or three Army tackles hanging to him, unable to bring him down.

No questioning his gameness ability or greatness even though he had had the misfortune to fumble those much-discussed passes and showed [illegible] poor judgment [illegible] a lot of nerve, in attempting to run instead of kick on the play that resulted in the safety.

Gilligan, while not nearly as spectacular nor effective as in previous games because he, too, was marked, did a great defensive job, as did Wally Harper. Every time these two boys hit the enemy, the collision could be heard by each of the 55,000 people in the Stadium. That's the way to play the game.

GUARNACCIA was not quite up to standard, but he outkicked Murrell, Putnam, Crawford, Hugeley and all the other backs employed showed plenty of sterling football.

Their failure to stop Army passes is surprising in view of the fine pass defense they offered against North Carolina, and is inexcusable because the Cadets' overhead shots were telegraphed.

Both came on fourth downs with many yards to go and being nothing but old-fashioned tosses should have been spoiled.

The first one, Murrell to Nave, saw two Harvard players in position to reach the ball, but both stood by while the Army field general plucked it out of the air.

The second, Cagle to Messinger, succeeded because Gilligan allowed the big Cadet end to get by him.

There is no apparent excuse for the mistakes made by Harvard on either of these plays.

Crimson Eleven Looked Good in Spite of Defeat

NOR is there any for the failure of their own attack. Several times Harvard passes were allowed to hit the ground when eligible receivers could have caught them by merely stretching their hands out.

Also, Harvard should have tried some long passes and short ones to the side of the line.

All it employed was a flat pass over center. None of these was completed, but had any been the gain would not have been great, for the Army had that territory pretty well covered.

Had the aerials been mixed up a little more, it would not have been nearly as easy for the Cadets to stop them, and Harvard might have got somewhere.

The generalship of Gilligan and Putnam was only fair at its best, and, quite often, was away off. Both Crimson quarters need a lot of brushing up.

Still, as we said before, Harvard has little to be ashamed of after its game with the Army. It did better than anybody had cause to expect.

The team needed the experience of a hard game and ought to profit greatly by it.

THE mistakes of Saturday, with the possible exception of the directing, ought to be easy to remedy, and if they are Harvard is going to win a lot of games.

It has more than the average ability, is as game as can be and is getting better all the time. Though the schedule is tough from here in, it has little to fear if it keeps on improving at its present pace.

In short, it looks as though Harvard is on its way out of the gridiron wilderness, in which it has been lost for years, and is slowly but surely headed for the heights.

Two Scrimmages for Harvard This Week

By TED LYNCH

With the Army game out of the way Harvard now turns on the difficult task of gathering itself together for the coming fray with Dartmouth.

Despite the defeat at the hands of the cadets Harvard has not given up its fort, and the Crimson still believes that it has the best Harvard team in years.

Coach Arnold Horween outlined a stiff schedule for the coming five practice sessions this week. There will be two scrimmages, one coming tomorrow afternoon while the other is expected on Wednesday.

On Thursday the ineligibles will put on the Dartmouth plays against the varsity. Friday will be devoted solely to polishing up the Crimson offense.

Although Coach Horween was reticent regarding changes that may occur in the Crimson lineup, many Harvard fans feel that there will be two significant changes in the team which started the Army game.

GILDEA READY TO PLAY

With Henry Gildea's pedestal sound once more, it is felt that Horween will elect the former Boston Latin boy for the post at center, displacing the youthful and inexperienced Ben Ticknor. Gildea has played a raft of football.

He played four years of football at Boston Latin under Charley Fitzgerald, and last year played on a freshman team which was undefeated. He knows, eats and talks football every hour of the day and is the type of player Harvard needs in the center of its flank.

Ben Ticknor, despite his bad passing in the cadet clash deserves plenty of credit. The Milton Academy boy was captain of his freshman team and was a whale of a fullback.

Carroll Shows His Boxers How to Step

Dan Carroll, manager of numerous boxers and several business concerns, has convinced his friends that he is light on his feet, although he tips the beam at somewhere in the vicinity of 250 pounds ringside.

Carroll and his wife were among the 100 or more guests at the confirmation party of Benjamin Beller, held at Singers Inn, Sharon.

When the music started, Dan asked Jim Maloney to sing. Jim did and Dan, with his wife, gave an exhibition of the "Yiddisher Kazatsky," famous Hebrew dance.

It was great and the many friends at the party got a great kick out of it as few believed that a man as heavy as Carroll could perform such intricate steps.

Among those present was Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan, Red Chapman and Charlie Bussey. The toastmaster was Benjamin Finn.

"RUBY" LEVINE WILL FACE JOHNNY SHEPPARD

Fall River, Oct. 22—Ruby Levine of Lewiston, Me., and Johnny Sheppard of Woburn meet in the main battle at the Casino tonight. Ruby has decisively beaten Jackie Donahue and a host of other title claiming featherweights, and Sheppard should be able to give the Lewiston left-hook expert a torrid tussle. The semi-final will have Sonny Sugrs of Newport and Eddie Curley of Boston in opposite corners. There will be three other bouts.

LAUREL AGAIN UNDER CONTROL OF ST. LOUIS

Laurel, Miss., Oct. 22—The Laurel Club of the Cotton States League will again be under control of the Cardinals. Fans will raise a fund of $5000 to be placed on deposit with the Cardinals and it will become the property of the National League entry if Laurel finishes one-two-three. If the team winds up in fourth place, $1500 will be refunded and if it lands in the second division, the entire amount will be turned back to the Laurel Club.

Harvard-Dartmouth Game Big Feature This Week

YALE-ARMY ALSO SCRAP SATURDAY

West Point Team Must Improve to Garner Win From Bulldog Eleven

By BILL GRIMES

HARVARD and West Point, headliners of last week, will be co-stars next Saturday, sharing the spot light with Dartmouth and Yale, while the other luminaries, Princeton and Cornell, Penn and Navy, N. Y. U. and Colgate, six Western Conference contests, the opening games of the Maine and Vermont State championships and B. U. and B. C. will all have prominent positions on this all-star bill.

In the East, interest will center around the Harvard-Dartmouth and Yale-Army battles. Over 125,000 fans will witness these contests, and in both events, the outcome is uncertain. Harvard went down before the Army, but displayed a most commendable fighting spirit and a surprising amount of power.

Bill Grimes

Despite the setback by West Point, Harvard's stock went up many points and Dartmouth will walk into the toughest assignment it has encountored in the Stadium in years.

West Point impressed many with its power last Saturday and some are predicting a defeat for Yale, but Biff Jones' aggregation must play smoother football than it did against the Crimson to stop the Bulldog.

The Yale-Army game will see two veteran teams in action, neither of which have been stopped this season. It will be a battle, one of the greatest of the season, but Yale is a slight favorite.

CORNELL does not appear to have even an outside chance of even [illegible] threatening Princeton, for the Ithacans do not seem to be up to standard this fall, while the T[illegible] a veteran team and the [illegible] game still fresh in their minds, are all through fooling. With the Ohio State game, next week [illegible] endeavor to pile up an early lead [illegible] Dobie's [illegible] and allow the reserves to carry on.

There are two big money attractions scheduled to be staged in New York next Saturday, N. Y. U. and Colgate in the Yankee Stadium and Fordham and Washington and Jefferson in the Polo Grounds. The N. Y. U.-Colgate affair will have the call, for Chick Meehan's boys have a clean slate, while Fordham lost to the Purple and W. and J. was beaten by Kentucky and Carnegie Tech.

While the clicking of the turnstiles at the Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds will be of as much importance as the outcome of the games over on Baker Field a real cultural—to borrow one of Bill McGeehan's expressions—battle will be offered by Columbia and Williams.

The University of Maine will open its drive towards another state championship this week at home against Bates and should have no trouble disposing of the Lewiston team.

Up in Waterville, Mal Morrill will turn his Bowdoin cohorts loose against Eddie Roundy's Colby outfit. A year ago Maine routed Bates to the tune of 67 to 0 and Colby slipped across a 12 to 6 win on the Black and White.

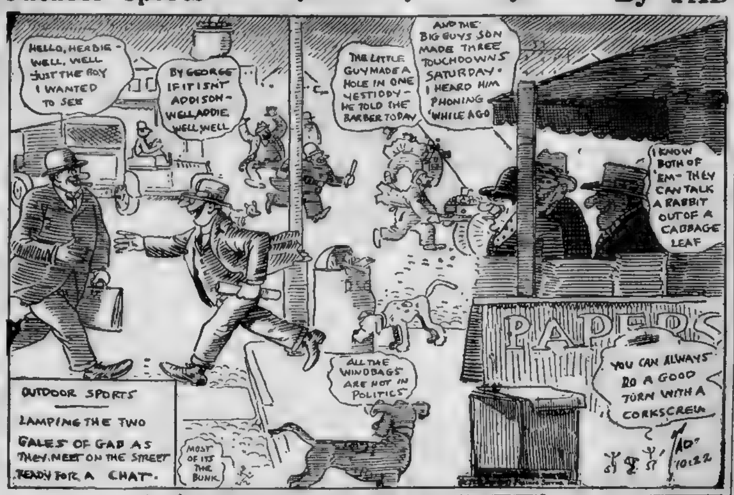

COACH Dewey Graham will send his Norwich Cadets into action to check a Middlebury invasion at Northfield, which will mark the opening of the battle for the Green Mountain State title. Due to the floods, these teams did not meet last year and the championship series was unfinished.

Tufts will find trouble with Brown this week unless the Brunonians were too heavily battered down in the Yale Bowl. Tufts has run up a string of consecutive victories over a period of two seasons and will offer stubborn opposition to the McLaughry crowd.

All of the Conference teams will play championship games next Saturday, and the Iowa-Minnesota tussle, which will be played in Iowa City, will have much to do with the final disposition of the championship.

Coach Fat Spear's Gophers are a powerful aggregation, boasting of a great line and two wonderful backs in Hovde and Nagurski, while Iowa is fortified by a great defense and a scoring ace in Myles McLain, the former Haskell star. Minnesota has already registered two Conference victories, having defeated Purdue and Chicago, while Iowa also turned [illegible] a win over the Maroon.

DYNAMITE GUS WRESTLES THURSDAY

Gus Sonnenberg, the human battering ram, will resume his charge at the wrestlers Thursday night in the Grand Opera House, when he tackles Ned McGuire, Irish giant, in the feature bout of Paul Bowser's all-star tournament.

Dynamite Gus is without a doubt one of the most remarkable athletes in the country today. In the professional football game he is the greatest star the game boasts. For his season on the Providence Steam Rollers he is being paid a salary of $7500.

OTHERS USE NAME

Among the wrestlers, so famous has his name become all over the country, that he is being impersonated in the South and West.

Last Tuesday night, when Gus was gently but firmly pinning the shoulders of Charlie Hansen to the mat in Providence, a beefy gentleman going under the name of Charles Gustave Sonnenberg, was being thrown by Rudy Dusek, whoever he may be, in Atlanta, Ga.

The same thing happened in Shreveport, La., and Memphis, Tenn., and Sonnenberg has appealed to the athletic commission of those various states against the use of his name by an interloper.

The dynamiter has never been thrown during his sensational ring career, and Promoter Paul Bowser came out with a standing offer of $1000 to anybody who can prove that Sonny ever wrestled in Georgia, Louisiana, or Tennessee.

Dynamite Gus is paying the price for his showing of a year ago, when he held the world's championship right in the palm of his hand.

McGUIRE AFTER GUS

McGuire, for one wants to beat Sonny. The big Irishman has been hanging on the fringe of stardom for years. This season, he has been going better than ever. In successive weeks, he whipped Jack Warner of Omaha and Charlie Hansen of Sweden.

Hansen was rated a favorite over McGuire, but McGuire won. Sonnenberg, too, will be a favorite over him, as he would be over practically any wrestler in the world, but McGuire, who is training with Stanley Stasiak at Toland's gym everyday, is confident that he will spill the dope once more.

Reservations may be made at Paul Bowser's office, 333 Washington st., room 330, or by telephoning either Hancock 0428 or Hancock 0431.

Bryan Memorial Is to Be One of Best

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 22—Entry blanks for the Bryan Memorial, which carries the tidy sum of $20,000 in added money, have been issued by Joe McLennan, popular little secretary of Jim O'Hara's course, midway between Washington and Baltimore.

This special, named for his closest business associate, is growing steadily in importance. The day is not far off when it will be Maryland's biggest stake.

For the genial O'Hara has announced the intention to add $5000 more to it each year.

Next season it will carry $35,000 in added money and in 1932 it will be worth $50,000 added. That sort of money must attract the finest horses in the land.

Farrell Ranks Best Golfers in Ranks

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Champion

IT lies solely within the province of the United States Golf Association to select the Walker Cup team. This, in turn, is tantamount to an official ranking of the amateurs of the country.

Although the last American team won from the British by an overwhelming score—eleven matches to one—the selections of the U. S. G. A. did not go without criticism.

It was claimed by some, and they were at least partially substantiated by subsequent events, that some of the older golfers who had been more or less living on past exploits ought to have been dropped.

However, the U. S. G. A. was concerned only with the selection of a team that could successfully stand off the British, and that their choices were victorious beyond all hopes or expectations cannot be denied.

THERE is the belief, nevertheless, that a stronger team could have been mustered. True enough, I believe that the U. S. G. A. would readily concede that they had misjudged the capabilities of George Voigt even after the splendid record he had made.

Not only will Voigt probably be selected for the next Walker Cup team, but likely it will develop that he will be placed either second or third.

That is quite a jump from an enforced obscurity. Voigt, however, possesses one of the finest games anywhere and recognition of his abilities was bound to come.

Alex Smith, a great champion of another decade, is one of the best of the golf professors and moreover a keen judge of golf technique. He saw Voigt's smooth flowing style, and said with emphasis.

"You may place one or two amateurs ahead of him but that's all. That boy is a golfer."

To those who know Alex such praise is tribute.

If I were suddenly called upon to name the eight best amateurs I have seen, judging them on their recent achievements and not on what they accomplished in days of long ago, I think I would name these:

Bobby Jones, George Von Elm, George Voigt, Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston, Phillips Finlay, Johnny Dawson, Frank Dolp, Maurice McCarthy.

HERE is a team of young blood (excepting old timers like Jones and Von Elm) with the dash of youth and possessing plenty of golfing skill. Of a certainty the group would have almost wholly eclipsed the eight the British sent here to lift the Walker Cup.

Von Elm is given second place because of his great play in the American open. He was so close behind me that I could hear his putts rattling in the cups.

Voigt easily captures third place by his progressive movement in the amateur championship at Brae Burn and his following record in the Leslie cup maches.

STRONG SCHOOL TEAMS IMPROVE EACH WEEK

By DICK McSWEENEY

Schoolboy football tilts of Saturday furnished nothing which might be called an upset, although several good teams which were picked to win their games, ran up scores much higher than anyone expected, and looked better than ever.

Lynn Classical continued on its merry way by defeating Malden. Malden played a better game than the score would indicate, Lynn Classical really earning but one touchdown.

The game seemed to be Lorne Johnson versus Malden, as the fleet Lynn quarterback made all the touchdowns and points after them. Normandin, left halfback, played just as good a game as Johnson, but he never carried the ball when Classical got into the shadow of Malden's goal.

Fishman and O'Connor demonstrated that the left side of Classical's line needs bolstering, both of these backs ripping through for long gains in the second period.

MEDFORD DISAPPOINTED

The Medford-Haverhill clash was a disappointment to Blue and White fans. Kertzman's fumble and Wilder's inability to pierce the Haverhill frontier lost the game for Coach Collins' team. Buly Uanna tore off some long gallops, but he never got anywhere. Capt. Griffin was a bear on the defense for Medford and very few plays went through him.

Gill, the Haverhill left end, intercepted four Medford passes which might have gone for long gains. Barney looked good in the Brown and Gold backfield, but the Medford line did not give him any opportunities to break away.

Prendergast to La Porte was the forward passing combination which enabled Waltham to down Fitchburg. These two Watch City backs represent one of the smoothest passing duos in the State and the beauty of their work is its consistency.

Sheehan was Fitchburg's shining back but Waltham's strong line and efficient line prevented him from gaining much ground.

WALTHAM IS GOOD

Waltham seems to have been underrated this season. The Watch City team is a much better club than many fans realize.

Everett and Brookline garnered five touchdowns between them but nary a goal after touchdown was kicked. Everett won the game but Brookline put up a great fight.

Lynn English and Salem [illegible] a tie in a game featured by the great defensive play of Ruddock, the Lynn English center. Burgoyne showed up well for Salem. Clayman hurled some pretty forwards for the Lynn team.

Norwood managed to nose out Boston Latin. Kelleher and Connolly were the stars for Norwood. Latin's team will show to better advantage when it plays teams which are in its own class.

Somerville's cross-country team will race the Stoneham harriers today at Somerville.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

IT was the closing night of the Jack Dempsey show at the Boston Opera House. The Tiger was on the stage acting his part well.

Back stage in the dressing room Jerry Luvadis, probably better known as Jerry the Greek, sat on a chair which was tilted back, a cigarette held lightly between his lips. He was alone with Mr. Boston.

"Will you be glad when Dempsey finishes with this show?" queried Mr. Boston.

"I don't mind the show business," replied Jerry. "If it wasn't this, it would be something else. I'm always with Jack and he is always in action."

"How much money is the Tiger worth?" pressed Mr. Boston.

"Over $2,000,000," was the quick reply. "Jack picked up quite a bundle of dough in his last three fights. He got $800,000 when he battled Tunney in Philadelphia, $400,000 more out of the Sharkey bout and $775,000 from the Tunney contest in Chicago. This added to what the champ had already accumulated made him financially independent."

"DEMPSEY appears in better condition now than when he last fought Tunney," went on Mr. Boston.

"He is" said Jerry, as he lit another cigarette. "His mind is clear. All of his law suits have been disposed of, while he also sold his hotel out in Los Angeles, which was causing him a lot of annoyance."

"Do you think the Tiger will ever fight again?"

Jerry turned his gaze at a pile of trunks in one corner of the dressing room.

"I am all ready any time the Tiger gets into the fighting mood," he shot back. "See those trunks? Dempsey's fighting equipment is in there. I have even included the picks and shovels we used in the mountains of California when Jack was getting ready for Sharkey.

"We worked like day laborers in those days. We hid ourselves away in the mountains. For two months we used pick and shovel eight hours a day. Jack was then hard enough to start boxing. I still have the picks and shovels on hand. Some day, and maybe soon, Jack will decide he wants to use them again."

JERRY'S face lighted up. Once more he could feel the thrill of holding the Tiger back on the invisible leash as they waited for the gong to send him into action in a championship fight. He could visualize the Tiger as he crushed Willard, battered Carpentier down to defeat and beat Firpo at his own game of two handed punching.

"FIGHTING is in Dempsey's blood," resumed Jerry. "He is of a wild, bullish nature which cries out for action. You never see the Tiger in repose. He is always moving. The nervous energy in him is crying out for action.

"When this show closes up maybe I'll get out the picks and shovels once more. Who can tell? I have been watching the Tiger closely lately and he is more restless than ever. Maybe the call of the ring is once more strong within him."

THE door of the dressing room opened. The Tiger bolted in. As frisky as a colt, he lifted Jerry from his chair and playfully hit him a few times around the kidneys.

"You'd like to let the big punch go again," laughed Jerry.

"Guess you're right," said Dempsey. "I cannot help socking those birds I meet in my stage act. I like to watch them shiver when I clip them with my left hook."

"You could make a lot of money meeting setups around the country," declared Mr. Boston.

"There isn't anything in battling setups," was Dempsey's quick reply. "If I fight again, I want to meet the best man in the world. Then if I win, I'll get some glory and also be well paid."

"The winner of Tex Rickard's elimination tournament would be generally recognized as the world's leading heavyweight," went on Mr. Boston.

"That's so," replied Dempsey.

A SQUAD of expressmen came into the room to remove the trunks. Mr. Boston shook the Tiger's hand.

"I'll be at the ringside IF you fight again," said the veteran.

Dempsey laughed easily.

"I think the Tiger is getting itchy for ring action," said Jerry as he ushered Mr. Boston to the stage door.

Risko Bout Is Prize for Maloney-Renault Winner

MALONEY IS FAVORITE TONIGHT

Jim in Great Shape; Expects to Conquer Canadian at Mechanics Building

By JACK CONWAY

JIM MALONEY and Jack Renault will battle for the right to meet Johnny Risko when they collide in a 10-round bout at an Argonne A. A. show at Mechanics Building tonight.

Boston's New Garden has Risko under contract to mingle with Maloney on November 30. Shamus must clear the Renault hurdle to get the match. Otherwise it will go to the Canadian heavyweight champion.

Jack Conway

Risko agreed to show his stuff here when given a contract calling for a $7500 guarantee with a privilege of accepting 25 per cent of the receipts. Either Maloney or Renault would be willing to accept 25 per cent of the gate without asking for any guarantee.

Maloney, in view of his wins over Jack DeMave, Tony Fuente and Henry Lamar, will enter the ring a favorite tonight. Shamus is in fine condition and does not expect to experience much difficulty in eliminating the average run of contenders.

IT will be Renault's first Boston appearance since the night at the Arena when he was outscored by Sharkey after a hard battle. At the time Renault was one of the world's leading heavyweights. When Sharkey outpointed him, it put the Boston battler in line for the bout with Harry Wills which proved the turning point of his career.

Renault recently started a comeback drive. For a time he was in the movies, but the lure of the ring was too much for him. So he started to get into condition once more. Jack has engaged in a couple of bouts in the sticks and is prepared to move into big time company.

In addition to his conflict with Maloney tonight, Renault is also signed to mingle with Otto Von Porat at Detroit.

THE semifinal tonight will find Bob Mills, New Hampshire heavyweight champion, swinging away at Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight. Mills has knocked out Eddie Callahan and Romero Rojas. He is being piloted by Harry Kelley and the latter sees a bright future for his youthful protege.

Fuente has remained in Boston since his tussle with Maloney last summer. He declares he is physically fit for tonight's go and that he will hand the youthful Mills a boxing lesson.

Matchmaker Mack has arranged an attractive preliminary card.

Roberti-Hansen Go In the Offing

New York, Oct. 22—Tom McArdle, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, hopes to close today a match between Roberto Roberti, Italian heavyweight, and Knute Hansen, the melancholy Dane. Hansen already has signed.

McArdle also plans to arrange a match between Rene De Vos, Belgian middleweight, and Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat; a bout between Bushey Graham and Fidel La Barba, who vacated the bantamweight title, and a scrap between Tuffy Griffiths of Chicago and Jack Delaney.

The Roberti-Hansen and De Vos-Hudkins bouts, if closed, would be held in December and the November 30 date is being held open for the Griffiths-Delaney match.

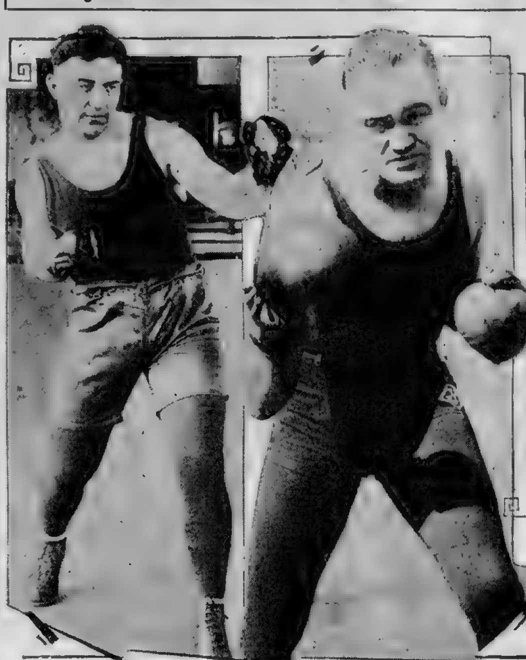

McLean Stable Good

The stable of Ned McLean, Washington publisher, breeder and sportsman, is sitting pretty at the top of the American money-winning list, with scant chance of being displaced before "taps" is sounded for the 1928 money-winning list.

JIM AND HIS OPPONENT

MEET IN SQUARE CIRCLE

Jack Renault, on right, will prove once and for all whether Jim Maloney is worthy of a bout with Johnny Risko tonight when the two gladiators meet at Mechanics building in the feature bout of 10 rounds. Risko has promised to meet the winner of this fray. Renault is making a desperate attempt to get back in the big money class and will be at his best for tonight's quarrel.

Punts, Passes and Fumbles

By BILL GRIMES

As was to be expected, Harvard went down before the Army, but Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Holy Cross and Yale will be making a sad mistake if they underestimate the Crimson.

Harvard showed great power and determination against West Point and will profit from the experience of last Saturday.

Harvard will have an advantage over Dartmouth, that of having played one of the strongest and most experienced teams in the country—West Point. The Green has not played a team that packed enough football to really offer an excuse for the players to become keyed up to a pitch, which would bring out their best efforts.

The Crimson made many errors in judgment and execution against the Army, but Coach Horween will send a greatly improved eleven in against Dartmouth. In fact, the Indians of the North will discover that Capt. Art French is leading the best team that has represented Harvard since these institutions resumed relations.

Apparently Hoot Ellis is on his way to replace Johnny Hoben at quarterback for Yale. At the start of the season, Hoben had the call, but he was smashed up in the Maine game and Ellis received his chance. Hoot piloted the Blue through the University of Georgia battle in fine style and he turned in a clever performance against Brown.

Al Marsters' absence from the Columbia game has thrown a scare into the heart of every Dartmouth sympathizer. Arlington Al must be on the injured list or Coach Hawley would have had him strutting his stuff against the Lion. Marsters has been a marked man all season, and as tough as he has shown himself to be, he is human and susceptible to injury.

One of the most thrilling games ever played in the Western Conference was the Purdue-Wisconsin 19-to-19 battle last Saturday at Lafayette. The Boilermakers have not defeated the Badgers since 1892, and when Jimmie Phelan's charges stepped out in front to the extent of a couple of touchdowns in the opening period, the home folks went wild.

However, Wisconsin squared matters in the next quarter and staged another comeback in the third stanza after they had dropped back seven points, by recovering a fumble by Caraway.

The Navy was lucky to break into the win column at the expense of Duke, which aggregation proved easy picking for the Pride of University Heights.

Duke was forced to play for three periods without its star ball carrier, Jankowski, and, but for a fumble deep down in its own territory by Bule, the Ingram outfit would have suffered its fourth consecutive shutout. The Navy will encounter more head winds next Saturday in Philadelphia when they set sail after Penn.

Albie Booth, a New Haven boy, will be a welcome addition to the Yale varsity next fall. Booth is starring on the freshman team at Yale and already he has won two games. He dropped a goal from the field to win the Hebron game and scored a touchdown and another drop kick against Exeter.

WALKER PUTS TEAM ON MARKET; TO RETIRE

Greenville, S. C., Oct. 22—Frank Walker has placed a "for sale" sign on his Greenville Spinners. It is reported that he is eager to sell the franchise and retire from baseball temporarily in the belief that a rest would be beneficial to his health.

He has been sick most of the summer and physicians advised him to undergo an operation.

In announcing his decision to dispose of the Greenville franchise Walker said he couldn't understand why the team hasn't been able to make a better showing.

"It's one of those queer things of baseball," he said.

BERNIE BURKE'S TEAM ¼ AFTER 120-POUNDERS

The Dorchester Shamrocks wish to arrange games with any fast 120-pound teams. The Shamrocks have played and won five games to date. The team lineup is as follows: Gorski, l.h.b.; Sholen, r.h.b.; Romonoski, f.b.; Flannegan, qb.; Crowley, re.; Madden, l.e.; King, r.t.; Allen, l.t.; O'Brien, r.g.; Valencia, c.; Sullivan, l.g. Bernie Burke is manager of the club and any team wishing a game call Col. 3191 or write Bernie Burke, 186 Sydney st., Dorchester.

PACIFIC COAST BOSSES TO MEET IN PORTLAND

Portland, Ore., Oct. 22—The annual meeting of the Pacific Coast League has been set for November 12 in this city.

Many matters are to come up at that time, including the election of a president, the discussion of the split season and a fight over the playing of spring exhibition games with major league teams that train on the Coast.

TERRIER LINE PLAYED WELL

Boston University, fresh from its victory over Bates, begins its drive today for the B. C. game at Fenway Park this Saturday.

Despite public opinion, the Terriers believe they have the ability to upset their rivals from the Heights. It was this same Pioneer outfit that dealt Holy Cross such a crushing blow two years ago by handing the Crusaders their only defeat of the season, 3-0.

Coach Reggie Brown and his cohorts realize that the Eagle team which they face Saturday is one of the strongest in the history of Boston College. However, B. U. has no slouch of a team itself this year and has not had its goal line crossed in the last three games.

The Pioneers bowed only to Army and has defeated Vermont and Bates and played a scoreless tie with New Hampshire.

With the exception of Buckwalter, B. U. came through the Bates game in great shape. Buckwalter was forced from the game in the final period with a badly bruised hip and had to be carried off the field. He will not be out in uniform again until later in the week.

The Pioneers played through the entire game with only four substitutes. The starting backfield remained intact until the last five minutes of play when Hugo Nelson replaced Thurman at right half.

Nelson was injured in the New Hampshire game two weeks ago and although he was in good shape Saturday he saw but a few minutes of action because B. U. is counting on him heavily for the game with the Eagles.

Phil Hootstein is another cripple who has returned to form, but was not used against Bates. Hootstein has not been seen in action since the opening game of the season against West Point, in which he suffered a severe sprained ankle.

He has completely recovered now and should be his usual self for the remainder of the season.

The B. U. line did its best work of the year Saturday and it was the fast charging of the forwards which hurried the Bates passes and was largely responsible for spoiling their aerial attack, which proved useless as a ground gainer all afternoon.

Manager Out

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 22—Reports are to the effect that Bill Pierre will not return next year as manager of the Lions, although he led them to a second half championship and then won the pennant in a playoff with Pensacola. No successor has been dug up by members of the Hot Stove League.

EL OUAFI SET PACE FOR 17 MILES

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—El Ouafi who defeated Joie Ray and seven others in the professional marathon race at Madison Square Garden last night was the pacemaker at the end of 17 of the 26 miles including the last four when Ray weakened. The following table shows the leader at the end of each mile and the time up to that point:

McKenney to Speak to Benedict Council

Mt. Benedict Council, Knights of Columbus, of Somerville, anticipate a big time tomorrow night, when Coach "Joe" McKenney of Boston College will speak. It is expected that he will bring along Capt. Warren McGuirk and several of the B. C. warriors.

The council still remembers the visits of Maj. Cavanaugh and his boys, and in inviting "Joe" McKenney it feels that those who attend will be well repaid by plenty of "inside" football.

Experts Bat for .800 in Picking Results

OLD MAN CONSENSUS started off another season on the right foot when he batted for .800 in Saturday's grid games.

He was right in every contest except those between Notre Dame vs. Georgia Tech and Fordham vs. Holy Cross, the results of which fooled all the experts and he was not very far off on these two for the figures showed the possibility of an upset in each.

Holy Cross was picked to win by only five points and Notre Dame by only three. That showed that Consensus wasn't any too sure about the pair winning.

The other games lived pretty well up to expectation.

The Army was the choice to beat Harvard by 17 points. It won by 15. Almost perfect, this one.

DARTMOUTH was rated as being 15 points stronger than Columbia. It proved to be 14 points stronger. Pretty close.

Yale was supposed to have a 23 point margin over Brown. It was able to pile up only an 18 point advantage, but five points isn't very much out of the way.

Princeton, by taking Lehigh into camp, 47 to 0, did slightly better than Consensus figured, the predicted score being 36 to 0.

Tufts was picked to win by 15 points. It won by 13. That's cutting the [illegible].

The dope was a little off on Penn-Penn State. While Penn came through with a win, as expected, it figured to win only by a point instead of two touchdowns as was the case.

Unlike Penn, B. U. didn't do as well as the dope indicated it would. The Terriers instead of winning by 17, finished but seven points in front.

THE Ohio State-Michigan game came the nearest to living up to the advance dope. Consensus score was 19 to 3 in favor of Ohio [illegible]

[illegible]

Saturday's record:

Game	Prediction	Result
Army	20	15
Harvard	3	0
Yale	26	32
Brown	3	14
Princeton	36	47
Fordham	10	19
Holy Cross	15	13
Georgia Tech	13	13
Notre Dame	16	0
Dartmouth	27	21
Columbia	0	7
Boston University	21	7
Bates	4	0
Ohio State	19	19
Michigan	3	7
Tufts	18	13
Bowdoin	3	0
Penn State	10	0

TUFTS PASSING GAME NEEDS BRACING

The Tufts squad, which came through the hard game with Bowdoin in fine shape, is now starting to point for the Brown game on Saturday in which it hopes to spring a surprise on its powerful opponent. The session today will be devoted to a [illegible] of the errors made in the Bowdoin game and a dummy scrimmage to illustrate just what went wrong.

There are several phases of the game in which Tufts was outplayed by her State of Maine rival. The most noticeable of these was in the passing game in which the Polar Bears were by far superior to their opponents.

[illegible] the Tufts forward was completed in the course of the game while seven of the Bowdoin aerials were successful for short gains. If Tufts does not improve in this department of the game it will be passed out of the picture next Saturday.

The want of a good dropkicker is [illegible] out at the Medford institution. Tufts has scored [illegible] touchdowns against her opponents this year and only one of [illegible] the point after touchdown [illegible] succeeded.

Musts and Must Nots

By DR. BRICE BELDEN

YOUR musts and must nots. You know that, in the interest of your welfare, there are certain things you must do and certain things you must not do.

You know that much of your knowledge has been acquired and so being used by you to enable you to choose with wisdom between the things you must do and the things you must not do.

You know that this wisdom on your part began when you began to recognize that there is such a thing as an actual and unalterable fact and from you began to direct your behavior according to the way that particular fact might affect your welfare.

You know, or may know if you will think about it, that you thus influence your welfare for good or woe in proportion to the importance of the fact or facts to which you may adjust your behavior.

What, then, aside from the fact of your existence and the existence of the universe of which you are a part, is to you the most important fact in the universe, the fact that you can recognize as such and accept for your largest guidance?

In answering this question let us see, one way cautiously by considering a few subordinate and widely separated facts:

Your parents were a man and a woman; your children's parents were a man and a woman—and so were the parents of all the children of whom you have knowledge.

A sound seed placed in moist soil at a given temperature sprouts and grows—and all seeds do the same right along.

An object dropped from your hand falls to the earth with an increasing velocity that is relative to its mass and the distance it falls—and it does it every time.

Two given substances combine to form a third substance unlike the first two—and they always do.

The earth turns completely round every 24 hours, giving us day and night—and it never fails.

The planets, the earth among them, revolve around the sun, each in a definite period called its year—and no planet ever fails to make the trip on time.

These and countless thousands of similar facts or occurrences, called phenomena, are but so many examples of motion or sets of motions.

Each fact or set of motions called a phenomenon, manifestly occurs as the result of some "push" or "pull" or "urge," called force, within the object o, objects concerned.

Each of these particular operations of force being always the same, is called a law and, occurring always within some object or objects of nature, is called a natural law.

The aggregate of all natural laws is conveniently called the natural law or, still more conveniently, just The Law.

The Law thus perceived is within and governs you and all objects of nature, whether you can see them or not, the aggregate of which objects comprise the universe.

The fact that The Law exists within and governs the universe and you as a part of the universe is, therefore, to you, the greatest safe fact in the universe.

It follows, therefore, that your greatest "must" is and must be to understand and observe The Law that governs your life and thus determines your destiny.

A Glittering Gown

"Metropolis" is an example of the new "glittering" gown done in a color so discreet, in a design of such restraint, that the glitter is subordinate. The color is that new gray blue, like polished steel, which has been used in important showings, often in gowns entirely beaded or spangled. It is quite like the blue lead in a lead pencil. The design is merely an arrangement of curving lines.

Don't Exchange Costly Gifts, Says Miss Fairfax

By Beatrice Fairfax
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

"RICH gifts wax poor when givers prove unkind," declared Shakespeare's Ophelia, sadly returning to Hamlet different remembrances of happier days.

How often have lovers repeated this sentiment, although in different words! Gifts do indeed lose meaning and recall unpleasant memories when the givers prove unkind. Return of presents under these circumstances proves embarrassing and difficult.

Barbara has this to say regarding a gift she made to a young man:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"About four months ago I met a nice young man while visiting in a distant town. I liked him very much and still do, and I know he did like me, for shortly after I met him he gave me a beautiful ring. I should not have accepted it, but I did. We corresponded and he came to see me when he could. But a few weeks ago we had a disagreement and I gave back his ring.

"Now, he has my class pin and I would like to have it very much. Twice I have written to him, once in answer to his letter and the second time, a formal note requesting the pin. I have received no answer.

"What shall I do? I want the pin, but I hate to write again for it, and it may be that I will never see him, again. I can forget him, for I am very busy, but I don't know how to get back my pin. Will you please tell me what to do?

"Another question: Do you think there are any young men of this modern age who like girls who don't smoke, dance, play cards or have petting parties, yet are not old-fashioned? I certainly would like to meet a young man who would be a pal to that kind of a girl."

First of all, Barbara, I shall answer your last question briefly.

Do I think modern young men like girls who do not smoke or drink? I know there are any number of young men who would love to count such a girl as a friend, provided she is charming and interesting, and who hope to win that kind of a girl for a sweetheart and wife.

Of course, a girl who refuses to play cards or dance narrows her circle somewhat. I am sure there are young men who prefer serious-minded companions. Such a girl might make friends by identifying herself with the church work of the young people of some denomination that frowns upon card-playing and dancing.

Now for your first question—how to get back the class pin! You write that you still like the young man who has the pin, so I am sure you will be careful to word your letter asking him for it, in a way that will not hurt his feelings.

Make your letter very cordial and sendly. Ask him whether he received your former letters requesting the pin. Explain how highly you value it because of its school associations and that in sending it to you by return mail, he will do you the greatest favor.

Register this letter, and have the mail clerk send you an acknowledgment of delivery. In this way you may recover the pin.

You see, yourself, Barbara, dear, do you not, that an embarrassing situation is nearly sure to result from exchange of costly presents between a man and girl who are not engaged. Inexpensive, impersonal trifles are the only wise remembrances in such a case.

Wearing another's class pin is almost tantamount to acknowledgment of an engagement to wed the donor, so it is especially foolish as a casual loan or gift.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Books Mr. Right and become engaged to him, both he and she are happier knowing about the Golden Girl—she has not exchanged costly gifts, implying dear friendship and obligations, with any man.

Correct Manners Are Explained by Mrs. Beeckman

By MRS. CORNELIU'S BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—To the left of my dinner plate were two forks and two knives. Each fork I knew is used for its main course. What is the other used for?

2—How should olives and celery stalks be eaten?

3—How should the olive pit be removed from the mouth?

4—After breaking off a mouthful of bread, where should the remaining piece of bread be placed?

5—Can one tell which is the proper knife, fork or spoon to use according to the silver laid the place?

6—When introducing a gentleman to one's father or mother, what is the proper introduction?

MAID.

THAT depends on the items on the menu. Probably one of the forks, if it is nearer to the dinner plate than the dinner fork, is the salad fork. If it is farther away from the plate than the dinner fork, it would be used for some course earlier than the roast course.

2—Olives should be held in the fingers and nibbled.

3—It shouldn't be removed from the mouth—for it shouldn't be left in the mouth. As you nibble the olive, don't put the pit entirely into the mouth.

4—On the bread and butter plate.

5—Yes, the silver should be placed on the table in the order in which the diner will need it—beginning with the utensil farthest from the plate, and using them in order toward the plate.

6—"Mother, this is Mr. Walter Brown," or "Mr. Brown, this is my mother," or "Mother, may I present Mr. Brown." To your father: "Father, this is Mr. Walter Brown," or "Father, Mr. Brown," or "Mr. Brown, this is my father."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am 19 years old and I received an invitation to my cousin's wedding. The invitation was addressed to me personally. In sending back the return card I wrote two persons, for myself and my escort. A few days later I received a letter from my cousin in which he wrote that he could not accommodate my escort, and he sent another card for me to write one person. Will you please let me know if he was right in doing this?

I am taking the blame that I was wrong in inviting an escort, but don't you think that he was twice as wrong in returning the card? This is the way I feel about it—if he only wanted me I think that he should have marked the return card for one person before sending me the invitation.

F. S.

YOU were in the wrong. Since the invitation was addressed to you only, you only should have accepted. On such occasions the people who are planning the party know how many guests they can accommodate, and the invitations are sent out accordingly. You have no right to enlarge the number on your invitation unless you first ask permission of the person who sent it to you.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My brother is giving a concert in the near future, and I am going with my family and am taking a very intimate friend, a young man, with us. There will be many people there I know very well. What would be the proper introduction when introducing him to friends and relatives? Neither my mother nor my father would play any part in the introduction.

JOAN.

THE introduction would be the usual form. When you introduce the gentleman to a woman say, "Miss Lady, may I present Mr. Gentleman?" and to a man mention only the names, "Mr. Allen. Mr. Gregory."

Probably many of the introductions will be very casual, and possibly more or less hurried. In these cases mention only the names, articulating them so that each person can easily understand the name of the other person, and making the introduction very graciously.

Catherine of Russia and Her Great Love Affair

By COZETTE DOUGLASS

FOR many years, Catherine I of Russia was one of the "mystery" figures of history; that is, as far as her origin and true character were concerned.

However, it has been established that she was born of Lithuanian stock. Her father, Samuel Skovron sky, died of the plague when she was a baby and the family was scattered. Martha, as she was born, was adopted by Pastor Gluck, the Protestant superintendent of the Marienburg district, although she had been born a Catholic. Evidently the good pastor's frau had no deep love for Martha, for she married her at an early age to a Swedish dragoon named Johan. Shortly after her marriage, when the Russians compelled the Swedes to evacuate Marienberg, Martha was taken prisoner of war by the Russian marshal, who sold her to Prince Menshikov. It was in the prince's palace in Moscow that Peter the Great first saw Martha and promptly fell in love with her.

In 1710 Martha was received into the Orthodox Church with the Czarevitch Alexius her godfather. She was rechristened Catherine Alekseyevna and the title Gosudarunya (or sovereign) was bestowed on her.

Then it was that Peter determined to divorce the Empress Eudoxia, which he promptly did, and married Catherine with great ceremony in 1711.

Whatever Catherine lacked in education, she more than made up for in her natural shrewdness and common sense. She was remarkably good-natured under the most exceptionally difficult situations and possessed of remarkable courage. Indeed, Peter insisted that Catherine be ever at his side. She even accompanied him during the campaign of Pruth, and Peter insisted that his success in that disastrous war was due largely to her courage and sang froid.

But her name was not destined to be free from scandal. After she had been proclaimed Peter's successor, she was threatened with ruin by the alleged discovery or an affair between herself and William Mons, her valet de chambre. Catherine maintained that it was nothing more than an innocent flirtation, and Peter evidently believed her, for she did not lose his favor. However, Mons was beheaded and his head, preserved in spirits, was placed in the Empress' apartment.

This may have been Peter's little idea of a joke, but it evidently did not disturb either his love or Catherine's unfailing good nature, for it is recorded that she attended Peter to the last.

On his death she was proclaimed Empress, but reigned but two short years after Peter's death.

Serviss on Tidal Friction

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Kindly explain why the moon does not rotate on its axis when all other planets do. To what original occurrence is this phenomenon due?—M. Werbow."

THE moon does rotate on its axis, but it appears not to rotate because it makes only one of its rotations once around the earth, I. e., in a lunar month, so that it keeps always the same face toward the earth. What we have to account for is the slowing down of its rate of rotation, for it is probable that the moon once rotated much more rapidly. The explanation involves one of the most remarkable instances of action invoked in astronomy, viz., the effect of "tidal friction."

For a complete demonstration one must have recourse to abstract mathematical physics, but the gist of the matter may be easily understood by a simple consideration of the forces concerned. It may be remarked that these forces are shortening the time of the earth's rotation also, but at so slow a rate that the calculated amount is only about one-thousandth of a second in a hundred years.

Let us first consider the effect of tidal friction on the rotation of the earth. The principal tide-produ ce is the attraction of the moon on the water of the oceans. The force that raises the tide is directed toward the moon. The moon travels around the earth once in about a month, but the earth in the meantime rotates 21 times on its axis, turning in the same direction in which the moon revolves around it. Owing to this the tide (being held in leash by the moon) sweeps westward over the earth, and, inevitably a certain degree of friction occurs between the water and the solid crust. This friction is mainly manifested where the tidal wave encounter the shores of the continents.

But the moon has no oceans though it may perhaps have had some in the remote past) and you ask reasonably enough: "How can the moon have had its rotation almost destroyed by tidal friction while the earth is so very slightly affected by the same cause?"

To say nothing of the fact that the earth's attraction would have produced immensely greater tides upon the moon when, and if, it had oceans, than the moon could ever produce upon the earth, we have only to consider that when the moon was in a semi-solid state the tidal force strongly affected its whole mass and drew it into a slightly ellipsoidal form, the result being to give the earth a tidal attraction an increased mechanical advantage and so to hasten the destruction of the rotational momentum.

There is an "astronomical nuance" associated with this subject, for calculation shows that, working backward, an epoch can be discerned when the moon was probably separated from the earth and then driven by the interplay of certain forces arising from tidal friction, step by step, to its present distance from the earth. Its rotation being at the same time gradually slowed down. The same calculation carried forward from the present indicates that the earth's day will gradually grow longer, while the moon's distance will increase, and at last the earth and moon will each keep the same face always turned toward its companion. After that, avers the same mathematics, the terrestrial day will become actually longer than the month, whereupon the moon will begin to return to its mother earth and may once more rest in the maternal bosom—unless, as Jeffreys has calculated it, it is torn to pieces when it once more approaches its deserted parent and ends its career by surrounding the earth with a ring of meteors—a sort of crown, or garland, of filial repentence.

About Authority

By LUCY LOWELL

IGNORE pretended authority.

The person who tells you and others what to do and how to do it—the self-appointed master of the ceremony of life—ignores that person. But don't ignore him by letting your action be accompanied with no word or look to indicate that it is premeditated.

For, if you accord resentment to pretended authority you acknowledge it, and in so doing stamp it with the right to make offense. It may not have some claim to consideration.

A little more patience will be a help in meeting and passing in its place the annoyance of pretended authority—just as patience will always be helpful for us one under any conditions.

And a bit of charity will come in good here as well; only taken both in the sense of understanding and of love. For you will find it difficult to understand the person you do not regard with affectionate good will and you surely will fall in your relationship to a humanity you do not understand.

Also you might throw in a measure of faith, even though it requires an effort to establish a sense of faith in someone you regard as thoroughly disagreeable—and who does not regard the self-appointed dictator as disagreeable?

But however that may be, it will not require a great deal of hunting about to find something in the personality of the offending one which promises well, something which may be likable or admirable—something to fasten a bit of faith upon.

And when you have done all of these things carefully and well pretended authority, whatever may be the place it holds in your life, will no longer trouble you. You will have met it by the aggressive and invincible system of returning good for evil the while you have protected yourself by a knowledge of just what it is you are opposing and thus you have made your position secure.

A PLEASING MODEL FOR A MORNING DRESS (FOR STOUT FIGURES)

6280 Slenderizing lines are featured in this model, which is especially adapted to mature figures. The side portions of the front are joined to a cente panel under tu·ks, at the termination of which plait pieces, sloping provide graceful and comfortable fullness. Convenient pockets trim the side fronts. The sleeve is a shirt sleeve model, finished with a cuff. The square neck is very becoming. As pictured here, dotted tub silk in white and blue was used. Pongee in a natural shade would be pleasing, with a finish of white piping.

The Pattern for this style is cut in nine sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52 and 54 inches bust measure. To make a 46-inch size will require 5¼ yards of 27-inch material together with ⅝ yard of contrasting material for facing on cuffs, belt and pockets. To finish with bias binding as illustrated will require 2⅜ yards. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plaits extended is 2¾ yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coins or stamps. Send number and size of pattern ordered with your name and address.

Send 12c in coins or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL AND WINTER 1928-29 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

With a Lure Like Distant Laughter . . . NEW ENGLAND!

TODAY the world is full of travelers taught by the automobile and the example of others how to enjoy life more broadly. Since childhood they have known the fame of New England's coastline and countryside, its mountain resorts and woodland waters. Now, more than ever before, they can be persuaded to discover and explore for themselves New England's unlimited resources for recreation. The taxable value of summer homes in New England owned by non-residents alone has increased $346,000,000 in two decades and totals approximately $324,000,000.

RECREATION FOR EVERYONE

No other section of the United States has been endowed with so vast and varied a wealth of the things which feast the eyes, the mind, the body and soul of all mankind in search of recreation. In addition to Nature's lavish gifts, mellowed by centuries of human use, New England has the accumulated birthright of the Founders and the Pioneers: three hundred years of American leadership and achievement in the arts and sciences, commerce and industry, in the history and traditions of the nation. No other section of the continent has so proud and so far-flung family tree drawing men and women back to ancestral scenes, even unto the fifth and sixth generation.

All of these things have so long been woven into the literature and folklore of the nation, that now the combined and countless attractions of New England have a charm as universal as the lure of laughter to a distant room.

To a greater or less degree, every community in New England can make use of this universal interest in the opportunities New England provides for enjoyment and adventuring. Practically every sort of enterprise, from local agriculture to education, art, industry, and retail trade, draws profits from the millions of dollars which come with these travelers and from the nation-wide good will and advertising they take home to oft' told tales of their days in New England.

But each community must promote this friendly business in a businesslike way. The Recreational Industry, born here in America's first national playground, has become truly a new national industry, a gargantuan business which reckons its totals in untold billions. Luxurious travel accommodations and 23,000,000 automobiles have made it quite possible for a hamlet in New Hampshire to have direct competition from a "dude ranch" in Wyoming or a wayside lodge in the High Sierras.

ONE TOWN'S RECORD

One little New England town, for instance, studied its advertising and publicity needs and appropriated an annual fund equal to one-tenth of one mill for each dollar of its assessed valuation. At the end of the first year, the resultant cash income from its seasonal "tourist business" proved to be $536,000, or more than half the whole town's total valuation.

The New England Council, through its Committee on Recreational Resources, is actively engaged in stimulating the development and use of New England's vast resources for recreation. A new catalog of New England recreational literature and a directory of sources from which booklets will be mailed to anyone on request, has just been published. It tells "how to find where to go." It's free. Write for it.

STOLEN LOVE by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Author of "The SECRET STUDIO"

Will Any Man Love a Girl Who Has a Past?

CHAPTER 30

THE wealthy Dutchman who had served as meal ticket and entertainment committee all Winter had gone East in the Spring, and for once in her life Ruth Gillespie was without "a boy friend." Of course, there was Rollo Keyes, bombarding her with letters, and slightly stale chocolates from the South—but he was too far away to count.

She was on her way home, feeling "low in her mind" in spite of the new black satin outfit that had cost five weeks' salary, and made her look like a Baron de Meyer photograph, when someone called her name—"Ruth!"

She wheeled sharply. "Great Scott—Will'um—where did you drop from?"

"Texas!"

"You sure don't look it. Dear old London, or little old N' York's more like it. Stand still and let me look at you. If it isn't good just to do that. Say, if you aren't the lemon doing the disappearing act that way, though—and me crying my eyes out, thinking you didn't love me any more!"

She looked into his eyes, and laughed, her charming bubbling laugh. The little dimple near her mouth quivered, her round brown eyes danced with merriment.

He grinned, and took her arm—"Come on to a beanery. I've been waiting on the corner, watching your damned old millinery window for an hour. Thought you'd never shut up shop. If that isn't a sign of love, on the part of a hungry man—"

"Waiting for me—or Joan—" she asked quickly, and could have bit her tongue off the next moment. Fool. To remind him—

"Joan—is she still working?"

"Some might call it that."

But he looked so cold and strained she added quickly, "Oh you know what I mean—she's Madame's pet—goes home any old time. That's how you've missed her. Say—how long have you been waiting outside for Joan, passing me up, eh?"

"Not very long," he said. "Care where we eat? Is a grill all right? Let's go to one of those places where they have booths. I want to talk to you—Lord it's been a long time.

"Yes, I know what you want to talk about," she thought, reading his still boyish face, his candid blue eyes. "Joan!" And she answered. "Anywhere at all, Will'um honey—here, at Fred's will do."

At dinner she chattered for a little while, cleverly, putting him at his ease again. Gay, friendly Ruth!

But over the coffee and cigarettes he came back to the thing that was on his mind, the thing he had come to ask. "I understand Joan is going to be married soon."

"Oh yes—they're making quite a fuss about it. Pictures in the papers and what not. It seems our Joan is some kind of big potatoes herself—"

"She's a Van Fleet," he said absently.

"Aha—so you know all about Joan!"

'I Know All About Her People,' He Told Her Then

"I know all about her people," he amended. "They are a very old family, a sort of a tradition. Everyone in Marin knows their property, and I suppose the old-timers on this side—"

"Oh—I though you and Joan were sweethearts," she said slyly.

He didn't raise his eyes from his plate, but the knuckles of his hand stood out whitely. "Where did you get that idea?"

"Joan."

"I suppose one might call it that," he said after a pause. "I thought an awful lot of her anyway, when I was a kid."

Her brown eyes were soft with sympathy. "These kid affairs," she sighed. "Gosh, the times my young heart was broke!" She laughed again. "Give me another cigarette."

"I hope she will be very happy," he said finally. "She is a fine girl. You know the man, don't you? He has a mighty fine reputation—"

"Yes, I know him," she said. Her thoughts were darting back and forth, scheming, planning, quickly—quickly—"He is really an awfully nice sort, and they're frightfully in love—it embarrasses me to look at 'em!"

She saw him wince, but he spoke heartily enough. "Well, that's the way it ought to be. Can't imagine anyone getting married if they're not in love. When is your wedding coming off, Ruth?"

"Mine!" Listen to him—say, a fat chance I have of getting married with that old ogre of a father of Rollo's sitting on his money bags, growling like a bulldog with a sore tooth—"

"Oh, come off that, Ruth. Old Man Keyes is a wonder—"

"Wonder! Wonder of a tightwad—selfish old pig—"

"Best friend I ever had, Ruth."

She looked at him sharply. "Because he gave you a job and made you work like hell—you can't tell me—I know. Rollo himself said you slaved for him—"

"Oh, no—that isn't so. He—well—he's been everything to me. I'd be riding a breakbeam this minute I guess if it hadn't been for him. He—"

"Say, he didn't settle something on you, did he?" Her shrewd eyes searched him again. Bill had always looked prosperous, but there was a different air about him this trip. An air of assurance. He wasn't a boy with a good job any longer, he was a man with an assured future—she knew—she'd seen enough to know—

He grinned, boyishly now. "Better than that. Want to hear about it?"

"Of course, I do, Will'um—" She reached over and squeezed his hand, his nice, strong hand, with the slender, brown fingers.

"We're partners!" he laughed, and thumped his chest.

"No!—In partnership with Emmet Keyes—"

"Oh, just on one deal—don't get excited! Still it sounds good, doesn't it? You see it was this way. I—well—I kind of blew up after I went back. Rollo and I were hitting it pretty high, Rollo trying to drown his sorrows, and I helping him and—well—the old man called me down

'He Wanted Me to Go to the Oil Fields and Go to Work'

"He was all in the right. Wanted me to go back to the oil fields and go to work. I got on the train all right, but I didn't get off at Bakersfield. I guess I had the itching foot. I wanted to hobo it. It didn't seem worth while working all the time—"

"Boys will be boys," Ruth murmured. ("As if I don't know why Bill Martin—all cut up over Joan's engagement, I know—")

"But it didn't work out. I got sick of it. I begged a few meals—that woke me up, so I went to work. Got a job around the oil fields for a while. There was some talk about something doing out in Texas—that gave me an excuse to go on. To cut it short it wasn't all talk, it looked like a big thing to me, and I thought it might be my way of making up to the old man for the raw deal I'd handed him, walking out without any reason, so I beat it back and—"

"William Martin, do you mean to say you struck some rich oil proposition, and you're in on it with Old Man Keyes—"

"Well—it may not amount to so much," he said with a little deprecating grin. "Still, it's a big thing for me, getting in with Keyes like that—he's a prince, Ruthie. When you know him better—"

"I'm never going to know him any better—not if I see him first!"

"Oh, come, come—don't you see that all this will put Rollo on his feet, too? You didn't think I'd forget a pal, did you? Why Ruth, it won't be any time before you and Rollo—"

She leaned over and took his hand again. "Will'um—don't. Don't say any more until I tell you something—"

"Why Ruth—you aren't crying! Well, for—"

She nodded, her big brown eyes brimming. "You're darn right I am. Will'um—I didn't want to tell you—but damn it—I've got to—"

Bill had forgotten how pretty she was, with her lovely pink skin, and her round brown eyes, soft and appealing now, brimming with tears.

He squeezed her hand comfortingly, and the tears overflowed, rolled pathetically down her cheeks.

"It's about Rollo," she said between sobs.

"Well, you don't have to worry about him. He'll be faithful to the judgment day."

"That's just it—I'm not going to wait for any man till the judgment day. I'm getting tired of it. He has no right——"

"But, Ruth, I was just telling you—this new deal with Keyes——"

She made a little face, and dabbed at her eyes with a wisp of handkerchief. "Bill, I'm trying to tell you, and you keep interrupting. Rollo's a good kid—I—I'm crazy about Rollo—but he put me off too long. I've lost interest, Will'um. I've lost my fine enthusiasm for being Mrs. Rollo Keyes. I——"

"So you don't love Rollo," he said slowly.

"I never said I did."

"But he thinks you do—he thinks the world and all of you, Ruth. Don't you think you could ever——" he broke off nervously. "I wish you hadn't told me——"

She came and stood beside him, her lovely face close to his. "But there's no one else I could tell it to, Will-um—nobody at all. You've got to help me out of this. I don't know what to do. Oh, darn that waiter—always poking his ugly mug in here—come up to my room where we can talk."

"But I couldn't tonight, Ruth."

"Some other girl—I know—"

"Two other girls," he smiled, and looked at his watch. "I've got to meet a fellow in fifteen minutes, and I ought to dash up to the hotel and dress first—"

"You look very beautiful now—"

"Just time to put you in a taxi and send you home."

"But when am I going to see you again, Will'um? You know what Rollo is when he gets his mind on anything—you've got to help me—I haven't anybody else. Tomorrow—come tomorrow—"

"I couldn't tomorrow—"

"Will'um, are you trying to ditch me?"

"No, but I couldn't come then. The day after—will that do."

"I suppose so, bye-bye, Will'um honey—see you Friday!"

The taxi chugged away, her bright face at the window blurred and was gone.

Slowly he walked to the hotel, buying all the evening papers on the way. One of them might have a picture of Joan.

The Farleys' dinner was over early, thank goodness. Joan came in yawning, although it was just half past ten. "Ooh, I'm sleepy. They're the dullest people I ever met in my life. But old, old friends of the Barstows, so we had to go. I'm dead for sleep. So's Curtis. He's so tired he's cross—Curtis—" She laughed unsteadily. "Can you imagine Curtis being cross, Maisie?"

"Well, most men get that way once in a while—"

"Why don't you go to bed if you're sleepy?" Maisie asked sensibly. "The one night you could get a little rest you stand around and talk!"

"But I wanted to tell you about the week-end. Maisie, would you be very lonely if I went up to the cabin with Curtis—"

"If you what?"

"Oh, Maisie—you do look so funny!" Joan dropped into the rocker, and shook with laughter. "Oh, dear—I'm so tired I'm foolish. The cabin in the Santa Cruz mountains where we were at Thanksgiving. Mrs. Barstow and Mrs Cunningham, I think—some friend of hers anyway—and another couple, the Lairds I believe. Won't it be great? A whole week-end and not a [illegible] dinner!" She laughed again, and yawned. "I hope we have lots of picnics—you won't be lonely, Maisie?"

Maisie beamed. "Well—if that don't work out just fine. Here I had a letter from Gerald, that's my oldest boy in Stockton, asking me for their wedding anniversary on Saturday. They're going to have quite a big time. I was thinkin' I might go."

Packing. The small flat was in an uproar. Packages. Expressmen. Delivery boys. Maisie was equipped for six months at the North Pole instead of three days at Stockton.

"Goodbye, dearie . . . have a good time yourself . . . you won't be lonesome if you get home before I do? You better call up Mis' Harvey an' have her come stay with you . . . well, it's all right if you don't want her . . . goodbye . . . goodbye!"

Maisie was on her way!

Curtis . . . Joan's mouth twitched. She sank in an ungraceful little heap on the floor beside the open suitcase, looking at it with unseeing eyes.

"Oh, Curtis . . . dear . . . if I can only make up to you—for everything—and forget . . . forget everything else . . ."

Brrr . . . Brr . . . Brrr . . . The telephone, jangling, insistent.

Evening Clothes -:- One Dresses to Meet Romance The Other to Dream of It -:-

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

OLD Mister-Man-in-the-Moon must have a lot of quiet laughs to himself. And lots of times I can imagine him heaving a sigh and wiping a furtive tear when he glances down the beams which he sends earthward and sees the effects which his silvery light has on us mortals.

Here he sees one lovely maiden all dressed up in gorgeous finery; jewels sparkling, tiny feet keeping time to the beat and rhythm of the music as she sways through the dizzy mazes of an intricate dance, perfectly groomed, carefully coiffed, eyes bright with the thrill and lure of the search for Romance. To her evening clothes mean the bait with which she will eventually capture the will-o'-the-wisp Romance.

Then he peeps through the softly curtained window of a vine-covered cottage and sees there the girl whose eyes are round with the wonder of everything, who glories in the light which he sends to her and watches the flicker of the shadows and peoples the night with her dreams. She, too, is in evening dress, only she's not flaunting her charms for all who pass to see. She's dreaming of the Romance which is to come seeking her.

Which do you think will win? Eventually both, but in oh, so different a way. One romance will be as will-o'-the-wisp as the searcher; the other as steadfast and holy as the dreamer. But each to her taste, my dears. After all, Romance is Romance always, the only difference being in each one's conception of it.

'Tiger Love'; Meredith Warned

she said. "It has been dreadful. . . . and I am only a humble girl of wandering folk. Please, Sahib, let me talk another time . . . tomorrow . . . whenever you say."

He laughed almost bitterly.

"Do you remember what you promised me when you lay upon that couch in the high-priest's house, back in that jungle village?" he demanded. His voice was tense and the clasp of his fingers pinched her arm. Yet she would not cry out.

"With my life," she answered softly. "And I mean it. It was true then. It is true now."

He paused. He caught one hand in both his own.

"That is enough. Meet me tomorrow on the brink of the river far below the town. I will be waiting for you as early after sunrise as you can get there. . . . Indeed, I can go there now. Where is it that these people and you are living?"

"In that door there," she answered, pointing to a dark aperture across the narrow thoroughfare. "And if I am to see you alone I had best go now."

"Yes. Tomorrow I will be waiting for you—below the town. There's a grove of trees there. I passed it when we motored into the town tonight."

He closed his fingers about her own in a grip which thrilled them both. He watched her enter the doorway. There was a dim light on the floor above a few seconds later. He was assured that she was safe.

And then he walked slowly down the dark street to seek MacPherson, the British officer who had come down to the town to share his search.

"Will you be busy through the night?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. There's a lot to do. Dirty mess here and it will hold me until tomorrow afternoon, at least. I'll have to do some investigating right straight on past daylight."

Meredith nodded.

"Then I'll take off these dude and change with your regular man who is wearing mine. It was very fine of you to permit me to get into this tonight. It meant a lot to me, Sergeant."

The non-commissioned officer looked at him steadily for an embarrassing length of time. Twice he essayed to speak and then started away.

"What was it you wanted to say?" asked Meredith earnestly.

"Just this, sir, if you'll pardon me. It's none of my business, sir, for I'm not even a commissioned officer and not in a position to give a gentleman advice. . . . But, at least, I'd suggest going a bit slow with these native girls. You see, sir, you're in a peculiar position with your work for the Rajah. It might get back to his ears."

MacPherson paused.

"These here Indian princes is peculiar, sir. It's all very well for them to have all the native women they want. But they don't quite act as if it was 'a-playing the game' for you white gentlemen to take a hand at it. And besides, sir, you're an American, and might be the more criticised."

The engineer smiled quietly and gave the Sergeant a friendly clap on the shoulder.

"You're a brick, MacPherson. Thank you. I'll think it over," he said simply. "I'm going to take a walk and meditate on it as soon as I get out of a uniform which doesn't belong to me."

And in 10 minutes he was walking down the river, toward the little wood, to await the dawn. And he had promptly forgotten the Sergeant's advice in a thousand sweet fancies of his own.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Here is the TRUTH about Face Creams

—and Edna Wallace Hopper ought to know!

"I AM ASKED a dozen times a day, the kind of face cream I use; and if it really IS a cream that has kept my complexion flawless.

"A cream did give my skin its unusual softness, and does keep it soft and smooth. I must give the cream full credit. I have employed no extraordinary care in applying it, for I haven't had the time. I doubt if any woman creams her face more quickly, day or night.

"But I cannot repeat too often that no ordinary cream has done this. I have no faith in common tallow creams; I don't see what the best of them could accomplish. For more than twenty years [Miss Hopper has been on the stage forty-two] I have used cream of French formula. Two creams, in fact; I found them in France. I am a stage star today because of them. [Both photos of Miss Hopper were taken last month!]

"These creams, one a 'cold' cream and the other 'vanishing,' are in every American store today. I helped put them there. It was I who told an American laboratory of them, and how to go about making them. I even suggested the name Youth Cream, and later permitted them to print Edna Wallace Hopper on the label. For I can't bear to see women pay the same—and more—for creams that are nothing but tallow!

"The active ingredients of Youth Cream—among which are two extracted from lemons and strawberries—aren't long in setting up their stimulation. So the woman who tries this kind of cream will soon see the proof of what it is doing as a tissue builder and cleanser of the pores.

Back to short pants for pajamas, anyway, for the new models all show knee length trousers. These are developed in bright patterned batiste and broadcloth, and are generally sleeveless. An adjustable waistband and fullness at the hips insure comfort for the wearer. For the mature woman there is also the innovation of the knee length coat, while the trousers remain long.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

IT'S as hard to find a man who picks out a wife for the beauties of her character these days as it is to find one who chooses his food for the vitamin.

Autumn reflections: In April you joyously plant a brand new garden. In May you buy a gay hat and a bright new bathing suit. In June you start a thrilling new love affair. And LOOK at the darned thing now!

A man is seldom so blinded by a vamp's charms that he can't find his way back to his wife's protecting arms when the affair begins to look like an entanglement.

All that precious time that Mother used to waste in keeping her hot on straight Daughter now spends in getting her lips on straight.

Before marriage a man will stop right in the middle of his morning shave to talk for half an hour with his sweetheart over the telephone. After marriage he won't even part his lips under the lather to answer her.

* * *

The modern woman accomplishes lots more in this world than the old-fashioned woman did, chiefly because she devotes less time to trying to find a man to do it FOR her, and still less to bragging about him after she's found him.

ABOUT COLORS

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

I REMEMBER when we all envied a more affluent little girl in our school because she had a room of her own and it was sky blue, furnished with birdseye maple. Sky blue and birdseye maple seemed to us the epitome of what the well-dressed bedroom should wear, and every one of our mothers who could afford it promptly went out and bought pale blue wallpaper, pale blue bedspread and dresser scarf, and if possible ordered a suite of hideous birdseye maple furniture.

All this because somebody else had it, with never a thought as to ha vthe color would affect us individually—in fact, if anyone had dared to suggest in those days that certain colors would affect a child's behavior, he would have been put down as insane. In fact, too little thought is still expended upon the the effects of various colors, both for adults and children. We have for so long chosen a color which pleases eye rather than feeds our emotional needs.

The mother o fthose days would have hooted at the person who was so bold as to infer that blue as a flat color and used in large a producer of melancholia, a slippery hill down, which feelings can and do coast to depressing depths. But this seems to be pretty well born out in the hospitals which have considered the therapeutic value of color in connection with mental and emotional disturbances.

The fact that hospitals, schools, offices and industrial plants are investigating the use of color in promoting healthier and happier reactions to persons concerned with them, points toward the fact that color s worth considering a regard to children.

My choice of colors for the nursery is yellow, particularly if the room used by the youngest member of the family is on the north side of the house. Yellow is an excellent aid where visibility is needed. It is sunny in tone, reflective and gay.

For the moody, introspective child I should suggest a bedroom done in an orange of purity. Orange is fully vibrant, it is an "upward color, lifting the spirit. It is a happy color, and is excellent for use in the room of a child who needs warmth of spirit and mind.

For the youngster who is full of vigor, bubbling over with energy which doesn't even want to "sign off" long enough for him to sleep, a room in which the general color scheme is of green, will prove pacifying and restful. This type of child may even be given a room in which blue is the predominating note without ill effects. Violet is also passive and subduing.

Red, while a most human, enlivening color, should be used with exceeding care and sparingly.

Try asking your child his favorite color, and give him plenty of that color in his surroundings. He will not know why it is that he wants that color; you may not know why he does nor what need it meets in his emotional life, but we generally want colors which are giving us something we require mentally or emotionally.

Break Ground for 19th Amendment Headquarters

Breaking ground for the Nineteenth Amendment Headquarters was a memorable occasion last week. The Nineteenth Amendment, as you know, makes everybody a Vegetarian, and abolishes the open meat market. Thousands of families are penniless because the fathers spend wages for beef, mutton and pork. Meats cause rheumatism, which in turn cripples countless thousands. The open meat market must go!

NEW ENGLAND HARBOR WORK PLANNED

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

National Rivers and Harbors Congress, of which Riley J. Wilson is president, meets in Washington, December 5 and 6. Its members will work in behalf of the pending River and Harbor Bill, which includes the following New England projects: Massachusetts — Salem Harbor, $40,000; Dorchester Bay and Neponset River, $162,000; Nantucket Sound, $27,000. Connecticut—New Haven Harbor, $152,000. An important section of the bill declares it to be the policy of Congress that all river and harbor projects shall be completed within six years after their adoption, where physically practicable.

Will the Sherman anti-trust law be the means of driving more big corporations across the frontier for charters? This question is brought to mind by the proposed International Nickel-Mond merger. As the consolidation would control around 90 per cent of the world's nickel output and even a greater amount of the world's reserves of nickel ore, it is necessary that the holding company be either Canadian or English so as not to conflict with the Sherman anti-trust law.

TRADE CHIEFS CONFIDENT ON OUTLOOK

By B. C. FORBES

Chicago, Oct. 22—Chicago's industrial and business leaders have robust confidence not only in the outlook for balance of this year, but in what nineteen twenty-nine will bring Chicago's bankers. Chicago's bankers are less confident largely because they fear Wall Street may bring on some unsettlement.

B. C. Forbes

Let leaders in different industries speak for themselves.

Silas H. Strawn, chairman of Montgomery, Ward & Co., observes:

"I believe business conditions are sound. From the viewpoint of a Republican it would seem that the election of Mr. Hoover was being discounted and that our manufacturers and business men are going ahead accordingly.

Fred W. Sargent, president Chicago Northwestern Railway, says: "In my opinion the Northwest has turned the corner and is rapidly resuming its place of leadership in agricultural production and agricultural wealth."

Otto H. Falk, president Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, observes:

"So far as the power machinery field is concerned we find business at the present time in fair shape. So far as I can see, there would seem to be good reason to expect sound and steady business in the coming months."

• • •

William Wrigley, Jr., whose business brings him into intimate touch with the whole country, states:

"My experience is that business is in a very satisfactory condition throughout the United States. Nineteen twenty-eight up to date has been a very successful year."

Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Co., thus reads the outlook.

"There is good reason to be optimistic about business. Most large industries are operating at a high rate and from reports we have received they are expecting to continue active for some time. The meat packing industry is enjoying better conditions than it has for some time.

The present rate of interest is having a conservative influence on business, but does not seem to be causing serious concern—at least for the near future. Commodity prices are showing strength and farm purchasing power is good. The presidential election is not a disturbing factor this year and business men in general are optimistic. This country has achieved a remarkable degree of business stability in late years.

"Have confidence that the future holds great promise."

All of which is encouraging, is it not?

VEIDT TO STAR IN 'RETURN OF THE PHANTOM'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22—Carl Laemmle, Jr., who seems to find time to dance and dine with Hollywood's film debutantes and at the same time to furnish his dad and Universal with plenty of ideas, has burst forth with a new one. Junior yearns to make a sequel to "The Phantom of the Opera," one of Universal's most widely known and spectacular productions.

Not only does the lad yearn to make such a picture but active preparations are now on to film "The Return of the Phantom" with Conrad Veidt. It's Veidt's type of role. If the phantom has any of the characteristics of its predecessor we can look for a great performance from Veidt.

The girl may be Mary Philbin. That hasn't been definitely decided yet. Miss Philbin has just renewed her contract with Universal. There is also talk that she will go to Germany to appear in a picture to be supervised by Paul Kohner, who has been sent over there to turn out some Universal specials. Paul Leni, who retains in the country much of the directorial ability that brought him here, will direct.

RUTH ELDER has had her fling as an aviatrix, with recalcitrant husband and on the Paramount lot, and now she is going to bring her aviation into the movies with Hoot Gibson. Hoot, whose specialties were horse operas, has suddenly grown ambitious to go into aviation. Who better could play his leading lady in "Forty Below" than our famous Miss Elder.

Reeves Eason will direct and if they need any additional help Al Wilson will be right there to offer it. He knows both his movies and his airships. Speaking of Hoot, Mrs. Gibson, in New York, read in the paper that she was being divorced. Neither she nor Hoot knew anything about it, and being a sensible woman, she came home at once to deny gossips' idle words.

YOU may get out the welcome flags, the red carpet and the village band in three weeks for Estelle Taylor. She is having a bad tonsil removed as soon as she gets a little stronger and then she will head straight for sunshine and California. Her boy friend, Jack Dempsey, has to remain with "The Big Fight," according to contracts with David Belasco. But he will be out as soon as he gets through trouping.

Estelle has had an offer from F B O to make four pictures with sound. That stage experience is probably going to bring her many more offers for she was already a good actress and there is nothing like the stage for inflection and dialogue. So now she has voice in additional to her other talent.

THE Baclanova Booster Club can now rejoice. Baclanova, Russian vamp, who is a good actress when she has a chance, is to have the lead opposite Buddy Rogers in "Two Shall Meet." You can't see Baclanova doing a demure ingenue in love with the big, brown-eyed Buddy Rogers. Probably she vamps him. But anyway, here is one of the big roles and thank goodness, for she is one actress whose light shouldn't be buried under a bushel.

SOME months ago I announced in this column that Paul Whiteman and his famous band were talking business to Universal. At that time the famous jazz impresario was dickering with several other companies, but now Universal has turned the trick and you may expect an announcement today or tomorrow that he has definitely signed to make a picture for Universal.

THE deal was closed in New York with N. Goldstone handling negotiations. Of course, Carl Laemmle is in the big town. So he probably gave the final word. What with the talkies we are getting all the big numbers on our front steps. There is nobody who can play like Paul Whiteman and won't it be grand to see him wielding the baton and leading his orchestra in the movies.

THE team of Mike Curtiz and Dolores Costello continues to flourish. Miss Costello continues to tis for director for the last three pictures and now I hear on good authority that he is to handle the megaphone on "Alamony Annie", the next Costello opera.

Mike's picture, "Noah's Ark" opens at Grauman's Chinese Theater with a typical Grauman premiere. There is talk that once this picture makes its debut Mike will be hailed as our next genius director. I say this without prejudice on either side for I haven't seen the picture. I have only heard about it.

WHAT they are doing, when and how—Betty Bronson returns from New York with Margaret Ettinger this morning. Betty it appears, is to play the lead in "She Knew Men" after all, unless of course, the high moguls over at Warner Brothers change their minds. Jack Luden, the boy who always associates with cough drops because granddad made them, has a part in "The Wolf of Wall Street."

William Austin plays the society editor in "The Big Scoop." Page Cholly Knickerbocker, Cholly Angeleno and all the rest of the writers of social happenings. Bebe Daniels, who is starred in this newspaper comedy, talks of nothing these days but newspaper experiences. If she doesn't get a story that rings true it won't be her fault or that of her director, Eddie Sutherland.

HOOVER HEARD THROUGH WBZ TONIGHT

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

THE TWO LEADING presidential candidates will be on the air during the coming week. Mr. Hoover speaks tonight at 8:30 and will be heard on a nation-wide hookup, including WBZ. Governor Smith's Boston address on Wednesday night will be served forth from the Boston Arena through WNAC serving as key station for the Columbia System on that occasion. This speech, as well as tonight's will reach to the Pacific Coast stations.

COMEDIENNE BROADCASTS

MAXINE LEWIS, singing and dancing comedienne, who is appearing with Al B. White's "Broadway Scandals," will broadcast popular song numbers through WNAC this evening at 6:30 from Loew's State Theater studio. Miss Lewis appeared here with Earl Carroll's Vanities and LeMair's Affairs.

ORGANIST WITH ROXY GANG

DR. MELCHIORRE MAURO-COTTONE, recently appointed organist in charge of classical music of the Roxy Theater, New York, will be heard with Roxy and His Gang through WBZ this evening at 7:30. Dr. Mauro-Cottone was one of the first organists to introduce the use of classical music in motion picture theaters. He received his musical education in Italy, where, at the age of 16, he was called upon to play for Pope Pius X and to officiate for the funeral of King Umberto.

SAVINGS BANKS HOUR

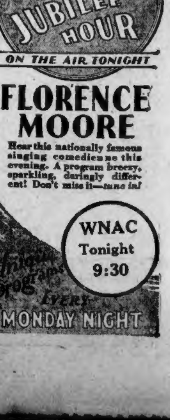

THIRTY MINUTES of orchestra novelties and selections from the semi-classics will be broadcast as the weekly Savings Banks program over WEEI this evening at 7:00 o'clock. The waltz from Tschaikowsky's "Eugen Onegin," the "Berceuse" from Godard's "Jocelyn" and the waltz-intermezzo from Delibes' "Naila" are included in this program.

THE TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION of the Brides of Kashmir, taken from Rubinstein's Oriental opera, "Feramors," based on Moore's story "Lalla Rookh," is featured in the program of the A. and P. Gypsies through WEEI at 8:30 o'clock.

MANY CONCERTS PLEASE HUB AUDIENCES

By MOSES SMITH

This is the story of the battle of a faithful musical scribe in the face of a storm of concerts that hit Boston yesterday. There were four big musical attractions in one day, and all of them seemed to demand, or at any rate to invite our by no means august presence. The attempts to be present at all of them not only in body, but in spirit as well was not too successful, as might have been expected and as ye shall hear.

First on the schedule came the opening concert of the season for the People's Symphony Orchestra at its new headquarters, the Hotel Statler ballroom. The physical surroundings were naturally more inviting than the halls where the People's has previously held forth. The acoustics were unexpectedly good, which bodes well for enterprising managers, who are invading the hotel ballrooms as concert sites.

Leading the orchestra was a new man here, a guest-conductor, Frederick Fischer of St. Louis. His program consisted of Tchaikovsky's "Pathetic" symphony, Stanford's first Irish Rhapsody, Grieg's "Autumn" overture, and Mozart's piano concerto in D minor, in which Miss Ruth Webb was the soloist. The orchestra played surprisingly well for a first concert. Much of its success must have been due to the conductor, who seemed to know what he wanted and how to get it.

But the highlight of the conce. . and of a busy day as well, was Miss Webb's playing. She played the beautiful Mozart work as a mature artist, never faltering, always sure of herself. And her style seemed made to order for Mozart. The orchestral accompaniment was w managed, also, and the result was an ensemble that would have done credit to more widely advertised artists. The audience, of good size, applauded heartily.

A hurried jump to Symphony Hall, where Geraldine Farrar was giving a program of art songs before another even more enthusiastic audience, was of no avail, for we arrived exactly at the conclusion of the single extra number. We caught a glimpse of the charming "Gerry" bowing her audience out, and had to remain satisfied with the report of a dutiful henchman that Miss Farrar had done herself credit in her second venture on an entirely non-operatic program. Certainly the program itself, consisting of unhackneyed songs by Schubert, Schumann, eighteenth century writers and romantic composers, was admirably chosen.

The evening brought to Symphony Hall a huge audience and Vladimir Horowitz, Russian pianist, who stood musical Boston metaphorically on its head last year. His opening number was the Bac Toccata in C major arranged by Busoni. The performance was magnificient. Perhaps it wasn't what Bach would have liked—who knows? But it was certainly an exhibition of excellent musicianship and of superb virtuosity.

A group of Brahms numbers and another of Chopin were tempting, but Edith Mason was "calling" at the Copley Plaza in what was, so far as we know, her first appearance in Boston in concert. We were fortunate enough to hear her sing a group of French songs, two of them by Debussy, and four German lieder, two by Brahms and two by Strauss—all of them familiar to concert-goers.

Miss Mason's beautiful voice and fine artistry were displayed as usual. So was her perfect enunciation. She remains, however, primarily a singer for opera. Particularly in the German songs was absent the searching temperament of the concert-singer. But her natural grace and charm were a delight to the eye as well as to the ear. It was a pity that there were not more present to share the pleasure. And the acoustics in this hall, incidentally, were remarkable, the slightest whisper being audible at the rear of the auditorium.

Then quickly back to Symphony Hall to hear Horowitz give a remarkable performance of Chopin's second study in C minor and an unspeakably fast rendition of Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre," arranged by Liszt. It seemed incredible that a single performer was getting all these sounds out of a single piano at such an alarming rate. The auditors almost stampeded, and was being regaled with extra bits of pyrotechnics when we left. . . . A very busy day.

MURDER IS LAID TO GLAND ROBBER; TO FREE STUDENT

Essen, Germany, Oct. 22 (INS)—The first case of supposed "gland robbery" in Germany is being investigated by the police. They are seeking to learn if "gland hunters" were responsible for the murder and mutilation of Helimuth Daub, a student. Daub's student friend, Karl Hussman, is on trial charged with the murder, but likely will be acquitted.

It was testified the mutilation had been performed by an expert. The throat had been cut and certain glands removed as though by a surgeon. Hussman is not a surgeon, only a student.

2 ESCAPE AS AUTO DIVES 22 FEET OFF FERRY BOAT

Tarrytown, N. Y., Oct. 22 (INS)—A sedan driven by J. T. McDonald of Pelham Manor, N. Y., crashed through the guard chains of a ferryboat here and sank in 22 feet of water.

McDonald smashed a window of the car and managed to drag himself and his wife to the surface. Both are recovering at Tarrytown hospital today.

ONE KILLED, ONE HURT IN OHIO AUTO RACE CRASHES

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 22 (INS)—Earl Calvin, 23, Indianapolis auto racer, is dead and Al Thiesen, 21, Detroit, is in a hospital here today, suffering from burns, the results of two accidents that marred the running of the Coney Island Speedway 100-mile race here.

Evidences that Greater Bostonians are fast becoming "air-minded" were seen at the Boston Airport last week.

Two of them were night flights made by passengers in the Skyways Inc., Stearman, with Charlie Emerson at the controls. The others occurred when 45 members of the Brookline High School Aero Club were taken for joyrides by Skyways. Although the majority of the boys and girls had never been in an airplane, not one case of air sickness was reported.

Winthrop O. Sargent, air inspector for the Department of Commerce, is paying the Airport another visit checking up on pilots and giving examinations to pilots and mechanics. Inspector Sargent said he did not realize there was so much air activity in Boston.

* * *

Al Anderson, president of the Pilgrim Air Service, has passed his examination for a limited commercial license, and intends to do much of the aerial work for his company next year.

Local pilots who attended the Army-Harvard football game were Capt. DeArce and Mike Harlow of the Old Colony Airways Corp., of Revere. Harlow is a Harvard graduate and Capt. DeArce is an ex-Army man.

Student instruction with the Boston Airport Corp. is averaging 20 hours a week now that schools and college are reopened. Lieut. Adolph M. Backstrom, chief student instructor, is doing most of the work, having soloed his second woman student, Mrs. Frank Chase of Chelsea last week. Chief Pilot Ralph T. Wickford flew the Loening amphibian to Lakehurst, N. J., last week with passengers to see the landing of the Graf Zeppelin.

* * *

George Watkins, one of the original barnstorming pilots, has gone to North Attleboro to fly a Challenger for William Rogers. Another old timer, Leo "Skip" Tracey, who gave Tom Croce his first airplane ride at Lynnway in 1919, is chief pilot for the Springfield Airlines at Springfield.

Dennison Airport Corp. is putting on aerial shows on Sundays with stunt flying by Capt. Albert L. Edson, and parachute jumps by Maurice Rye. One is scheduled for next Sunday, according to H. E. Meartin, field manager.

* * *

Danny Dugan, assistant field manager for Skyways, has nine solo hours to his credit, and hopes to have the necessary number to take his examination.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Questions pertaining to aviation will be answered every week in this department. Address your queries to "Flights and Fliers" Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.)

Q. What is meant when a flier says he "landed down-wind"? G. B. P., Medford.

A. "Down-wind" in aviation parlance means with the wind. A plane must be landed into the wind, but occasionally, through over-sight or accident a ship will land with the wind. By landing into the wind the plane's speed is lessened more rapidly, and a shorter distance is necessary.

Q. Does the air mail to New York fly every day? What time does it leave Boston? W. K. L., Somerville.

A. The air mail does not fly on Sundays, but every other day it leaves Boston nightly at 6:15 p. m. The mail is due at Hadley Field, New Brunswick, New Jersey at 9.15 p. m.

OLD FAVORITES AT OPENING OF NEW KEITH'S

Two of New England's favorite theatrical stars, Maggie Cline and Raymond Hitchcock, have announced that they will be present at the gala opening of the new $5,000,000 B. F. Keith's Memorial Theater on Monday evening, October 29.

"I wouldn't miss it for the world," said Maggie Cline, in her telegram of acceptance. "I want another chance to sing 'Throw 'Em Down, McClusky.'"

And these are only two of the many old-time favorites that are expected to be on hand for the opening. The names of many others will be announced shortly.

The Keith management has made elaborate plans for the opening night. Among other novelties, a handsome souvenir program, bound in parchment, will be given everyone present.

For its opening photoplay the new theater will offer Colleen Moore in "Oh Kay," a sparkling comedy made from the famous stage hit.

Other photoplays which the new theater will feature at later dates are: Billie Dove in "The 30th of October"; Alice White in "Ritzy Rose"; Milton Sills in "The Comedy of Life"; Corinne Griffith in "Paid For"; Jack Mulhall and Greta Nissen in "The Butter & Egg Man"; Corinne Griffith in "Outcast"; Richard Barthelmess in "Scarlet Seas," and Bebe Daniels in "Take Me Home."

MAN DIES IN PLANE ON HIS WAY TO HOSPITAL

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 22 (AP)—An airplane was hastily outfitted into an air ambulance to bring a patient here from Laredo, Tex., but the patient, Edward St. Albans, 60, died in the air 25 minutes from the municipal landing field. St. Albans, an oil operator on the border, and husband of Mary St. Albans, author who writes under the name of Mary White, was stricken with hemorrhages in Laredo, and physicians ordered the plane to transport him to a local hospital. Accompanied by physicians, the dying man was placed in the plane and with his wife riding north in an airmail plane, the trip was begun. The wife did not learn of the death of her husband until she reached here.

FOUR MEN HELD FOR TAUNTON ROBBERIES

Taunton, Oct. 22 (AP)—Four men were held for the Grand Jury in the district court today on charges growing out of a series of holdups in this vicinity. The four men, who gave their names as William Thibeault, James J. O'Connor, Wallace Enos and Erwin Haskins, all of this city, were arrested by a State patrolman in Easton.

Thibeault pleaded guilty to four charges, including carrying a revolver without a permit, robbery while armed and attempted robbery and was held in $7500 bail. O'Connor, who pleaded guilty to similar charges, was held in $3600 bail. Enos and Haskins pleaded not guilty and were held in $2500 bail each.

SEN. CURTIS' THROAT TROUBLE MUCH BETTER

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 22 (AP)—Senator Charles Curtis, Republican candidate for vice-president, made a brief stop here today en route to Utica, N. Y., where he will speak tonight.

Senator Curtis' throat was sore yesterday but was greatly improved today. He will speak in Pittsfield tomorrow night.

WINGS, DRAMA OF WAR, AT SCOLLAY

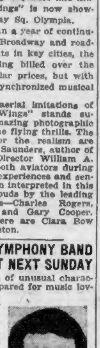

In its synchronized form, with an appropriate musical score and the noise of whirring airplanes and machine guns, "Wings" is now showing at the Scollay Sq. Olympia.

After more than a year of continuous showing on Broadway and road-show engagements in key cities, the film is now being billed over the country at popular prices, but with the addition of synchronized musical accompaniment.

With all the aerial imitations of this picture, "Wings" stands supreme for its amazing photographic shots and genuine flying thrills. The chief reasons for the realism are that John Monk Saunders, author of "Wings," and Director William A. Wellman were both aviators during the war. Their experiences and sensations have been interpreted in this drama of the clouds by the leading male characters—Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen and Gary Cooper. For heroines there are Clara Bow and Jobyna Ralston.

POMPEO'S SYMPHONY BAND IN CONCERT NEXT SUNDAY

A performance of unusual character has been prepared for music lovers of Greater Boston for Sunday evening, Oct. 28, when Giovanni Pompeo's Symphony Band appears at Symphony Hall. The coming concert, which will precede a road tour, will feature two soloists who have achieved considerable foreign successes. These artists will be Maria Mantovani, lyric soprano of La Scala of Milan, and the Royal Opera San Carlo at Naples; and Rocco Pandiscio, leading baritone of the San Carlo and other European opera houses, and this season a featured member of the Philadelphia Civic Opera.

Rocco Pandiscio

Heart Victim

Stricken with a heart attack, Timothy A. Cronin, 52, of 84 Crescent ave., Melrose, dropped dead in his home, following his return from church. Mr. Cronin has been employed as a rubber cutter for many years at the Boston Rubber Shoe Company, Malden.

JOLSON FILM IS CALLED BEST OF 'TALKIES'

By LEO GAFFNEY.

Al Jolson's new picture, "The Singing Fool," seems destined to be the most popular ever made. At the Washington Street Olympia and Fenway, where it is now displayed, crowds fairly storm the gates. Over Saturday and Sunday, large numbers of people waited long for each new showing, and, once seated inside, laughed and wept by turns at a cinematic exhibition that for sheer sentimentality has never been surpassed on the screen. During its final dolorous moments, many a damp handkerchief swabbed a watery eye, and strong men, melting in spite of themselves, dashed away tears with the backs of their hands.

Al Jolson.

Far less of a story than "The Jazz Singer," "The Singing Fool" is, nevertheless, a better picture. In fact, it is the best "talkie," technically, to date. When Jolson—or any of the other speaking characters, for that matter—has a line to read or a song to sing, the position of the camera is the same as in any silent picture.

DIRECTER LANDED

Heretofore in the talkies, when a character spoke a word, he was forced to face the camera and deliberately talk AT it. It was as if, on the speaking stage, a player were always at the very footlights, leveling his lines at the audience, making a speech rather than moving around and talking like a normal human being.

Lloyd Bacon's direction reveals nothing so awkward. His players speak from any position, front, rear or sidewise. Notably, in the last scene, when "the singing fool" proves he's a "real trouper" by going through with his performance even though heartbroken over the death of his little son, in this scene the camera is faithfully trained on Jolson, but it is pointed to the back of his head. Director Bacon thus triumphs over Hollywood's worst menace, the closeup!

BABY STARS

Closely rivaling the star in the affection of the audience is that splendid little boy, Davey Lee, who appears as the baby son. Davey, by all indications, will be another Jackie Coogan. Watch him grow!

Others are Josephine Dunn, Betty Bronson and Arthur Houseman. All are essential to the production, but by no means indispensible, since Jolson is accustomed to doing his shows pretty much single-handed. "The Singing Fool" is no exception.

Jolson, ever "the jazz singer," is always on the job, with songs, stories, sobs or just plain clowning. Whether on stage or screen he thrives; he is a rampant hit with the multitudes, the home run king of the theatrical world.

LAY TRAGEDY TO JEALOUSY

Smith of the crime and a general order was sent out for his arrest.

But Smith cheated the law of its toll. Driving to the farm of Patrick Heslin, about two miles distance, he walked into the orchard, sat down and placed the gun between his knees. Leaning his forehead against the muzzle of the weapon, he leaned forward and pressed the trigger.

Mrs. Smith said her husband had not only threatened to "blow my head off if I should get a divorce and marry Robbins, but he also threatened the children."

On Smith's automobile was found a note reading as follows:

"After all is done, please give the radio to Nellie. Maurice."

"Nellie" referred to Smith's wife.

Who'll Get This Radio?

Philadelphia, Oct. 22 (AP)—Developments on the first Tuesday in November will determine the recipient of a nice radio set. A manufacturer is to present the 3,000,000th of his make to the next occupant of the White House.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Develop Your Children

Give Their Brains and Lungs a Chance to Grow

The other day, IN THE OPEN COUNTRY, three small boys were on their way home from a golf links.

They had earned money, healthfully, caddying for fat gentlemen trying to get thin, and THIS is how they went home:

Two boys, about fourteen years old, were on bicycles. A smaller boy, brother of one of the bicycle riders, was on roller skates.

He held with one hand to each of the bicycles, and the older boys, pedaling slowly, dragged him along the well-paved asphalt road.

And you would not find three happier boys anywhere in the world.

The two older boys were proud of their inventive faculty. Apparently they had said, "Bring your roller skates and we will tow you home."

The little boy was proud of his association on a business basis with the older boys.

They were developing their minds, filling their lungs with fresh air, getting good exercise.

AND THEY WERE GROWING UP IN THE RIGHT WAY.

Those three little boys hereafter undoubtedly will be included in the list of successful, healthy Americans.

They are not living penned up among the bricks and mortar of the city, dodging heavy trucks, as they play, breathing fumes from the exhaust pipes of taxicabs and other cars.

They are living where children should live, in the country, AND THAT IS WHERE YOUR CHILDREN SHOULD LIVE IF YOU CAN POSSIBLY MANAGE IT.

Go out into the country, look over the real estate possibilities. SEE FOR YOURSELF, don't let any real estate agent do your thinking FOR you.

Get a little house, no matter how simple, buy it on the instalment plan, IF YOU ARE SURE YOU CAN PAY FOR IT, not otherwise.

Have your little garage and your car. Let your children keep a tame goat and learn to harness it. The goat will live on weeds along the road, or let them have rabbits in a box and dream of wealth, with the aid of the multiplication table and the high fertility of rabbits.

ENCOURAGE YOUR CHILDREN TO THINK, PLAN, INVENT.

Let them live the life that DEVELOPS human beings, as a tree develops standing by itself in the open field.

Give them the benefit of sunshine, fresh air, exercise, FREEDOM and happiness.

Power in Simplicity

Wealth Corrupts Simplicity

M. I. KALININ, PRESIDENT OF THE RUSSIAN SOVIET REPUBLIC, WITH HIS SON AND HIS MOTHER ON VACATION

This picture interests us all, showing, in this stage of human life, a picture of power as it existed long ago.

Here you have the President of the Russian Soviet taking his vacation, dressed like a simple Russian peasant. With him you see his son and his mother in her everyday and every-evening costume, that of a peasant woman, a shawl on her head, a long calico dress below the shawl.

No pink silk stockings or short skirts, or rubber bands to reduce the hips.

Simple, earnest, rugged peasants' faces are these—mother, son and grandson.

Kalinin, head of a nation bigger in size and in population by far than the United States, a nation powerful in its revolutionary enthusiasm, able easily to beat off attacks of the united allied nations, HELPED BY THIS NATION.

Kalinin lives only for his work, believes intensely in theories of equality and communism. We think we know that he is wrong.

But that makes him not less powerful, not less dangerous to those of a different belief.

It is well to remember the saying of a great man con-

BOARD FENCES AND PICKET FENCES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE man who gets flustered, flurried, and rattled when he has more than one thing to do is the one who tries to make a board fence of his activities.

The man who stays calm when he seems to be doing many things at once is the one who makes a picket fence of them.

For, singularly enough, the most versatile men are the most single-minded.

Those who do many things well are those who devote their minds and energies most wholeheartedly to each task as it comes up.

They appear to spread their energies over a large area. In reality they condense them to a hotter fire upon each single activity than do those who are occupied with few things.

They concentrate upon one thing intently, leave it, and concentrate upon something else. There is always a clean break. Each picket is separate. One isn't carried over to the other. No attempt is made to construct a continuous board fence, as is the case with those who try to do everything at once.

Yet they seem to do the latter. The reason: If trains went fast enough, telephone poles would seem to make a picket fence. So a picket fence seems to be a board fence to those who pass swiftly enough.

In our minds we go over the actions of another person rapidly. We run over years of his life in an instant. His separate acts seem to have occurred in a lump.

Separate pickets do not stand out. Many activities seem to have been considered in his mind at once, and we conclude that he thought about them all at the same time.

The gift of the versatile is concentration.

Some minds have the ability to turn from one thing to another more quickly and completely than do others.

The essential element in this ability is concentration; and this is a quality which can be cultivated by practice.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS,

THERE is always so much of good
Wherever men may fare,
Its currents form a crystal flood
To drown each loss and care.
There is always so much of trust
That with each morning's sun
The rose of joy still springs from dust.
Hope's web again is spun.
There is so much of love always
(One shield no blow can break)
No grief, no fear can vex the ways
Your feet or mine must take.
Doubt not, nor question as you go
The issues yet to meet—
Since such swift currents heavenward flow,
Life's an not but be sweet.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ED RAWLSTON says women haven't as much sense of humor as men. Whereupon The Wife writes indignantly to ask if I agree with him.

I'm afraid I do, old girl. But if we haven't, there's a good reason why. And we're rapidly working off our handicap.

A sense of humor is a peculiar gift. It isn't born in us like tonsils, nor does it sprout spontaneously like wurzel. It is acquired. And it is acquired under conditions which have been apart from woman life.

A sense of humor isn't merely the ability to laugh when the other fellow slips on a banana peel. IT'S THE ABILITY TO LAUGH WHEN YOU, YOURSELF, SLIP ON A BANANA PEEL.

In short, it's an understanding of our relationship to life and life's relationship to us—a merry, tolerant, tender understanding of all our ridiculous pretensions, our silly alibis and evasions, our comic blunders, our petty poses and pretenses.

You can't understand yourself or life like that until you have known life. And until recently, women—good women—haven't had much of a chance to know life in the large.

Until recently women spent their lives within four rooms, knowing only the personal contacts of family life. Sometimes they had the rare knack of viewing those narrow contacts in an impersonal way and so have come to the blessed gift of laughter. But most women were forced to see life as an intensely personal experience and no laughing matter.

On the other hand men, through the very nature of their work, were forced to view life more impersonally and to acquire both philosophy and humor as they do so. IN SPITE OF WHICH FACT SOME MEN HAVE STILL ABOUT AS MUCH HUMOR AND PHILOSOPHY AS A FLAXSEED POULTICE. SO TAKE HEART, SISTERS!

Generally speaking, that's why women haven't as much sense of humor as men. That's why they get their feelings hurt so easily—why they stand criticism so poorly—why they are not such good sports in competition—why they're so "sensitive" and why, where two or three women are gathered together, you'll find a row. (D. A. R. and other female aggregations please take note.)

Women haven't as yet learned to see life in the large. They haven't learned the necessity of tolerance or compromise. They still want to run things as they've always been run in families.

But give them time! Already they're picking up new tricks. This new industrial freedom is going to prove a blessing to women in that respect. It may raise cain with home life for a while, but in the end it will make better wives, mothers and voting citizens. It will take women out of that four-walls attitude. It will teach them to laugh at themselves and take things as they come. It will make women people instead of just wives and mothers.

Which is my private opinion of Us Girls.

But I dare you to cut this out, Bill, and take it home to the wife.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

A day's work is a day's work, neither more nor less and the man who does it needs a day's sustenance, a night's repose, and due leisure, whether he be painter or ploughman.—George Bernard Shaw.

He that uses many words for the explaining of any subject, doth, like the cuttlefish, hide himself for the most part in his own ink.—Ray.

A tool is but an extension of a man's hand, and a machine is but a complex tool. And he that invents a machine augments the power of a man and the well-being of mankind.—Henry Ward Beecher.

He is next to the gods whom reason and not passion impels; and who after weighing the facts, can measure the punishment with discretion.—Claudianus.

We are no more responsible for the evil thoughts that pass through our minds than a scarecrow for the birds which fly over the seed plot which he has to guard. The sole responsibility in such case is to prevent them from settling.—Collins.

New York Day by Day

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—Diary of a modern Pepys: Out in a flood of sunshine and espied Monta Bell, the cinema director, in the avenue crowds, but after a block chase he had vanished. So talked to Marie Dressler, the play actress, who told of her great love for California.

To lunch with Hamish and Almos McLaurin, who had been hibernating in Honolulu, and nobody seems to remain in New York any more save for a short visit. And stood fascinated on a corner for a half hour watching riveters pitch and toss red hot bolts.

Home and labored until the lights grew grumpy and walked with my dog, meeting a venerable cabman, who said he had not had a fare for three days. But what he charged me for a drive around Central Park probably made up the deficit. Then to a birthday dinner for Roy Howard's mother on the St. Regis roof. And to bed.

BEYOND 110th st., on First ave., there stretches the most opulent of the city's Little Italies, extending to 125th st. The Italian quarter springing up there is the last stand of wealthy Italians before spreading to private mansions and toney apartments.

Here are vegetable, olive oil and spaghetti merchants, most of whom are prosperous. Few vendettas and mysterious throat slittings, often marking Italian neighborhoods, are recorded. Conversation is mostly in English.

The pronounced poverty of the newly arrived in Mulberry Bend is missing. The big step in Americanization has been achieved. Frequent fete days are colorful, the streets being arched with decorations and the upstairs flats spangled with many hued lights. No people can get so much out of a fete as the Italians.

THE underworld order, "Take him for a ride" grins gangland in a white-faced terror. The victim vanishes. The prix fixe for a "ride" is $200—one half down, the other half when the "ride" is finished.

IN other days a command to murder was "Put him on a boat!" Among vicious killers the unrefined term "murder" is never employed.

O, YES, in the night clubs the scamps who prey on women are called "wolf men." And ladies who vice versa are "cobras." And how they coil!

A GENTLEMAN signing himself Otto Dead Tenner wires collect his names are the same spelt backward, and inquires the price for broadcasting this sensation. No charge and we hope it helps in a big way. But if anything else develops concerning it we shall expect Mr. Tennet to pay telegraph charges. We didn't marry into a telegraph family.

WE have a dirty notion to telegraph Mr. Tennet collect that Otto Floto, the sporting writer, has four O's in his name.

IT just came to me this morning that those fellows who corner you, hold to your coat lapel and punctuate their talk with "I mean" never have anything important to say. And I have been listening to them earnestly for years.

OUT - OF - TOWN correspondents continually flatter us with intimations of our sophistication. They seem to picture us in doublet and hose, vaulting to the top of a tavern table nightly to lead in a drinking song. As a matter of fact it was only last night we discovered you can get into any night club without one of those carefully numbered membership cards they send out.

FOR the dull witted, patience and time are required to get the hang of things in this galloping metropolis. People never suspect our innocence. We live in dread of the day someone will sneak up and whisper the awful facts of life in our ear, just to see us swoon.

cerning another, "That man is dangerous. HE BELIEVES EVERY WORD HE SAYS."

After all, this old woman, in her shawl and plain dress, and her rugged, powerful son, who with others threw out the rotten race of Czars and their corrupt and drunken gang of grand dukes, have about all that you can have in life.

They have all they need to eat, a good bed to sleep on, a roof to keep out the rain.

What real GOOD would silk stockings do this woman? What good would the preposterous uniform of a king or general, the sort worn in western Europe, do to this head of giant Russia?

He takes a vacation, not on a yacht with cannon booming, not in a resort equipped with gambling houses and disreputable women, but in the village in which he was born, and there he helps the peasants get in the crops. Dull, you say? Not for a real man. He'd find Deauville's gambling dull.

Such men ARE dangerous, at least to those that object to simplicity, to the idea that the people shall rule themselves, and divide among themselves the wealth of the nation.

BUT with hard work and simple living comes wealth, and with wealth comes corruption, in politics.

Make the Russian leaders rich, let their sons and grandsons taste luxury in its various forms, the wines, imaginary personal refinement, and gradually the rugged Communist or republican becomes a would-be aristocrat.

No truer words were ever written than those of the Frenchman Prudhomme, "Les monarchies perissent par la pauvrete, les republiques par la richesse." (Monarchies are destroyed by poverty, republics by wealth.)
